New takeoff cuts jet noise: study

by THOMAS LEE

Airlines can sharply reduce the noise created by jets departing O'Hare Airport, a new federal study shows.

The study indicates that if airlines adopted a takeoff procedure now in use at a Washington, D.C., airport, the areas exposed to highly objectionable noise would be cut by one-third.

The study shows the takeoff procedure now used by most major airlines is the loudest procedure among those tested. An industry group, the Air Transport Assn. of America, sanctions this procedure as simple, safe and not excessively noisy.

Antinoise lobbyists disagree and are hailing the new study as scientific evidence in their fight against jet noise. They say they will use the study to argue for a federal crackdown on airport noise.

THE STUDY was commissioned by the Federal Aviation Administration and performed by the Mitre Corp., a Virginia think-tank owned by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The FAA is researching proposed regulations that may require airlines to adopt certain procedures to abate noise.

Charles R. Foster, director of the FAA office of environmental quality, said the study will play "some role" in rule formulation but won't be the only evidence to bear upon the rule.

The proposed rule-making is vitally important in Chicago's Northwest suburbs, where neighbors of O'Hare Airport have objected to airport noise since the mid-1960s. The objections have spawned a local chapter of the National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment, a group lobbying for noise abatement laws.

Other groups have joined the fight, and their efforts have included the recent collection of more than 21,000 signatures in a letter-writing campaign to Washington.

Several individuals who work close to pending antinoise legislation and regulations said they had never heard of the study, and were surprised when told about it by The Daily Herald.

AN FAA SPOKESMAN said the agency made no attempt to hide the study, but no special attempt to publicize it, either. The study is dated March 1977.

The study compares and analyzes the noise created by six different takeoff procedures.

Among them are two "quiet thrust" procedures, one used at Washington National Airport in Washington and another used by Northwest Orient Airlines. The two are variations of the same basic idea, which involves flap retraction and thrust reduction shortly after takeoff. Because less thrust is used, less noise is made.

Some antinoise advocates refer to these procedures as "tiptoeing out of the airport."

The study also analyzes the procedure used by most airlines, called the

Korean spy plan disclosed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret South Korean intelligence plan unveiled Tuesday at a House hearing called for broad efforts to influence U.S. policy last year by infiltrating the White House, Congress, the Pentagon and the State Dept.

No immediate evidence was produced to show that the purported Korean CIA plan, with a projected cost of $750,000, was implemented on a broad scale to generate the internal spy network it envisioned to gain favorable policies for Korea.

The 24-page document outlining clandestine operations at the White House and elsewhere in government also proposed steps to win influence in the news media, academic circles, religious groups and other organizations. It referred to a separate plan for congressional campaign contributions but gave no details.

THE PLAN WAS released by an International Relations subcommittee investigating CIA activities in the United States. Chairman Donald Fraiser, D-Minn., said it amounted to "outright subversion."

The lead-off witness, Sohn Ho Young, the chief KCIA agent in New York until he defected two months ago, testified the document was drafted in 1975 for use the next year and was approved at agency headquarters in Seoul, but said he didn't know if the plan ever was executed.

"My common sense tells me it was not really carried out," he said, partly as a result of newspaper reports about Korean CIA influence-peddling on Capital Hill that began to surface as the plan was being put together in Washington.

NEITHER SOHN nor four later witnesses named as "targets" in the plan provided significant evidence to show they were subverted. Subcommittee investigators said privately they still had no proof any government official was given money under the plan.

No other names in the original document were identified. Fraser said they were deleted to protect the privacy of those involved.

The thrust of the plan appeared to be aimed at "manipulation" of congressmen and key officials in the U.S. diplomatic-military establishment, with offers of free trips to Korea, campaign contributions, gifts and monthly payoffs to get them to cooperate.

Amounts of money were listed in many specific cases and it said contacts with dozens of lawmakers had

U.S. will go to talks in Cairo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States formally announced Tuesday it will attend the Middle East peace talks in Cairo but U.S. officials said the Soviet Union sent word it will shun the negotiations.

A State Dept. spokesman praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for injecting a "new, dynamic element in the negotiations" by calling the Cairo talks.

In Moscow, however, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said the Soviet Union cannot support Sadat's initiatives. A nation which "departs from the Common Arab front," Gromyko said, does not deserve approval.

STATE DEPT. officials said the Soviets informed Sec. of State Cyrus Vance that they wouldn't send a representative to Cairo.

In New York, U.N. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim noted that many of those invited to Cairo don't plan to go. He proposed they all gather on "neutral ground" at the United Nations in a followup meeting a few weeks from now.

Officials said the State Department's choice for a U.S. representative to the Cairo talks is Hermann Eilts, the U.S. ambassador to Egypt since 1974.

State Dept. spokesman Hodding Carter III earlier had said that the U.S. representative would be "someone whose background and competence is heavily in the area and who has a good knowledge of the history."

Firm to seek funding for prairie farm

Potential sources of funding for a historical prairie farm will be sought by an Arlington Heights public relations and consulting firm hired this week by Arlington Heights Park District officials.

Federal and state grant programs and private foundations will be investigated by Ed Murnane & Associates in hopes of discovering financing for the $700,000 prairie farm and garden project park officials have discussed for about three years.

Murnane will be paid $3,500 and will be reimbursed for costs up to $1,000.

THE AGREEMENT between the park district and Murnane, a formr aide to U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, also calls for Murnane to prepare any brochures or flyers necessary to explain the prairie farm proposal to potential sources of funding as well as to provide a public communication program to inform residents of the park district's plan.

Murnane is expected to complete the job within eight weeks.

The prairie farm development, planned for a 15-acre site north of Golf Road at Belmont Avenue and Council Trail Road, is envisioned as a recreation of a post-Civil War farm.

The park district, however, is faced with the immediate problem of finding $100,000 to be used with a state grant of $100,000 to purchase a five-acre parcel at the proposed site. A request that village officials set aside U.S. community development funds for the project was rejected Monday by the committees assigned with the responsibility of recommending how the village should spend the federal money.

The five-acre parcel must be purchased by June 30, 1978, if the state grant is to be used, Parks Director Thomas Thornton said. The most likely source for the land acquisition money now is the park district's museum tax levy, which raises between $40,000 and $50,000 a year, Thornton said.

Receipts from the museum tax levy would have to be combined with land dedication money the park district receives from developers, Thornton said. The park district has about $70,000 allocated through land contributions from developers, he said.

Byline report

Before moving out of his Arlington Heights apartment last summer, Landon G. Brooks spent two days cleaning it to ensure that his $350 security deposit would be returned.

Four months later he still has not seen a penny of the money, even though the assistant manager of the complex says Brooks' apartment was left "spotless."

Brooks, who now lives at 464 Beech Dr., Wheeling, has joined the ranks of what area attorneys and property managers agree is a growing number of tenants who do not receive their full security deposit after moving.

THIRTEEN PER cent of all small claims court cases in Cook County in the past three years were filed by tenants trying to reclaim their deposits, an indication, one attorney says, that the system is riddled with fraud despite laws designed to protect renters.

"There is a lot of fraud perpetrated against tenants by landlords who, in an awful lot of instances, are acting deliberately," John Biestek, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., said.

"Nowhere near the majority of landlords are deliberately fraudulent, but when one landlord manages 300 apartment units he can bilk a lot of people out of their deposits over the years," he said.

Biestek said tenants who call him for help most often complain that huge amounts were deducted from the security deposit for minor or nonexistent damages or that no explanation is offered at all.

IN BROOKS' CASE, the attorney for the Stonebridge Apartments, 600 W. Rand Rd., where he lived, advised the managers to stop returning deposits to anyone whose lease was not fulfilled until an investigation of a former Stonebridge employe is completed.

The attorney, Richard J. Daley, could not elaborate.

But Brooks had a clause in his lease allowing him to move early if he gave the management at least 60 days notice. And he was never told, despite repeated phone calls, why his money had not been returned.

"I feel that I'm owed an explanation," he said. "It appears that they don't intend to give me my money back because they've had plenty of time to do it if they did."

Assistant Mgr. Eric Rubenstein said when the legal problem is resolved, Brooks' money "most assuredly" will be refunded. He said the lack of communication was an "oversight."

THE SECURITY deposit, usually equal to one month's rent, is paid by the tenant when a lease is signed as the owner's insurance against damage.

Landlords of complexes with at least 10 apartments legally are bound either to refund the full deposit or furnish receipts itemizing what repairs were made with the money within 30 days after a renter moves.

But there are no penalties when the law is ignored, Biestek said, and most attorneys will not represent a tenant trying to recover a deposit because they cannot assure the client he will break even.

House blocks new abortion compromise

WASHINGTON (PUI) — The House Tuesday rejected a proposed compromise on use of federal funds for abortions, which the Senate had approved earlier in the day

The rejection, by a 205-133 vote, means a $60 billion appropriation for major government agencies, which has been stalled for five months, still is in limbo. Temporary funds to run those agencies expire tonight

The propose dcompromise, drafted by House and Senate leaders, was approved 44 to 21 earlier in the day by the Senate.

IT WOULD HAVE allowed the federal government to pay for abortions for low-income women under Medicaid when the mother's life otherwise would be endangered or when the mother faced "severe and long-lasting physical health damage."

It also would have permitted "medical procedures" — including dilation and curettage — in cases of rape or incest that are reported to police or to a public health service or its equivalent

Rep Henry Hyde, R-Ill., author of the present law which allows abortion funds only to save the mother's life, said the proposal would be open to fraudulent claims of rape and that physicians could interpret 'health damage" very broadly.

"You're trading a human life for a migraine headache," he told supporters of the compromise

HOUSE DEMOCRATIC leader Jim Wright and appropriations chairman George Mahon, both of Texas, conceded the proposal didn't satisfy everyone but urged members to approve it to get the issue settled.

House leaders now will try to put through a new "continuing resolution" providing further stop-gap funds to keep the federal agencies going Unless Congress acts by Dec. 8, more than 150,000 federal employes will get pay cuts just before Christmas.

The Senate rejected, 42-21, a proposal by Sen Jesse Helms, R-N C, to require that the rape or incest be reported 'promptly"

The abortion dispute has held up a $60 billion appropriation for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare and several smaller agencies since June

Twice the federal agencies have come to the brink of missing payrolls, but obtained temporary funds through congressional "continuing resolutions'

The proposed compromise was worked out at a meeting among Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd; House Speaker Thomas O'Neill Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Sen Edward Brooke, R-Mass, who has played the key Senate role in the dispute and others

Harper call for tax vote renewed

Harper College officials Tuesday renewed their call for a tax referendum in the fall of 1978 to rescue the college from what they warned could be a financial disaster.

Without a tax increase, the college will have to "significantly decrease expenditures and cut programs" over the next few years, said William Mann, Harper's vice president of business and finance

Mann presented the board of trustees with figures showing the college faces a deficit of $5.3 million to $7 million in its educational fund by 1981-82 without increases in both the tax rate and student tuition this fall

No figure has been set for the tax referendum, but for more than a year the Harper administration has suggested a 5.5 cent increase in the current educational fund tax rate, which is 11 cents per $100 assessed valuation. For a home assessed $10,000, the increase would mean an additional $5.50 on the yearly tax bill

TRUSTEE JOAN Klussmann said she did not necessarily oppose a referendum but said "The board can be stoned in the marketplace for mentioning even a penny tax increase' in today's antitax atmosphere

But Mann emphasized that Harper's total tax rate of 21 cents per $100 assessed valuation is one of the lowest among Illinois community colleges and is a fraction of elementary and high school districts' tax levies, which typically are more than $2 per $100 assessed valuation

"In an elementary school district referendum, a person's taxes might go up $20 when our whole tax rate is $20," Mann said

U.S. will attend Cairo peace talks

plans to send a representative to Cairo

Syria, Jordan and the Palestine Liberation Organization rejected the invitation and Lebanon has not responded.

The Soviet Union criticized Sadat through a speech by Gromyko at a reception honoring Syria's foreign minister

Gromyko said the Russians are trying to promote a Middle East peace. "But if one country demonstratively departs from the common Arab front and sacrifices the interests of the Arab states as a whole, first of all those who have suffered from Israeli aggression, this then is quite another matter. How can one approve such actions? One cannot."

ALTHOUGH SADAT has said the Cairo meeting is designed to lead into formal peace talks at a Geneva conference, Gromyko said his plans had dampened the atmosphere.

'One can say today it is put in a more difficult situation than before, and the difficulties have been multiplied. Let us wait and see how the current negotiations and consultations conclude," he said.

The United States had a different view

Although American officials privately expressed apprehensions about a session boycotted by most of the Arab powers, the administration formally accepted Sadat's invitation and praised him for arranging it.

"THE UNITED STATES is going because it believes it can be a useful meeting," Hodding Carter said. "We should support it because it holds a chance for overcoming the difficulties in the way of a comprehensive agreement in the Middle East.

"We would like to see all those invited attend the meeting. We are concentrating on the Cairo talks because this is a new, dynamic element in the negotiations."

In other Middle East developments Tuesday

- Palestinian Arab students in two Israeli occupied towns along the West Bank of Jordan demonstrated against Sadat's initiatives. The peaceful demonstrations occurred in the towns of Ramalla and Nablus.
- West Bank Arab leaders said they have not yet received invitations to the Cairo meeting, although Sadat has said they would be invited. Bethlehem Mayor Elias Freij said he and other Arab officials have not decided whether to attend the session even if they are invited.
- Israeli sources said the two Israeli representatives appointed to the Cairo meeting will not leave Tel Aviv before Saturday night and the trip may not take place until next week.

Rent deposit often money kissed goodby

who want help." he said. 'It's a very serious problem because about the only thing a consumer can do is take a complaint to a small claims court and that's unfair to the taxpayers in the suburbs because the courts are in Chicago

'A great deal more legislation is needed to carry serious damages against landlords who do not return security deposits," Biestek said.

AT A SMALL claims court hearing an attorney is not required to appear with a tenant, Donald O'Connell, administrator of the Cook County circuit courts, said

A $12 filing fee is charged, plus $7 and 30 cents per mile for a sheriff's policeman to serve process on the landlord to appear. Cases usually are resolved within 60 days and damages up to $300 can be awarded, O'Connell said

Diana Dilling of the attorney general's consumer fraud division said she, too, refers most renters who complain to her office to small claims court because "it's the fastest method.

Two complaints about return of security deposits recently were filed with the consumer fraud division by former residents of the Brandenberry Park East apartments, 2424 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights.

In September, Fay Bruhnke, 550 N. Walton Ave., Arlington Heights, complained when Brandenberry withheld all but $1 of her $330 security deposit.

AND LAST MONTH Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Passarella, 101 Heather Ct., Rolling Meadows, filed an objection when they received $100 of their $385 deposit.

Attorneys for Brandenberry said large amounts were withheld because of damages

William D. Sally, vice president and general manager of the property management division of Baird and Warner, which manages 1,800 apartments, condominiums and offices in the Northwest suburbs, said renters' rights are protected better when they live in buildings run by large organizations.

"If a tenant puts a security deposit with a professional management company his chances of getting it back are better than if he goes with a Ma and Pa organization," he said.

Michael Pensack, chairman of the Evanston Tenants' Organization formed last year, disagreed.

"THERE IS MORE deliberate noncompliance among larger property managers because they are most informed, so when they withhold money it has to be deliberate," he said.

Shirley Ferentz of the Evanston human relations commission, who works closely with Pensack, said that as renters become more aware of their rights, challenges against landlords withholding deposits increase.

"As people become more informed we are seeing more cases," she said. "But I still think it's only the tip of the iceberg. There are a number of owners who think it's their right to withhold security deposits and tenants are historically a very apathetic group and go along with it. So there are many cases we never hear about."

Not all security deposits are withheld fraudulently, however. Sometimes the landlord is the victim

Marilyn McGee, manager of Baird and Warner's Northwest suburban branch in Arlington Heights, said her company recently spent $700 to fix an area apartment severely damaged by tenants.

HOLES HAD BEEN punched in a door, walls were decorated with nonremovable wallpaper that damaged the drywall and a light fixture had been installed in the ceiling. The security deposit paid for less than half the repairs.

'But we never write it off,' she said. "We turn it over to a collection agency and usually recover damages in about 50 per cent of the cases

"We almost never collect the full amount, but it's definitely worth pursuing to set an example," Mrs. McGee said. "It may be a small percentage of tenants who do the damage, but rent increases are due in part to the cost of repairs so everybody suffers"

Lorenz Garcia, vice president of Quinlan and Tyson, which managed 3,000 apartments from Chicago's North Side to Schaumburg, said damages are rare, but when they occur they are "disasters"

IN ONE NORTHWEST suburban apartment a family caused $1,000 damage by breaking light fixtures, windows and screens, burning holes in the carpet and punching gaps in the walls The security deposit was $200.

'Our total problem doesn't amount to 1 per cent of tenants a year, but the amount of money involved still makes it a problem" he said

- Pity Janette Tate of York, England She's allergic to cats, dogs, horses, dust, feathers and even her husband. Mrs. Tate, 21, tends to break out in red blotches around her mouth when her husband kisses her. Allergy specialists said her case was unusual but not unique. Injections and pills should help. Janette and her husband, Steve, have been married 2¼ years and it's a problem. If a kiss is too passionate, the area around the mouth goes bright red and Janette says it's "embarrassing to know that I can't kiss my husband properly without my friends knowing about it."

The cowboy boots he wore, plain and polished, were the only surviving characteristic of the onetime king of the protest troubadors of the 1960s.
- Madalyn Murray O'Hair has a new ally and a new target in her battle against religion in secular affairs. She and Bill Baird, an Austin, Tex., abortion advocate, are taking on the Catholic Church, urging the boycott of such church ventures as Christian Brothers' wine, Monk's bread and Trappist jams. They want the church to stop lobbying against federally financed abortions for welfare recipients
- History has a way of repeating itself every so often. Gloria Holfield of Elgin now knows what her mother was going through 18 years ago on Thanksgiving Day. Mrs. Holfield managed to give her mother a real case of indigestion after Thanksgiving Day dinner on Nov. 26, 1959, when she was born. This past Thanksgiving, Mrs. Holfield gave birth to her first child — 7 pound, 11 ounce Michael, named after his father. The second generation mother went without Thanksgiving dinner, leaving her mother, Barbara Zipf, of Streamwood to observe, "She had her turkey."
- Lillian Bernard, wife of movie producer Harvey Bernard, reported the theft Monday of a jade ring she valued at $15,000. The ring was stolen from their room at Chicago's Hampshire House Hotel. The theives left behind other jewelry valued at $50,000.

Takeoff procedure cuts jet noise: study

"new ATA" procedure after the Air Transport Assn. which promotes its use, and three other less used takeoff procedures.

OF THE SIX, the Washington National procedure creates the least noise within 11.5 miles of the start of the runway, according to the study.

Beyond 12 miles, the Washington National procedure is the loudest of the six. However, by that distance the jets are so high that little noise reaches the ground, the study says.

The study warns that a critical factor in determining which procedure is best for a particular airport is whether dense population exists near the airport. Dense populations do exist near both the O'Hare and the Washington National Airport. Despite this parallel, the Washington National procedure is not used at O'Hare.

The Washington National procedure differs in one critical way from the Northwest Orient procedure. The Washington procedure involves flying up the Potomac River until sufficient altitude is gained. Some antinoise advocates have suggested expressways here could take the place of the Potomac River, enabling the Washington procedure to be used here.

One part of the Mitre study compares areas subjected to moderately loud noise and intensely loud noise. The "new ATA" procedure fares poorly in this respect, while the Washington National procedure gets high marks.

ANOTHER PART of the study compares time during which airport neighbors endure intensely loud noise and unbearably loud noise. Here, too, the "new ATA" procedure fares poorly, while the Washington National procedure and the Northwest Orient procedure both get high grades.

Noise experts use a special scale to measure the loudness of noise over a 24-hour period. The scale is called "Ldn" for day-night sound levels Noise-created discomfort is measured over a full day with nighttime noises considered 10 times more irritating

Moderate noise is noise at 65 LDN, intense noise is 75 Ldn, and unbearable noise is 85 Ldn.

John Tyler, technical consultant to NOISE, described the three noise levels in terms of exasperation of people who must endure the noise.

Tyler said noise at 65 Ldn is loud enough for most people to complain about, but not loud enough for them to hire lawyers to help fight it. Noise at 75 Ldn often is sufficient to impel people to spend hundreds of dollars each to form organizations and hire legal counsel. Noise at 85 Ldn is too loud for human beings to endure

AIRCRAFT NOISE in the Northwest suburbs is in the 65 Ldn to 75 Ldn range, studies have shown

Washington National is one of only two U.S. commercial airports owned and operated by the federal government. Tyler and other NOISE officials contend that Washington National requires the quieter procedure solely because congressmen live beneath the takeoff pattern.

Not all antinoise advocates praised the study.

One former NOISE technical consultant, Lloyd Hinton, questioned the qualifications of the Mitre Corp. for this kind of research and disputed some but not all of the study findings.

Hinton, who currently is minority staff consultant on the aviation and transportation subcommittee of the House Science and Technology Committee in Washington, said the Northwest Orient procedure is quieter than the Washington National procedure. Hinton said he favors adoption of the Northwest procedure in federal law, requiring airlines to use it.

But Hinton agreed the takeoff procedure now used most is far noisier than either the Northwest or Washington National procedure.

TYLER, WHO succeeded Hinton as NOISE consultant, defended Mitre as experienced in noise research. Tyler said the Mitre study supports contentions he has long been making.

The FAA spokesman also defended Mitre The spokesman said Mitre's "qualifications are the highest." He said Mitre has "great expertise" in aviation-noise research, and noted the firm is a nonprofit corporation

The ATA, which is an influential force in development of legislation and regulations affecting airlines, had no comment on the study, pending the recuperation of the association's chief spokesman, who has been ill

One local airline spokesman, however, has gone on record questioning universal application of any single takeoff procedure.

D. D. SMITH, vice president of flight safety and industry affairs at United Airlines' executive headquarters in Elk Grove Township, has said honest differences of opinion exist among top industry executives.

Smith has said the United takeoff procedure, for example, makes more noise over a smaller area, and in United's view "benefits the most number of people."

Officials of Northwest Orient say their takeoff procedure not only reduces noise near the airport, but also requires less fuel and results in less wear and tear on jetliners. In fuel costs alone, the procedure saves $2.5 million annually, airline executives say.

Two complaints about return of security deposits recently were filed with the consumer fraud division by former residents of the Brandenberry Park East apartments, 2424 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights.

In September, Fay Bruhnke, 550 N. Walton Ave., Arlington Heights, complained when Brandenberry withheld all but $1 of her $330 security deposit.

AND LAST MONTH Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Passarella, 101 Heather Ct., Rolling Meadows, filed an objection when they received $100 of their $385 deposit.

Attorneys for Brandenberry said large amounts were withheld because of damages.

William D. Sally, vice president and general manager of the property management division of Baird and Warner, which manages 1,800 apartments, condominiums and offices in the Northwest suburbs, said renters' rights are protected better when they live in buildings run by large organizations.

"If a tenant puts a security deposit with a professional management company his chances of getting it back are better than if he goes with a Ma and Pa organization," he said.

Michael Pensack, chairman of the Evanston Tenants' Organization formed last year, disagreed.

"THERE IS MORE deliberate noncompliance among larger property managers because they are most informed, so when they withhold money it has to be deliberate," he said.

Shirley Ferentz of the Evanston human relations commission, who works closely with Pensack, said that as renters become more aware of their rights, challenges against landlords withholding deposits increase.

"As people become more informed we are seeing more cases," she said. "But I still think it's only the tip of the iceberg. There are a number of owners who think it's their right to withhold security deposits and tenants are historically a very apathetic group and go along with it. So there are many cases we never hear about."

Not all security deposits are withheld fraudulently, however. Sometimes the landlord is the victim.

Marilyn McGee, manager of Baird and Warner's Northwest suburban branch in Arlington Heights, said her company recently spent $300 to fix an area apartment severely damaged by tenants.

HOLES HAD BEEN punched in a door, walls were decorated with nonremovable wallpaper that damaged the drywall and a light fixture had been installed in the ceiling. The security deposit paid for less than half the repairs.

"But we never write it off," she said. "We turn it over to a collection agency and usually recover damages in about 50 per cent of the cases.

"We almost never collect the full amount, but it's definitely worth pursuing to set an example," Mrs. McGee said. "It may be a small percentage of tenants who do the damage, but rent increases are due in part to the cost of repairs so everybody suffers."

Lorenz Garcia, vice president of Quinlan and Tyson, which managed 3,000 apartments from Chicago's North Side to Schaumburg, said damages are rare, but when they occur they are "disasters."

IN ONE NORTHWEST suburban apartment a family caused $1,000 damage by breaking light fixtures, windows and screens, burning holes in the carpet and punching gaps in the walls. The security deposit was $200.

"Our total problem doesn't amount to 1 per cent of tenants a year, but the amount of money involved still makes it a problem," he said.

People

Diane Mermigas

- Pity Janette Tate of York, England. She's allergic to cats, dogs, horses, dust, feathers and even her husband. Mrs. Tate, 21, tends to break out in red blotches around her mouth when her husband kisses her. Allergy specialists said her case was unusual but not unique. Injections and pills should help. Janette and her husband, Steve, have been married 2½ years and it's a problem. If a kiss is too passionate, the area around the mouth goes bright red and Janette says it's "embarrassing to know that I can't kiss my husband properly without my friends knowing about it."
- A pinstriped, vested suited Bob Dylan appeared in a Santa Monica court last week the picture of a junior executive. He was ordered to surrender custody of his children to his ex-wife. The cowboy boots he wore, plain and polished, were the only surviving characteristic of the onetime king of the protest troubadors of the 1960s.
- Madalyn Murray O'Hair has a new ally and a new target in her battle against religion in secular affairs. She and Bill Baird, an Austin, Tex., abortion advocate, are taking on the Catholic Church, urging the boycott of such church ventures as Christian Brothers' wine, Monk's bread and Trappist jams. They want the church to stop lobbying against federally financed abortions for welfare recipients.
- History has a way of repeating itself every so often. Gloria Holfield of Elgin now knows what her mother was going through 18 years ago on Thanksgiving Day. Mrs. Holfield managed to give her mother a real case of indigestion after Thanksgiving Day dinner on Nov. 26, 1959, when she was born. This past Thanksgiving, Mrs. Holfield gave birth to her first child — 7 pound, 11 ounce Michael, named after his father. The second generation mother went without Thanksgiving dinner, leaving her mother, Barbara Zipf, of Streamwood to observe, "She had her turkey."
- Lillian Bernard, wife of movie producer Harvey Bernard, reported the theft Monday of a jade ring she valued at $15,000. The ring was stolen from their room at Chicago's Hampshire House Hotel. The theives left behind other jewelry valued at $50,000.

Takeoff procedure cuts jet noise: study

"new ATA" procedure atfer the Air Transport Assn. which promotes its use, and three other less used takeoff procedures.

OF THE SIX, the Washington National procedure creates the least noise within 11.5 miles of the start of the runway, according to the study.

Beyond 12 miles, the Washington National procedure is the loudest of the six. However, by that distance the jets are so high that little noise reaches the ground, the study says.

The study warns that a critical factor in determining which procedure is best for a particular airport is whether dense population exists near the airport. Dense populations do exist near both the O'Hare and the Washington National Airport. Despite this parallel, the Washington National procedure is not used at O'Hare.

The Washington National procedure differs in one critical way from the Northwest Orient procedure. The Washington procedure involves flying up the Potomac River until sufficient altitude is gained. Some antinoise advocates have suggested expressways here could take the place of the Potomac River, enabling the Washington procedure to be used here.

One part of the Mitre study compares areas subjected to moderately loud noise and intensely loud noise. The "new ATA" procedure fares poorly in this respect, while the Washington National procedure gets high marks.

ANOTHER PART of the study compares time during which airport neighbors endure intensely loud noise and unbearably loud noise. Here, too, the "new ATA" procedure fares poorly, while the Washington National procedure and the Northwest Orient procedure both get high grades.

Noise experts use a special scale to measure the loudness of noise over a 24-hour period. The scale is called "Ldn" for day-night sound levels. Noise-created discomfort is measured over a full day with nighttime noises considered 10 times more irritating.

Moderate noise is noise at 65 LDN, intense noise is 75 Ldn, and unbearable noise is 85 Ldn.

John Tyler, technical consultant to NOISE, described the three noise levels in terms of exasperation of people who must endure the noise.

Tyler said noise at 65 Ldn is loud enough for most people to complain about, but not loud enough for them to hire lawyers to help fight it. Noise at 75 Ldn often is sufficient to impel people to spend hundreds of dollars each to form organizations and hire legal counsel. Noise at 85 Ldn is too loud for human beings to endure.

AIRCRAFT NOISE in the Northwest suburbs is in the 65 Ldn to 75 Ldn range, studies have shown.

Washington National is one of only two U.S. commercial airports owned and operated by the federal government. Tyler and other NOISE officials contend that Washington National requires the quieter procedure solely because congressmen live beneath the takeoff pattern.

Not all antinoise advocates praised the study.

One former NOISE technical consultant, Lloyd Hinton, questioned the qualifications of the Mitre Corp. for this kind of research and disputed some but not all of the study findings.

Hinton, who currently is minority staff consultant on the aviation and transportation subcommittee of the House Science and Technology Committee in Washington, said the Northwest Orient procedure is quieter than the Washington National procedure.

Hinton said he favors adoption of the Northwest procedure in federal law, requiring airlines to use it.

But Hinton agreed the takeoff procedure now used most is far noisier than either the Northwest or Washington National procedure.

TYLER, WHO succeeded Hinton as NOISE consultant, defended Mitre as experienced in noise research. Tyler said the Mitre study supports contentions he has long been making.

The FAA spokesman also defended Mitre. The spokesman said Mitre's "qualifications are the highest." He said Mitre has "great expertise" in aviation-noise research, and noted the firm is a nonprofit corporation.

The ATA, which is an influential force in development of legislation and regulations affecting airlines, had no comment on the study, pending the recuperation of the association's chief spokesman, who has been ill.

One local airline spokesman, however, has gone on record questioning universal application of any single takeoff procedure.

D. D. SMITH, vice president of flight safety and industry affairs at United Airlines' executive headquarters in Elk Grove Township, has said honest differences of opinion exist among top industry executives.

Smith has said the United takeoff procedure, for example, makes more noise over a smaller area, and in United's view "benefits the most number of people."

Officials of Northwest Orient say their takeoff procedure not only reduces noise near the airport, but also requires less fuel and results in less wear and tear on jetliners. In fuel costs alone, the procedure saves $2.5 million annually, airline executives say.

14 indictments set against McAndrew

A Cook County Grand Jury Tuesday handed down at least 14 secret indictments against Michael T. McAndrew, 19, of Elk Grove Village, who police say is the shotgun bandit who has terrorized the Northwest suburbs with at least six armed robberies and three abductions. The indictments stem from charges filed against McAndrew from Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village. More charges are expected to be filed against McAndrew.

McAndrew was arrested in a bar near Bensenville Nov. 22 by Det. Robert Barone of Mount Prospect and Det. Russell Sonneveld of Elk Grove Village who were acting as part of a suburban police task force to capture McAndrew, who had eluded authorities for two months.

'Innocent' Genc plea in Sax case

Ramazon (Tony) Genc, 19, pleaded innocent in Circuit Court Tuesday to charges he concealed the fatal stabbing of a 16-year-old Morton Grove girl. Genc, free on $100,000 bond, is charged with knowing Andrea Sax had been fatally stabbed outside a Skokie elementary school Nov. 6 allegedly by a friend of his, Randall Kraman. Kraman, 16, has been accused in a deliquency petition in the murder of Miss Sax, last seen by her family the night of her death after leaving to visit Kraman, police said.

Vision told con to kill 'bad man'

Roy E. Schultz, a Kansas prison fugitive charged with kidnapping a Metamora family last July, testified in Joliet Tuesday he sexually assaulted a 5-year-old girl because he needed to cleanse himself with the blood of a virgin. Schultz, 42, Springfield, told the seven-man, five-woman jury he saw visions while serving a life term in the Kansas State Penitentiary for killing a Salina, Kan., policeman. Those visions told him to kill a "bad person" to make up for his killing of the policeman, he said. But Schultz had to "cleanse" himself first so the soul of the person he killed would be accepted by God, he told the jury. He said the visions told him to cleanse himself by obtaining the blood of a virgin. One week before the abduction, Schultz escaped from the Kansas prison.

Innocent pleas in prostitute killings

A 22-year-old Evanston man pleaded innocent during his arraignment Tuesday to charges he murdered two women believed to be prostitutes. Joseph F. Miller, charged last month with the murder of Martha Kowalski, 31, and Ann Maxhan, 27, denied he killed the two women, despite testimony from Skokie police he confessed to the killings while in jail on separate charges. Mrs. Kowalski was found dead Nov. 2 in a sleeping bag near Memorial Park Cemetery in Skokie. Miss Maxham was discovered Oct 3, 1976, in an unincorporated area in Lake County near Wauconda

Keane may be out for Christmas

Former Ald. Thomas E. Keane may be released from federal prison on parole in time for Christmas, officials at the Federal Correctional Institution near Lexington, Ky., said Monday. Keane, who went before the parole board last week, will be eligible for parole Dec. 20, when he will have completed 20 months, or one third, of his five-year sentence. Kean, 73, once the most powerful member of the city council, entered the minimum security prison April 20, 1976, after his conviction for mail fraud and conspiracy.

Byrne says she hasn't been refuted

Former Consumer Sales Comr. Jane M. Byrne denied Tuesday her charges in the taxi fare increase episode were refuted by two accountants who she had claimed could verify them. The accountants' statement "had absolutely nothing to do with my charges," Mrs. Byrne said at a news conference. The accountants released the statement as a positive defense for their firm's role in the controversy, she said. Mrs. Byrne was fired from her city cabinet post earlier in the month after charging Chicago Maryor Michael A. Bilandic had "greased" a cab fare increase through the city council. Accountants Bernard J. Sullivan and Thomas A. Tyler of the Bansley and Kiener accounting firm Monday said they were never present with Mrs. Byrne and the Mayor when the cab fare increase was discussed

Korean intelligence plan to infiltrate U.S. disclosed

BUT SOHN, who said he was shown the document in 1976 by the KCIA station chief in Washington, testified he thought "some parts of this plan are inflated" by agency officials trying to impress their bosses in Seoul

With the dramatic spy web allegations, the scope of U S. investigations into convert Korean operations suddenly expands far beyond the congressional influence-peddling charges alrealy under investigation by the House Ethics Committee and the Justice Dept

In summary, the purported Korean document said some of the main goals were

- "Implantation of an intelligence network in the White House," with $100 a month budgeted for "manipulation" of each of three unnamed officials, and four other unidentified aides noted as "targets" for approach
- "Hire paid collaborators" in the office of the speaker of the House and within the Senate leadership, with $18,000 designated for three persons. Also, infiltrate key House and Senate committees dealing with foreign relations, armed services and economic affairs.
- Infiltrate the Joint Chiefs of Staff Office of Policy Planning and an international security office to spy on Far Eastern military policy plans
- Establish an "intelligence network" within the State Dept. to "create friendly relations" with Asian affairs specialists.
- "Strengthen intelligence cooperation" with the U.S. CIA, including efforts financed by "manipulation expenses" — a reference included under many other categories of "plans to be promoted."
- Strengthen ties with appropriate FBI sections, including "gift expenses" for key agents.

OUTSIDE GOVERNMENT circles, the document recommended clandestine efforts to influence the news media, academic and religious organizations

Although there was no specific reference to illegal political campaign payoffs, the document mentioned "support for campaign funds," with the notation this was to be handled under a "separate plan."

As to the news media, the plan said agents should try to "utilize White House reporters to approach and gather intelligence" and should combat "the rising tide of an anti-Republic of Korea editorial trend among U S anti-war journalists."

"THE (1976) plan shows that approximately three-quarters of a million dollars were earmarked to implement these operations and there is a notation indicating that additional funds were to be set aside for congressional campaigns," Fraser said in releasing the document.

"The action taken by the KCIA to implement the plans must be recognized for what it is — outright subversion."

He said subsequent hearing witnesses would support his charges.

New house ready—and vandalized

by THOMAS J. MOORE
and TOM VALEO

The windows and mirrors were broken, holes had been kicked in the walls and the bathroom fixtures were damaged.

But that did not stop Bob and Yvonne Greenburg from moving into their new home in the Strathmore Grove subdivision in Buffalo Grove Tuesday, three months after they were first promised the house.

The Greenburg's home is one of six damaged in a vandalism spree that began in Strathmore Grove Thanksgiving night when vandals set fire to the model home used as the office by Levitt and Sons Construction Co., causing at least $20,000 damage.

"WE'RE STAYING here tonight," Greenburg said while standing in the kitchen of the new home. "If for nothing else, for safety's sake."

Workmen tracked mud and snow in the front door on their way upstairs to repair the estimated $2,000 in damage while movers brought in furniture through the garage.

Mrs. Greenburg said the vandalism made her feel "different" about her new home, and a little afraid.

"At least I was spared seeing it," she said as she cleaned up around the kitchen. "With all the hassle of moving, I didn't need that little extra."

The Greenburgs sold their home in Wheeling long ago and had been paying rent to stay while the completion date on their new home was moved back again and again. They had promised to be out of their old home on Tuesday, so they had to movè, regardless of the vandalism.

VANDALS ALSO damaged the house next to the Greenburgs'.

"It was just a few things, nothing horrendous," said Joel Aronson, who moved into the house Monday. "We're in and happy about being in."

Two windows were broken and the dishwasher was kicked and dented, Aronson said. Outside, the telephone line had been cut before it was buried. It cannot be fixed until spring. Aronson said others in the neighborhood have had the same problem with their telephone cables.

The two houses were the only completed ones in the subdivision to be vandalized during the weekend, a spokesman for Levitt Construction said, and they would have been occupied if bad weather last winter and a shortage of building materials had not delayed completion.

In all, 10 homes in various stages of completion were damaged, the spokesman said, and no delays were expected because of the vandalism. However, the repair bill for the damage could run as high as $50,000, he said.

POLICE HAVE intensified their investigation of the vandalism since the fire in the model home Thanksgiving night. Two fires were started in the house, at the corner of Ill. Rte. 83 and Busch Road, but one fire apparently went out before it did any damage, Long Grove fire officials said.

The vandals also ransacked the office files, overturned furniture and splashed indelible ink used for the duplicating machine on the walls, police said

Gary Deters of the Buffalo Grove Crime Prevention Unit said vandalism at construction sites in the village has occurred in the past. Last summer, after burglars removed the rug from an unoccupied house, members of the unit showed the contractors how to secure their buildings

Police wait for Affairs departure

by PAT DOYLE

An alleged house of prostitution is operating with impunity in Elk Grove Township while businessmen and Cook County Sheriff's police wait for it to close

The police haven't interfered with Affairs, advertised as a men's club at 2407 E. Oakton St., since it agreed five weeks ago to leave Dec. 10. And they have so plans to act before that date

Undercover county sheriff's police don't want to raid the place and reveal their identities because they may be needed in the future to infiltrate similar operations run by the same people, said Sgt. Clark Buckendahl of the county's vice control division

BUCKENDAHL has good reason to believe they may be needed again. The people who run Affairs once operated the Fantasy Travel Club in Leyden Township, he said, adding they will offer prostitution as long as possible in one location before moving somewhere else

"They open in another location and then we start all over again," Buckendahl said. "One of the reasons I'm not going back in there is that I don't want another officer identified by those people."

Sheriff's police arrested Brenda Smith, 26 of Chicago, and Jack Michaels, 34, of Schiller Park, during a raid of Affairs Sept. 23. Smith was charged with prostitution and Michaels with keeping a house of prostitution. They are to appear in circuit court Dec. 19.

But the arrests didn't stop Affairs which reopened the next day.

A suit by the owners of the Oakton Street building to evict the club was more successful. George Denur, of Chicago, the reported proprietor of Affairs, agreed to pay owners Jack Skaathan and Robert Nogan $1,000 and get out of the building by Dec. 10 in return for dropping the suit

"TO BE PERFECTLY honest they are going to be out whether we make any arrests or not,' Buckendahl said "We know they are going to be out of there. Our problem is settled "

But Buckendahl said he doesn't expect Affairs to move by the Dec. 10 deadline. Fantasy Travel Club stalled past its eviction date in order to get as much business as possible, he said.

"If they have not left we will go back into court and get an order to throw them out of the building," he said That would happen within a few days of the Dec. 10 deadline, Buckendahl said

Skaathan said he and his attorney have discussed the possibility that the club won't leave by Dec. 10. However, he is confident it will be gone soon.

"THAT'S SOMETHING I'll have to face when the times comes,' Skaathan said.

Stalling past the Dec 10 deadline wouldn't surprise Lawrence Fretzin, Skaathan's attorney, who said more than a month ago that delay was the name of the game for the club.

"The longer they delay, the more money they make," he said.

3 girls charged in school arson

Two 15-year-old Arlington Heights girls were charged Tuesday in connection with setting fires last Wednesday in the five women's washrooms at Arlington High School, 302 W. Euclid Ave

Police said Tuesday's arrests came after a 14-year-old girl, charged Monday in connections with the fires, implicated the two 15-year-olds.

Police said the three girls set fires between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. in two washrooms on the east wing of the second floor and three washrooms on the west wing of the first floor of the school. The girls were charged in juvenile petitions with criminal damage to property, police said.

The 14-year-old, reportedly a runaway, was taken Monday to the Audy Juvenile Home, Chicago. The other two girls were released to their parents, police said.

All three are to appear 9 a.m. Dec. 14 in the Skokie branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

'Bad Seed' at Wheeling High

Maxwell Anderson's 'Bad Seed' is the winter production to be presented by Wheeling High School's theater department at 8 p.m. today, Thursday and Sunday in the school's Little Theater, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., Wheeling.

The "Bad Seed" centers around a murderer operating behind the innocence of youth.

The play features an abstract set consisting of a series of platforms at center stage Director Jack Morgan said the drama is the most abstract production in Wheeling's history.

Tickets are $1.25 in advance and $1.50 at the door. For ticket information, call 337-6500

New house ready—and vandalized

by THOMAS J. MOORE
and TOM VALEO

The windows and mirrors were broken, holes had been kicked in the walls and the bathroom fixtures were damaged.

But that did not stop Bob and Yvonne Greenburg from moving into their new home in the Strathmore Grove subdivision in Buffalo Grove Tuesday, three months after they were first promised the house.

The Greenburg's home is one of six damaged in a vandalism spree that began in Strathmore Grove Thanksgiving night when vandals set fire to the model home used as the office by Levitt and Sons Construction Co., causing at least $20,000 damage.

"WE'RE STAYING here tonight," Greenburg said while standing in the kitchen of the new home. "If for nothing else, for safety's sake."

Workmen tracked mud and snow in the front door on their way upstairs to repair the estimated $2,000 in damage while movers brought in furniture through the garage.

Mrs. Greenburg said the vandalism made her feel "different" about her new home, and a little afraid.

"At least I was spared seeing it," she said as she cleaned up around the kitchen. "With all the hassle of moving, I didn't need that little extra."

The Greenburgs sold their home in Wheeling long ago and had been paying rent to stay while the completion date on their new home was moved back again and again. They had promised to be out of their old home on Tuesday, so they had to move, regardless of the vandalism.

VANDALS ALSO damaged the house next to the Greenburgs'.

"It was just a few things, nothing horrendous," said Joel Aronson, who moved into the house Monday. "We're in and happy about being in."

Two windows were broken and the dishwasher was kicked and dented, Aronson said. Outside, the telephone line had been cut before it was buried. It cannot be fixed until spring. Aronson said others in the neighborhood have had the same problem with their telephone cables.

The two houses were the only completed ones in the subdivision to be vandalized during the weekend, a spokesman for Levitt Construction said, and they would have been occupied if bad weather last winter and a shortage of building materials had not delayed completion.

In all, 10 homes in various stages of completion were damaged, the spokesman said, and no delays were expected because of the vandalism. However, the repair bill for the damage could run as high as $50,000, he said.

POLICE HAVE intensified their investigation of the vandalism since the fire in the model home Thanksgiving night. Two fires were started in the house, at the corner of Ill. Rte. 83 and Busch Road, but one fire apparently went out before it did any damage, Long Grove fire officials said.

The vandals also ransacked the office files, overturned furniture and splashed indelible ink used for the duplicating machine on the walls, police said.

Gary Deters of the Buffalo Grove Crime Prevention Unit said vandalism at construction sites in the village has occurred in the past. Last summer, after burglars removed the rug from an unoccupied house, members of the unit showed the contractors how to secure their buildings.

Police wait for Affairs departure

by PAT DOYLE

An alleged house of prostitution is operating with impunity in Elk Grove Township while businessmen and Cook County Sheriff's police wait for it to close.

The police haven't interfered with Affairs, advertised as a men's club at 2407 E. Oakton St., since it agreed five weeks ago to leave Dec. 10. And they have so plans to act before that date.

Undercover county sheriff's police don't want to raid the place and reveal their identities because they may be needed in the future to infiltrate similar operations run by the same people, said Sgt. Clark Buckendahl of the county's vice control division.

BUCKENDAHL has good reason to believe they may be needed again. The people who run Affairs once operated the Fantasy Travel Club in Leyden Township, he said, adding they will offer prostitution as long as possible in one location before moving somewhere else.

"They open in another location and then we start all over again," Buckendahl said. "One of the reasons I'm not going back in there is that I don't want another officer identified by those people."

Sheriff's police arrested Brenda Smith, 26, of Chicago, and Jack Michaels, 34, of Schiller Park, during a raid of Affairs Sept. 23. Smith was charged with prostitution and Michaels with keeping a house of prostitution. They are to appear in circuit court Dec. 19.

But the arrests didn't stop Affairs, which reopened the next day.

A suit by the owners of the Oakton Street building to evict the club was more successful. George Demir, of Chicago, the reported proprietor of Affairs, agreed to pay owners Jack Skaathan and Robert Nogan $1,600 and get out of the building by Dec. 10 in return for dropping the suit.

"If they have not left we will go back into court and get an order to throw them out of the building," he said. That would happen within a few days of the Dec. 10 deadline, Buckendahl said.

Skaathan said he and his attorney have discussed the possibility that the club won't leave by Dec. 10. However, he is confident it will be gone soon.

Johnson wants out of FBI post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alabama federal judge Frank Johnson Tuesday asked to be withdrawn from nomination as FBI director for reasons of health reopening the talent hunt for a successor to the retiring Clarence Kelley

Announcing Johnson's decision in Washington, Atty Gen Griffin Bell — who personally chose the Alabaman — said he would "let the dust settle" for two weeks before proposing a replacement nominee to President Carter

Later Johnson issued a formal statement through his Alabama office saying, "I have this date formally requested the president of the United States to withdraw my nomination to be the director of the FBI."

HE NOTED HE had undergone surgery for a ballooned abdominal artery in August, just after Carter nominated him and added: "My rate of recovery is very slow.

"It is evident to me that it will be several more months before I will regain my strength and stamina. It will not be fair to the FBI or me to keep this matter pending further."

"Judge Johnson made the decision on his own," Bell told reporters in Washington

"For me, this is, of course, a most unfortunate turn of events. It is also unfortunate for the president, for the FBI and the nation."

JOHNSON, 59, underwent successful surgery Aug 26 for the condition known as an abdominal aortic aneurysm, but later developed hernias that weakened his condition.

Asked how he will choose a replacement, Bell said he will wait two weeks "to let the dust settle . . . let things calm down, percolate, and hope some lightning might strike during that two weeks."

But he said he will consult with Kelley soon, apparently to ask if the outgoing director will serve beyond his scheduled Jan, 1 retirement date until Johnson's replacement can be confirmed by the Senate. Kelley has said he might stay on another three months

Otherwise, a high FBI official may be named acting director.

Bell said he told Carter last week Johnson was "having second thoughts . . so this is not a complete surprise to the president."

Bell selected Johnson Aug 17 after searching nearly eight months

HE INTERVIEWED 100 applicants himself, then persuaded Carter in February to name a nine-member search commission to help screen prospects

The commission eventually gave Carter a list of five names — none of them Johnson's — on June 20. But Bell continued his own search after that

Bell said he has not ruled out the commission's five choices but will not be bound by them.

Woman escapes serious harm when train hits car

A 30-year-old Chicago woman escaped serious injury early Tuesday when the rear of her car was rammed by a Chicago & North Western commuter train in Palatine, causing the vehicle to spin in two complete circles before coming to rest about 100 feet away

Alice J Jones suffered minor facial cuts when the four-car train struck her westbound car at 1 30 a.m. near the left rear bumper at the crossing on Palatine Road about 300 feet west of the Hale Street intersection, Palatine It was the second train accident in the suburbs in as many days

She was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights The engineer, David Daruszka 27, of Evanston, and the train's passengers were not injured, police said

POLICE SAID witnesses told them the signals and crossing gates were not functioning when Ms. Jones crossed the tracks.

"I never thought of looking for the train before crossing because a car ahead of me went through the tracks and made it," Ms. Jones said. "Looking back though, I guess I'm pretty lucky "

A 36-year-old Libertyville woman was killed Monday when her car was struck broadside by a Milwaukee Road commuter train at the St. Mary's Road crossing near Ill. Rte. 176 Libertyville. Leona Poehler was killed instantly in the collision, police said

Lake County Sheriff's police said that accident also may have resulted after signal lights did not go on.

Carter's 6-nation trip set Dec. 29

President Carter now plans to leave about Dec. 29 on a scaled down version of his postponed world tour, with prospective stops in six nations over nine days, administration sources said Tuesday The sources said they expected the White House to announce, within the next few days ,that Carter will leave around that date and will visit, in order, Poland, India, Iran, Saudi Arabia, France and Belgium. They said current plans have him returning to Washington Jan. 6. Highlights of the rescheduled trip, they said, would include a news conference in Warsaw and a whistle stop train trip to the Normandy coast of France, where allied troops landed on D-Day, 1944, with French President Valery Giscard D Estaing

14 college students found safe

Fourteen Canadian college students on a winter weekend camping trip were found safe Tuesday after spending three days trapped on a cold, snow-covered mountainside in northern Vermont The hikers, aged 16 to 20, were cold and tired but generally in good condition. Three of the most fatigued were taken from rugged 3,800-foot Jay Peak by an Air Force helicopter. The others hiked out to where they were met by rescuers on snowmobiles from a nearby ski area. "Spirits were high throughout," said hike leader Jamie Burbush, 19, of Montreal

"The first thing we asked the rescue team was who won the Grey Cup" He said, referring to the Canadian football championship game played Sunday "We didn't get lost — we just got snowed in and decided to wait it out "

Teachers close 13 Cleveland schools

Nearly 1 000 Cleveland teachers stayed off the job Tuesday and forced the closing of 13 schools in a protest over court action which has stopped their paychecks. An estimated 11,000 students were sent home, according to one school official. The official said the majority of the 180 public schools were open and 80 per cent of the teachers did report for work. The absenteeism was greater than Monday, when about 700 teachers reported off sick. "We are continuing efforts to try to resolve the problem as quickly as possible," said School Board President Harold Pinkney.

The teachers and other school employes were not paid as scheduled last Wednesday due to a financial problem stemming from conflicting court orders. The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati heard arguments Monday and is expected to rule this week on which order should take precedence.

Davis' mistress told: give up kids

A divorce court judge in Fort Worth, Tex. has ordered the mistress of T Cullen Davis to give up her two children "while she pursues her own happiness and her affair" with the millionaire industrialist. Judge Joe Eidson acted on a request by Mrs. Master's estranged husband who had custody of the children while Davis, 44, and Mrs. Master, 29, were on a weekend skiing trip in Aspen, Colo. The court action apparently caught Mrs. Master by surprise. When she and Davis returned to Texas late Monday, she was unable to locate the children— Walter Adrian Master III, 9, and Chesley Joseph Master, 6 — and called reporters to say they were missing. Judge Eidson has scheduled a hearing Dec. 6 to determine if he should issue a permanent injunction against Mrs Master to replace the temporary one now imposed.

Los Angeles cops probe girl's death

The nude body of a young woman was found in a hilly area of Los Angeles Glassell Park Tuesday and police were trying to determine if her death was related to 11 other girls and young women whose bodies have been discovered in the past six weeks. It was not immediately determined whether the latest victim had been strangled or sexually molested, as were most of the other victims. Her body was found about 8 a.m. in a hilly area of the park, about three miles from where the body of the 11th victim — that of Jane King, 28, West Hollywood — turned up in a brushy area of the Golden State Freeway. The body was about two miles from where two other victims, Sonja Johnson, 14, and Dolores Cepeda, 12, were found strangled in a remote ravine in Elysian Park.

Johnson wants out of FBI post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alabama federal judge Frank Johnson Tuesday asked to be withdrawn from nomination as FBI director for reasons of health reopening the talent hunt for a successor to the retiring Clarence Kelley.

Announcing Johnson's decision in Washington, Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell — who personally chose the Alabaman — said he would "let the dust settle" for two weeks before proposing a replacement nominee to President Carter.

Later, Johnson issued a formal statement through his Alabama office saying, "I have this date formally requested the president of the United States to withdraw my nomination to be the director of the FBI."

HE NOTED HE had undergone surgery for a ballooned abdominal artery in August, just after Carter nominated him, and added: "My rate of recovery is very slow.

"It is evident to me that it will be several more months before I will regain my strength and stamina. It will not be fair to the FBI or me to keep this matter pending further."

"Judge Johnson made the decision on his own," Bell told reporters in Washington.

"For me, this is, of course, a most unfortunate turn of events. It is also unfortunate for the president, for the FBI and the nation."

JOHNSON, 59, underwent successful surgery Aug. 26 for the condition known as an abdominal aortic aneurysm, but later developed hernias that weakened his condition.

Asked how he will choose a replacement, Bell said he will wait two weeks "to let the dust settle . . . let things calm down, percolate, and hope some lightning might strike during that two weeks."

But he said he will consult with Kelley soon, apparently to ask if the outgoing director will serve beyond his scheduled Jan. 1 retirement date until Johnson's replacement can be confirmed by the Senate. Kelley has said he might stay on another three months.

Otherwise, a high FBI official may be named acting director.

Bell said he told Carter last week Johnson was "having second thoughts . . . so this is not a complete surprise to the president."

Bell selected Johnson Aug. 17 after searching nearly eight months.

HE INTERVIEWED 100 applicants himself, then persuaded Carter in February to name a nine-member search commission to help screen prospects.

The commission eventually gave Carter a list of five names — none of them Johnson's — on June 20. But Bell continued his own search after that.

Bell said he has not ruled out the commission's five choices but will not be bound by them.

Woman escapes serious harm when train hits car

A 30-year-old Chicago woman escaped serious injury early Tuesday when the rear of her car was rammed by a Chicago & North Western commuter train in Palatine, causing the vehicle to spin in two complete circles before coming to rest about 100 feet away.

Alice J. Jones suffered minor facial cuts when the four-car train struck her westbound car at 1:30 a.m. near the left rear bumper at the crossing on Palatine Road about 300 feet west of the Hale Street intersection, Palatine. It was the second train accident in the suburbs in as many days.

She was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. The engineer, David Daruszka, 27, of Evanston, and the train's passengers were not injured, police said.

POLICE SAID witnesses told them the signals and crossing gates were not functioning when Ms. Jones crossed the tracks.

"I never thought of looking for the train before crossing because a car ahead of me went through the tracks and made it," Ms. Jones said. "Looking back though, I guess I'm pretty lucky."

Fugitive gives up, but still free

by DANN GIRE

A man wanted by Rolling Meadows police recently walked into a Hawaii police station, saying he wanted to return to Illinois and face criminal charges, but a dispute between two local police agencies over who will bring him back has allowed the fugitive to remain free to act as a narcotics informant for police in Hawaii.

The bizarre tale of Kevin Smith, 20, began Nov. 4 in Kona, Hawaii, when he walked into the local police station to give himself up.

Capt. Raymond Glory of the Kona police said Smith "turned himself in and told us he was wanted"

"We contacted the police (in Rolling Meadows) and found out he was" he said "We're now awaiting fugitive warrants that will allow us to pick him up"

SMITH, 1608 SYCAMORE Dr., Rolling Meadows, disappeared in October, just before he was scheduled to stand trial on several charges of armed robbery in the area. He also is facing one count of aggravated assault for allegedly threatening his mother Aug 21 in her Rolling Meadows home while holding off police for one hour.

Rolling Meadows police arranged to extradite Smith by preparing warrants to be sent Nov. 14 to Hawaii. But before the warrants could be sent, detectives received a letter from Lt. Bernard Singer of the Cook County Sheriff's Police fugitive section, saying extradition would be handled by his department.

But warrants from Singer's office weren't mailed until Friday, almost two weeks later than the Rolling Meadows warrants would have been sent. By Tuesday, the U S Treasury Dept in Hawaii reported that Smith has been jumping from island to island offering himself as a narcotics informant to local police departments.

HE WAS LAST seen Tuesday trying to become a narcotics informant in Honolulu, authorities said.

"This is the most unusual thing I've ever heard of," Lewis Case, Rolling Meadows police chief, said. "I can't understand how the Hawaii police departments allow themselves to be conned by this man. They shouldn't have let him out in the first place"

"I'm disappointed in the Hawaii police This whole thing is beginning to be a real laugh," Case said. "You can't use a wanted man as an informant to buy narcotics"

Lt Francis Brown of the Hilo Police Dept. said that even if police know where Smith is, they still can't arrest him without a fugitive warrant, which had not yet been received early this week

WHEN SMITH originally contacted police, he reportedly waived extradition proceedings, which would have enabled Illinois police to bring him back with a minimum of effort. But authorities didn't hold him.

Rolling Meadows Sgt. Charles Smith said the fugitive surrendered because "getting extradited doesn't cost him anything"

"It's a free ride home," he said

Why the county took a sudden interest in extraditing Smith after Rolling Meadows police already had made plans to go was not certain

One investigator, who asked not to be identifed, said there was no question in his mind that "somebody from the county wants to go to Hawaii pretty bad"

BUT SINGER, of the county fugitive section, said the county will extradite Smith when he is caught, for "legal reasons" He did not elaborate

Singer said it "is the responsibility of my department to see that fugitives are extradited" and "it is my decision to make" on who goes to extradite a prisoner

Singer admitted that "usually, almost always we let the local authorities handle it (extradition)" after his department receives a written request from the local police chief. Singer said he had received such a letter from Case

Case said there still is a good chance that his men will be sent to pick up Smith "if the police over there can apprehend him. (Cook) County has always given us a fair shake at these things"

Hayter says Longmeyer decided to fire employes

Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter testified Tuesday that neither she nor the village board made any decisions to fire 28 public works employes on July 21, 1973, two days after they staged a one-day strike.

In her second day on the witness stand at the Daley Center Chicago Mrs. Hayter said the decision to fire the employes came from Village Mgr George Longmeyer, who can hire and fire village employes according to municipal ordinance.

Seventeen of the employes filed a lawsuit over the firings four years ago, maintaining the action was improper. They are seeking reinstatement and full backpay to the date of the terminations.

MRS. Hayter told Circuit Court Judge Joseph M. Wosik that the firings were not the act of the village board, but trustees did render a consensus of support for Longmeyer.

She admitted, though, that statements she made at a village board meeting July 23, 1973, indicate she and the board had a role in the firings She testified Monday it was her "personal opinion" that the employes should have been fired the day of the strike.

Dale Berry, attorney for the employes, said Tuesday he will attempt to show that Mrs. Hayter and the village board "influenced Longmeyer to make the decision to fire the employes" an action that is against a municipal ordinance that prohibits the board or its president from "interfering" with the manager's responsibilities.

Correction

A story in the Nov. 26 edition of the Daily Herald attributed a quote to the wrong person. The manager of Musicland store at Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg, said people were shopping early this year because "maybe they know what a zoo it is now." The quote in the story was incorrectly attributed to a Long Grove store owner The Daily Herald regrets the error.

by DANN GIRE

A man wanted by Rolling Meadows police recently walked into a Hawaii police station, saying he wanted to return to Illinois and face criminal charges, but a dispute between two local police agencies over who will bring him back has allowed the fugitive to remain free to act as a narcotics informant for police in Hawaii.

The bizarre tale of Kevin Smith, 20, began Nov. 4 in Kona, Hawaii, when he walked into the local police station to give himself up.

Capt. Raymond Glory of the Kona police said Smith "turned himself in and told us he was wanted."

"We contacted the police (in Rolling Meadows) and found out he was," he said. "We're now awaiting fugitive warrants that will allow us to pick him up."

SMITH, 4608 SYCAMORE Dr., Rolling Meadows, disappeared in October, just before he was scheduled to stand trial on several charges of armed robbery in the area. He also is facing one count of aggravated assault for allegedly threatening his mother Aug. 21 in her Rolling Meadows home while holding off police for one hour.

Rolling Meadows police arranged to extradite Smith by preparing warrants to be sent Nov. 14 to Hawaii. But before the warrants could be sent, detectives received a letter from Lt. Bernard Singer of the Cook County Sheriff's Police fugitive section, saying extradition would be handled by his department.

But warrants from Singer's office weren't mailed until Friday, almost two weeks later than the Rolling Meadows warrants would have been sent. By Tuesday, the U.S. Treasury Dept. in Hawaii reported that Smith has been jumping from island to island, offering himself as a narcotics informant to local police departments.

HE WAS LAST seen Tuesday trying to become a narcotics informant in Honolulu, authorities said.

"This is the most unusual thing I've ever heard of," Lewis Case, Rolling Meadows police chief, said. "I can't understand how the Hawaii police departments allow themselves to be conned by this man. They shouldn't have let him out in the first place."

"I'm disappointed in the Hawaii police. This whole thing is beginning to be a real laugh," Case said. "You can't use a wanted man as an informant to buy narcotics."

Lt. Francis Brown of the Hilo Police Dept. said that even if police know where Smith is, they still can't arrest him without a fugitive warrant, which had not yet been received early this week.

WHEN SMITH originally contacted police, he reportedly waived extradition proceedings, which would have enabled Illinois police to bring him back with a minimum of effort. But authorities didn't hold him.

Rolling Meadows Sgt. Charles Smith said the fugitive surrendered because "getting extradited doesn't cost him anything."

"It's a free ride home," he said.

Why the county took a sudden interest in extraditing Smith after Rolling Meadows police already had made plans to go was not certain.

One investigator, who asked not to be identiifed, said there was no question in his mind that "somebody from the county wants to go to Hawaii pretty bad."

BUT SINGER, of the county fugitive section, said the county will extradite Smith when he is caught, for "legal reasons." He did not elaborate.

Singer said it "is the responsibility of my department to see that fugitives are extradited" and "it is my decision to make" on who goes to extradite a prisoner.

Singer admitted that "usually, almost always we let the local authorities handle it (extradition)" after his department receives a written request from the local police chief. Singer said he had received such a letter from Case.

Case said there still is a good chance that his men will be sent to pick up Smith "if the police over there can apprehend him. (Cook) County has always given us a fair shake at these things."

Hayter says Longmeyer decided to fire employes

Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter testified Tuesday that neither she nor the village board made any decisions to fire 28 public works employes on July 21, 1973, two days after they staged a one-day strike.

In her second day on the witness stand at the Daley Center, Chicago, Mrs. Hayter said the decision to fire the employes came from Village Mgr. George Longmeyer, who can hire and fire village employes according to municipal ordinance.

Seventeen of the employes filed a lawsuit over the firings four years ago, maintaining the action was improper. They are seeking reinstatement and full backpay to the date of the terminations.

MRS. Hayter told Circuit Court Judge Joseph M. Wosik that the firings were not the act of the village board, but trustees did render a consensus of support for Longmeyer.

She admitted, though, that statements she made at a village board meeting July 23, 1973, indicate she and the board had a role in the firings. She testified Monday it was her "personal opinion" that the employes should have been fired the day of the strike.

Dale Berry, attorney for the employes, said Tuesday he will attempt to show that Mrs. Hayter and the village board "influenced Longmeyer to make the decision to fire the employes," an action that is against a municipal ordinance that prohibits the board or its president from "interfering" with the manager's responsibilities.

Correction

A story in the Nov. 26 edition of the Daily Herald attributed a quote to the wrong person. The manager of Musicland store at Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg, said people were shopping early this year because "maybe they know what a zoo it is now." The quote in the story was incorrectly attributed to a Long Grove store owner. The Daily Herald regrets the error.

EDITORIALS THE DAILY HERALD

[illegible] fear God, tell the truth and make [illegible]

Sadat generates momentum on Mideast peace

Egyptian Pres. Anwar Sadat clearly is not going to let the momentum generated by his trip to Israel die.

Word that the Egyptian and Israeli delegations to the United Nations had direct contact Monday with the delivery of an invitation to Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan by the Egyptian ambassador is a further sign that the Mideast situation is not going to return to the state it was in before Sadat's courageous initiative.

An Israeli delegation is making plans for a trip to Cairo late this week for a conference which Sadat hopes will be the prelude to full-scale peace talks. The fact that many of the Arab leaders invited to the conference have rejected their invitation is disheartening but does not obscure the fact that progress still seems to be being made.

The Cairo peace conference may result in more genuine strides to peace in the Mideast, with the Egyptians and Israelis, at least, solidifying the contacts between them.

Once those bonds are solid, the next item on Sadat's agenda — and that of Israeli leaders — will be to overcome the major "insurmountable" block to Middle East peace — the status of the Palestinians.

The leadership of the Palestine Liberation Organization has denounced Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin has shown little flexibility in his refusal to deal with the PLO.

Until the impasse between Israel and the Palestinians can be resolved, any progress made toward permanent Mideast peace must, of necessity, be hung from a tenuous thread.

Overcoming this block toward peace will take more than hopeful gestures. Nevertheless, the progress that has been made so far, largely through Sadat's initiative, has made it clear that insurmountable odds can be overcome.

For the first time since 1948, peace in the Middle East does not seem an unrealistic dream. And that, as the Israeli delegation prepares to head for Cairo, means that compromises that today seem impossible may yet be achieved.

McClellan's era ending

U.S. Sen. John L. McClellan, an institution in his home state of Arkansas, died in his sleep Monday.

His death helps close an era of old-school Southern Democrats who bitterly fought civil rights legislation and were known for their conservative stands on issues.

Born a poor country boy, McClellan overcame a life of personal tragedies to become one of the most powerful senators in American history.

At 81, he was the oldest member of the Senate and had the longest record of continuing service on Capitol Hill, having represented Arkansas for 43 years.

McClellan gained national recognition as a "rackets buster" in the 1950's when he served as chairman of the Senate Investigations Subcommittee.

The Teamsters Union and its bosses, James Hoffa and David Beck, were the main targets of his committee which played an instrumental role in gathering information to send the two to jail.

He was also a champion of anti-crime legislation, supporting several bills to modify Supreme Court decisions on interrogation of suspects and wiretapping.

McClellan, who was once characterized as a "Baptist preacher in boxing gloves," leaves behind a legacy that will not soon be forgotten.

As a parent of two students in Elk Grove Twp. Dist. 59, and a board member of Juliette Low School P.T.O., I must protest the biased reporting of the promotion policy adapted by the school board.

Your incomplete reporting, overemphasizing the Iowa Test in student promotional evaluation, caused needless apprehension among the students and their parents at the very moment the tests were being administered.

This year you must take a certain amount of responsibility for a drop in percentile levels due to this apprehension.

A stumbling block to the new policy now exists, since many parents refused to allow their children to take the tests. Without some guidelines, how are we parents to assist our children in becoming persons who are able to function in our society?

I enjoy opening The Daily Herald each morning and reading about the activities which influence my community. I only hope, in the future, it is more complete in reporting the news rather than attempting to influence the news.

Judith L. Anderson
Arlington Heights

REGARDING YOUR Nov. 15 editorial on Elk Grove Twp. Dist. 59's adoption of a promotion policy, you brought up a very interesting word — "attitude." You stated it alone is not good enough and that the public is fed up with alibis from educators.

Do you think it is the proper "attitude" for at least two school board members to openly admit that they are "using" our children to "get" the superintendent and administrators? The word is important to me when it comes to my children.

I think if you had followed up on what the majority of the public really wants you would find their "attitude" is the same as mine. No one should be able to "use" our children for any purpose. It is evident that you think very highly of the "fearless foursome", but do you feel that this is proper conduct for elected officials on a school board?

May I quote from some material put out by the Illinois Association of School Boards. "Good school boards enact major policies only after all sides of the matter have been studied and all persons or groups affected have been consulted. Good boards attempt to reach decisions that all its members can support. Etc., etc., etc."

Good school boards do not "use" children to take their personal gripes out on people whom they admittedly distrust.

If certain school board members have any specific facts (excluding Iowa Test Scores) that they are concerned about, why don't they bring them out in the open? Don't go running into executive session, unless of course, you are "only talking about personalities."

If board members can take only the time to look at sheets of statistics after they are graded, we are in desperate trouble. I for one, am "fed up" with the dissension created by board members, who are supposed to serve the public, rather than alleged "alibis" from educators that have not been proven to me.

Joan Shannon

I AM A CONCERNED parent who must speak out for the struggling students in their final year in grammar school, regarding the new promotion policy in Dist. 59.

If this policy had been in force last year, my own eighth grader more than likely would have been retained because his reading level was not up to the level required in the new policy.

Our duty in education should be to encourage, not discourage, students from moving ahead. Last year, I feel, my son's teachers did their best to encourage him to move forward every step of the way. They never gave up on him. The special service team teachers helped him to gain the self-confidence he sorely needed.

This year as a Forest View freshman he came home with two A's and three B's on his first report card. He is proud and so am I.

My questions to the Dist 59 school board are these: what if my son had been retained·

- Wouldn't he have lost the self-confidence he had slowly gained during his years at Dempster?
- Would he, perhaps, through failing, become a potential dropout?
- Would he have looked ahead to going back to school with the same enthusiasm he had in the past nine years of school?

I am glad he was given the chance of being promoted by teachers who had a positive attitude and faith in a struggling student. Not every student will meet this newly required promotion policy. I also know there are exceptions to every rule. But we must be very careful when we start failing students in Dist. 59.

I repeat, our duty in education is to encourage rather than discourage those students who need it the most, most especially in the very decisive year of eighth grade.

I know now that not all the scheming, sneaky idiots are in Washington. We have quite a few on our own school board!

'Breeder reactors bad technology'

In Fence Post, Nov. 25, Michael Twaddell states that breeder reactors can "increase the energy recoverable from nuclear sources." While that is correct, it is probable that no net energy will result from breeder reactors. John H. Price has written a detailed, technical analysis in "Non-Nuclear Futures," by Amory Lovins and Price. The enormous amounts of energy used to construct the reactors, mine and concentrate the fuel, process and store the wastes will exceed the energy produced by this bad form of technology. Much of that power will come from our rapidly dwindling stocks of petroleum, gas and coal.

Twadell also states, ". . . radioactive material decays at a fairly rapid rate." Some isotopes do, but others are literally permanently radioactive after being created in reactors. They also produce the more hazardous types of radiation. Iodine -129 has a "half-life" exceeding 17 million years. Plutonium-239, the desired fuel to be made in breeder reactors, has a half-life of 24,000 years and its dangers need no further discussion here.

Twaddell is unconcerned about special police to attend the nuclear fuel cycle. Reasoning to chill the reader's blood may be found in an article in Foreign Affairs, October, 1976, by Amory Lovins. Such a force would exceed in size and powers any needed to control aviation problems.

Twaddell and others may also be unaware of recent great increases in uranium fuel costs. "Yellowcake," the material from which Uranium 235 is concentrated has risen from $6 to $8 to about $42 per pound. These new costs will have serious consequences for the nuclear industry. Commonwealth Edison alone has its own sources of uranium ore which will allow it to keep its prices moderate, presumably.

Another intractable problem will be the disposal of nuclear power plants themselves after their service lives of about 40 years. The cobalt-60 in their structures alone will prevent their removel for over a century. Dismantling and removal afterward will be costly and difficult. Otherwise they must be sealed away for perhaps 500,000 years.

Ms. Quigg's concern, which prompted Twaddell's letter, is more than well founded.

There's some good in the news

It's Friday morning, 1:50 a.m. and I am baking a bundt cake. I couldn't find peace with myself unless I baked it, for I promised to bring it to a church meeting tonight.

I am baking this cake at this hour because I couldn't bake it earlier. My car broke down at 9:30 p.m. in the parking lot of Venture. I assumed it was my distributor cap because the dumb thing always falls off. I have learned what it looks like and how to shove it back on. This time, my effort didn't make the car start.

I approached the first man I saw. He was about 40 and was with his son, who looked about 10. I told him my car wouldn't start because of my distributor cap. He fiddled with it and it came apart. He called it something and said, "Lady, you really need a new one. Let's go into the store and see what we can do."

The store people were super. Although they didn't have the part, they had some funny glue. The man — whose name is Jerry — and I proceeded back to my car. His son had been told to stay by his father's car, but had accidentally shut the car door, locking them out. That didn't bother Jerry. He just went ahead and fixed my car by gluing the cap back together.

I drove him home since after all his trouble he couldn't get into his car. I asked his name. He said, "Why?" I said, "Because nice people like you should not go unnoticed." He merely smiled and said, "Maybe our paths will cross again someday."

Jerry, I am writing this note for you and for all those nice folks we seldom hear about. I am sending this note to The Daily Herald in the hopes our paths do cross again. Maybe you'll read this and smile genuinely from the heart.

Thank you. It does me good to have met you.

Sadat generates momentum on Mideast peace

Egyptian Pres. Anwar Sadat clearly is not going to let the momemtum generated by his trip to Israel die.

Word that the Egyptian and Israeli delegations to the United Nations had direct contact Monday with the delivery of an invitation to Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan by the Egyptian ambassador is a further sign that the Mideast situation is not going to return to the state it was in before Sadat's courageous initiative.

An Israeli delegation is making plans for a trip to Cairo late this week for a conference which Sadat hopes will be the prelude to full-scale peace talks. The fact that many of the Arab leaders invited to the conference have rejected their invitation is disheartening but does not obscure the fact that progress still seems to be being made.

The Cairo peace conference may result in more genuine strides to peace in the Mideast, with the Egyptians and Israelis, at least, solidifying the contacts between them.

Once those bonds are solid, the next item on Sadat's agenda — and that of Israeli leaders — will be to overcome the major "insurmountable" block to Middle East peace — the status of the Palestinians.

The leadership of the Palestine Liberation Organization has denounced Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin has shown little flexibility in his refusal to deal with the PLO.

Until the impasse between Israel and the Palestinians can be resolved, any progress made toward permanent Mideast peace must, of necessity, be hung from a tenuous thread.

Overcoming this block toward peace will take more than hopeful gestures. Nevertheless, the progress that has been made so far, largely through Sadat's initiative, has made it clear that insurmountable odds can be overcome.

For the first time since 1948, peace in the Middle East does not seem an unrealistic dream. And that, as the Israeli delegation prepares to head for Cairo, means that compromises that today seem impossible may yet be achieved.

Prospect of black rule in Rhodesia improved

by TONY HAWKINS

SALISBURY, Rhodesia — With the three domestic nationalist parties having accepted Prime Minister Ian Smith's invitation to attend constitutional talks based on acceptance of universal adult suffrage, prospects for a handover to black rule in Rhodesia in 1978 seem to have improved.

The most important Rhodesian domestic nationalist party — Bishop Abel Muzorewa's United African National Council — signaled its acceptance of the Smith proposals this past weekend The bishop said Smith had now "signed and sealed" his acceptance of universal adult suffrage for Rhodesia.

Bishop Muzorewa put forward a list of demands that he hoped would be met by the present Rhodesian government but at no time did he suggest his participation in the talks was conditional upon Smith's agreement

THE BISHOP, who generally is believe inside Rhodesia to have majority backing from the country's 6.7 million blacks, said he wanted all parties who were represented at the abortive Geneva conference last year to participate in the new talks, but there was no question of "waiting for anybody who might not be interested" in taking part, he said — a direct reference to the militant Patriotic Front headed by Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe in neighboring Zambia

In addition to the bishop, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole leader of one wing of the African National Council, and Chief Chirau, who leads the Zimbabwe United People's Organization, have agreed to participate

Sithole says he wants the Kkomo-Mugabe parties to take part but political observers here say this is most unlikely to occur

INDEED, IN Lusaka, Zambia, the Smith initiative has been bitterly attacked by spokesmen for the Patriotic Front, who have stepped up their demands for a handover to the Patriotic Front guerrilla "armies" rather than a transitional period leading to free elections.

The Patriotic Front view is that it would lose free elections, probably to Bishop Muzorewa's group and it now is demanding a handover to the guerrilla fighters, as happened in Mozambique when Portugal handed over power to Frelimo (the Front for the Liberation of Mozambique) with elections being held some time afterward. Some Patriotic Front spokesmen have suggested that there could not be free elections for three years after the handover

Rhodesian sources here, meanwhile, are pleased with the response to Smith's proposals for a constitutional conference, starting with preliminary talks this week, based on Rhodesian acceptance of universal adult suffrage This would enfranchise something like 3 million blacks who would easily swamp the maximum of 100,000 to 130,000 white colored (mixed blood) and Asian voters

THE INTERNATIONAL reaction has, in Salisbury's view, been rather better than expected. In particular, Rhodesian sources, dismayed by U.S. United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young's apparent rejection of the idea, have been pleased by the more moderate and constructive attitude adopted both by State Dept spokesmen in Wasington and by British Foreign Sec. David Owen.

The Rhodesians are willing to accept the greater part of the constitutional plan put forward by Owen. Their main reservation relates to the means of electing the special white members of Parliament. Owen had proposed a system of indirect elections, but Smith wants a block of White seats elected directly by white voters — at least for a minimum of, say, five years after independence.

The Rhodesian view is that thereafter the whites will have been seen to hold no effective power and accordingly the sysstem might well be retained indefinitely. However, nationalist groups, concerned about the splinterlike character of nationalist political parties here, are reluctant to give the whites a solid block of seats (20 out of 120 is being suggested) because they fear this would leave the whites holding the balance of power.

Many Rhodesians believe the talks will succeed this time — now that the principle of one man, one vote apparently has been conceded by Smith. But the fighting will not stop and may well escalate as a result not only of this initiative but the current Rhodesian raid into Mozambique.

Prospect of black rule in Rhodesia improved

by TONY HAWKINS

SALISBURY, Rhodesia — With the three domestic nationalist parties having accepted Prime Minister Ian Smith's invitation to attend constitutional talks based on acceptance of universal adult suffrage, prospects for a handover to black rule in Rhodesia in 1978 seem to have improved.

The most important Rhodesian domestic nationalist party — Bishop Abel Muzorewa's United African National Council — signaled its acceptance of the Smith proposals this past weekend. The bishop said Smith had now "signed and sealed" his acceptance of universal adult suffrage for Rhodesia.

Bishop Muzorewa put forward a list of demands that he hoped would be met by the present Rhodesian government, but at no time did he suggest his participation in the talks was conditional upon Smith's agreement.

THE BISHOP, who generally is believe inside Rhodesia to have majority backing from the country's 6.7 million blacks, said he wanted all parties who were represented at the abortive Geneva conference last year to particpate in the new talks, but there was no question of "waiting for anybody who might not be interested" in taking part, he said — a direct reference to the militant Patriotic Front headed by Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe in neighboring Zambia.

Stotts to go to mental aid center for 'help he needs'

Accused killer Larry R. Stotts will be sent to a mental health center to receive "the kind of help he's been needing for a long time now," Thomas H. Hanlon, Stotts' attorney said Tuesday.

Stotts was bound over to county authorities Tuesday to undergo a mental competency hearing to determine whether he is mentally fit to stand trial in the Feb. 20 stabbing murder of Nargis Alvi, a Mount Prospect woman who was working in her husband's grocery store at the time of her death.

Both Hanlon and Assistant State's Atty. Frank Nolan concurred with psychiatric reports filed Tuesday that indicated Stotts was not mentally competent to stand trial. Cook County Circuit Court Judge Jerome T. Burke then issued a formal recommendation that Stotts undergo a mental competency hearing Dec. 14.

TUESDAY'S ACTION ends the series of pretrial court hearings that have taken place in the past nine months.

Hanlon said the competency hearing "is only a formality" because he and Nolan basically agree with a psychiatric report issued Monday that states Stotts is not fit to stand trial.

Once the hearing determines Stotts not competent, he will be remanded to the custody of a mental health center for treatment, Hanlon said.

"This is the best thing for both Larry Stotts and the community. Now he will get the help he has been crying out for the past several years. The knowledge of what he has done is tearing him apart," Hanlon said.

Mrs. Robert Stotts, Larry's mother, and sister both said they were satisfied with the course the court took with Larry.

"I'M HAPPY. This is the best thing. The hardest part has been all this waiting," Mrs. Stotts said. "The thing I want most is to have Larry come home. He's been through a lot in the past nine months."

She said her son has had a great number of bad experiences while awaiting trial in the Cook County jail. "Just staying in that place might make anyone mentally disturbed," she said.

Linda Stotts, a 17-year-old senior at Prospect High School, Mount Prospect, said she is "Glad it's over. He (Larry) has gone through too much too long. I don't think he could have come out of this situation with a normal life anyway. He needs people who will help and understand him."

Burke said Tuesday a competency hearing will automatically be held for Stotts 90 days after he is committed to a mental health center. Another hearing will be scheduled atuomatically a year from then, he said.

If at any future hearing Stotts is determined to be mentally fit to stand trial, he may be brought back into court, Burke said.

County hospital addition angers board

Cook County Hospital officials' best intentions went awry Monday when an invitation to the county board to attend a groundbreaking ceremony Thursday for a $5 million hospital addition provoked a storm of criticism.

County commissioners, including Board Pres. George W. Dunne, were angry because the hospital was planning to expand its outpatient clinic without the board's approval.

Money for the building is coming from a federal grant and Dr. James G. Haughton said he just assumed the county board was approving the addition at the time Dunne approved the grant.

BUT DUNNE said the addition may be illegal because only the county board has the power to approve new county lands and buildings.

"I thought you were going to build some new sidewalks and a walkway between two existing buildings. Our understanding was that you were going to do some remodeling. When we got our invitations to a 'groundbreaking,' that suggests a whole new building," Dunne said.

The sharpest criticism was leveled by County Comr. Mathew W. Bieszczat, D-Chicago, who charged that the Health and Hospitals Governing Commission which runs Cook County Hospital "has taken too much authority without asking since the day it was formed."

"You disregard us (the county board), forget us and operate without us," Bieszczat said. "The only time we get to know what you're doing is at budget time."

The county board sets the hospital's total budget, but has no control over specific individual allocations.

CHARLES A. DAVIS, chairman of the governing commission, said he apologized if the hospital directors had "missed a step" in getting approval for the addition.

Haughton was to meet with county officials Monday afternoon in an effort to right the apparent oversight.

The issue blew up after Haughton and Davis received the county board's approval for a 60-day extension of the hospital's current $16.5 million debt with the First National Bank of Chicago.

The credit is needed to bridge the gap between hospital expenditures and the receipt of state public aid payments, Davis said.

State debt left with county: Dunne

The State of Illinois has left Cook County holding the bag for $187,664 in bad debts, County Board Pres. George W. Dunne said Monday.

The money is due to the county as reimbursement for probation officers' salaries in May and June 1975 under a state program that never was funded.

Illinois General Assembly finally passed a special appropriation this summer, Dunne said. But the bill was vetoed Aug. 26 by Gov. James R. Thompson and an effort to override the veto this fall fell one vote short.

Monday Dunne told the county board to write off the $187,664 bill to the state as an "uncollectible bad debt." But he hinted there may be new efforts at passing a special appropriation bill into law.

"We're writing it off to adjust our accounts. But this is still an obligation the state should meet," he said.

Cook County Hospital officials' best intentions went awry Monday when an invitation to the county board to attend a groundbreaking ceremony Thursday for a $5 million hospital addition provoked a storm of criticism.

County commissioners, including Board Pres. George W. Dunne, were angry because the hospital was planning to expand its outpatient clinic without the board's approval.

Money for the building is coming from a federal grant and Dr. James G. Haughton said he just assumed the county board was approving the addition at the time Dunne approved the grant.

BUT DUNNE said the addition may be illegal because only the county board has the power to approve new county lands and buildings.

"I thought you were going to build some new sidewalks and a walkway between two existing buildings. Our understanding was that you were going to do some remodeling. When we got our invitations to a 'groundbreaking,' that suggests a whole new building," Dunne said.

The sharpest criticism was leveled by County Comr. Mathew W. Bieszczat, D-Chicago, who charged that the Health and Hospitals Governing Commission which runs Cook County Hospital "has taken too much authority without asking since the day it was formed."

"You disregard us (the county board), forget us and operate without us," Bieszczat said. "The only time we get to know what you're doing is at budget time."

The county board sets the hospital's total budget, but has no control over specific individual allocations.

CHARLES A. DAVIS, chairman of the governing commission, said he apologized if the hospital directors had "missed a step" in getting approval for the addition.

Haughton was to meet with county officials Monday afternoon in an effort to right the apparent oversight.

The issue blew up after Haughton and Davis received the county board's approval for a 60-day extension of the hospital's current $16.5 million debt with the First National Bank of Chicago.

The credit is needed to bridge the gap between hospital expenditures and the receipt of state public aid payments, Davis said.

State debt left with county: Dunne

The State of Illinois has left Cook County holding the bag for $187,664 in bad debts, County Board Pres. George W. Dunne said Monday.

The money is due to the county as reimbursement for probation officers' salaries in May and June 1975 under a state program that never was funded.

Illinois General Assembly finally passed a special appropriation this summer, Dunne said. But the bill was vetoed Aug. 26 by Gov. James R. Thompson and an effort to override the veto this fall fell one vote short.

Monday Dunne told the county board to write off the $187,664 bill to the state as an "uncollectible bad debt." But he hinted there may be new efforts at passing a special appropriation bill into law.

"We're writing it off to adjust our accounts. But this is still an obligation the state should meet," he said.

Anti-smoking ads turn up their noses

SPREADING THE word that "Smoking Stinks," Arlington High School student Linda Herbsts irons an American Cancer Society decal onto a T-shirt, while modeling an earlier effort. "Smoking Stinks" iron-on days also have been held at Forest View and Prospect high schools.

by DIANE GRANAT

Golden-haired Rapunzel appears on the television screen. As she lets down her braided locks, a dashing prince begins his ascent. Halfway up he takes a whiff of her hair, starts to cough and decides it's not worth it to rescue her from captivity.

Cut to a beautiful princess picking up a frog. She kisses him and he turns into a handsome prince. But instead of sweeping her away in gratitude, the disenchanted prince hops away holding his nose.

Sleeping Beauty is about to be awakened by her valiant savior. As he bends to kiss her, the flowers he is carrying wilt. And when he smells her breath, he withers away, too.

HAVE FAIRY tails gone sour? In the eyes of the American Cancer Society, they have. The cancer-fighting group has chosen these formerly fair, young maidens to star in its new anti-smoking campaign with a message for every would-be princess: "smoking stinks."

The cigarette-toting damsels, who will be debuting in 30-second television commercials in the next few weeks, comprise one segment of a $160,000 campaign by the Illinois Division of the cancer society to convince youngsters to turn up their noses at smoking.

The appeal is to teen-age girls, hoping that if they are not concerned that smoking will kill them, perhaps they will worry about smelly hair or rotten breath

Teen-age girls are the target of the new offensive because there has been a dramatic increase in the number of 13- to 17-year-old female smokers, said Stephanie Eckert, field representative for the Northwest suburban unit of the cancer society.

Last year alone 500,000 more teen-age girls were regular smokers than in 1969, statistics show.

"THEY'RE IN a smoking environment. They see it all around them and the peer pressure is great," Mrs Eckert said. "And in the Virginia Slims era, women are (portrayed as) independent thinkers, making decisions for themselves in a more permissive atmosphere. Smoking is a symbol of status and self-fulfillment."

Most teen-age girls, however, are aware that smoking is bad for them. They have had cigarette education. They know about lung cancer. But apparently they're not scared.

"The health aspect seems too far away Lung cancer and heart attacks are too far in the future for them to see it as an immediate threat," Mrs Eckert said.

So the cancer society decided to appeal to vanity instead.

MRS. ECKERT said the society wants to play on the same ideas used in cigarette ads where "people are attractive, sexy, well-dressed, really with-it" In the "smoking stinks" campaign, those attributes go to the non-smokers, with the smokers becoming the outcasts.

For instance, one television spot shows a sharp-looking girl who has just put out a cigarette, walking through a park. As she passes some flowers they wilt. A skunk sniffs her and runs away. A group of girls giggle at her body odor and an attractive young man holds his nose as she walks by. In the end, she is trailed by a herd of grunting pigs — the only ones who seem to enjoy her company.

Another piece of publicity zeroes in on the millions of dollars teen-age girls spend on cosmetics. A newspaper ad showing a burning cigarette next to a table filled with cosmetics says, "Meet the product that makes all your perfumes, colognes, deodorants and powders obsolete."

The cancer society is not abandoning its regular health education programs to concentrate on "smoking stinks," Mrs. Eckert said. But she said she hopes the new program will pick up where the black lung left off.

"IF A GIRL'S boyfriend really admits she does stink, it may have a more immediate effect than saying you're going to die in 20 years from lung cancer," she said.

In the Northwest suburbs "smoking stinks" buttons and posters are sprouting up at several high schools. Arlington and Forest View high schools in Arlington Heights and Prospect High School in Mount Prospect have scheduled iron-days, when students can iron decals with the "smoking stinks" logo onto T-shirts. Forest View students also have designed their own decal: a skunk holding a cigarette.

One Forest View student remarked that so far the anti-smoking crusade has won the most support from nonsmokers. Why? "Because it fulfills a growing militancy of those believing they have a right to clean air," said Cecile Gagan, of the cancer society's Chicago branch.

Other school groups interested in publicizing the "smoking stinks" program can contact Mrs. Eckert at the cancer society's office at 113 N. Northwest Hwy , Palatine, or by calling 358-3965.

As more women smoke, the health effects catch up

The number of women who smoke cigarettes is increasing each year, in spite of mounting literature concerning the harmful effects of smoking.

Last year alone, one-half million more teen-aged girls were regular smokers than in 1969. Most of the growth among female smokers has occurred among teenagers, which has alarmed many medical researchers because of the potential effects of cigarette smoking on these women.

Dr. G. H Miller, director of Studies on Smoking in Edinboro, Penn., found that women who smoke cigarettes die earlier than men who smoke. The results of his recent study in Pennsylvania indicate that if the present trend of equal percentages of teen-age male and female smokers continues through later years, women will be dying an average of two to four years earlier than men by the year 2000.

Not only may the current generation of women smokers anticipate the possibility of a younger death, they also have an older-looking appearance than their nonsmoking counterparts. According to Dr. Harry W. Daniell of Redding, Calif., facial wrinkles such as crowsfeet may be caused more by cigarette smoke than by exposure to wind and sun.

Daniell announced his findings after studying more than 1,100 men and women between the ages of 30 and 70 Each subject filled out a questionnaire about his or her smoking habits, medical history, weight changes and sun exposure. The completed questionnaires were sealed to prevent a possible bias by the doctor.

EACH SUBJECT was then carefully examined by the doctor, and a wrinkle score from one to six was recorded on the outside of the sealed form. Wrinkles were examined for depth, length and numbers, and scored accordingly. Closeup photographs were taken, and three other sets of observers also scored the pictures.

The study found a relationship between prominent wrinkling and heavy smoking for all age groups. Daniell suggests that smoking may cause wrinkling because nicotine makes the small blood vessels contract, especially those near the surface of the skin. This, he says, might cause deterioration in skin tissue over a period of time.

The wrinkles exhibited by cigarette smokers and nonsmokers differed in many ways. Smokers' wrinkles in the crowsfoot area were narrow, deep and sharply contoured. In contrast, the nonsmokers' wrinkles in the same area were broad based, round-edged and more widely open. In addition, smokers exhibited a characteristic, pronounced cobblestone pattern in some instances.

Skin color, too, differed between smokers and nonsmokers. Current cigarette smokers lacked the flesh-pink colorations and, instead, exhibited a yellow-grey pallor. The smokers rarely had pink cheeks, and almost never blushed.

Daniell's study also found that deep or heavy facial wrinkling can be a significant warning sign for the occurrence of heart attacks or stroke.

Women are also catching up to men in the incidence of stomach ulcers. Dr. Morton I. Grossman, director of the UCLA Center for Ulcer Research and Education, says that 30 years ago 20 males contracted ulcers for every woman ulcer patient. That ratio today is two-to-one. According to the assistant director of the UCLA Center, Dr. Charles Code, the change is directly attributable to the enormous increase in drinking and smoking by women. Alcohol and cigarette smoke both irritate the stomach lining where ulcers form.

IN ADDITION to ulcers, alcohol and cigarette smoking may increase a person's predisposition to oral cancer. One study found that men who drank more than three fluid ounces of whiskey and smoked 40 or more cigarettes per day were 15 times more susceptible to oral cancer than the general population.

It is believed that alcohol may enhance the effect of environmental carcinogens such as those identified in cigarette tars The alcohol may interfere with normal salivary flow, which prolongs the exposure of the mouth to tobacco tars and increases their diffusion rate into tissues.

It has been estimated that the incidence of esophageal cancer in the U.S. would be reduced by at least 80 per cent if no one drank alcohol or smoked cigarettes.

Mothers who smoke are setting an especially bad example for their daughters, a recent study shows. Teen-aged girls tend to follow their mother's smoking behavior, and the highest percentages of teen-agers who smoke come from families where one or more parents are cigarette smokers. The sharpest increases in cigarette smoking among girls are in the very young ages of 13, 14, and 15.

According to the American Lung Assn , the death rate from lung cancer among women who are heavy smokers is five times higher than for nonsmoking women The rates for chronic bronchitis and emphysema are three times higher.

The Lung Assn. says the number of women dying from these two diseases has doubled in the last decade. That's an interesting statistic, considering the first cigarettes to be heavily marketed toward women were introduced just about 10 years ago.

Outspoken Costanza keeps talking

by LAURENCE McQUILLAN

Margaret (Midge) Costanza daily catches broadsides leveled at the White House by disgruntled outsiders. That's part of her job. But now she is starting to find herself the target of insiders as well.

Some say she is too outspoken in her role as presidential assistant for public liaison — an office which deals with anyone from the public who has a gripe. Her goal is to convince them that the government cares.

Midge Costanza, 45, considers herself as "a loudmouth, pushy broad" who must keep the president from becoming isolated.

She doesn't particularly like controversy — "I don't look for it" — but she does not shy away either. In her brief tenure the White House has listened to the typical groups, such as advocates and opponents of equal rights for women and abortion.

GROUPS WHO WERE ignored in the past, such as gay rights activists have been added. She allowed a vegetarian group to host a meatless meal at the White House, angering cattle raisers.

"Anything that is worth changing in this nation is controversial," she says. "If you don't take a stand for anything, then who are you? Not everybody has to agree with me, but you've got to stand for something."

Her parents immigrated from Sicily and opened a sausage business in Rochester· N.Y. Their daughter's first taste of politics came in high school, where she was elected student vice president as a junior. The bitter side came the next year when she ran for class president and lost — to a boy she had dated.

In 1973, Ms. Costanza became the first woman elected to the City Council in Rochester, N.Y., and was chosen by colleagues as vice mayor — a ceremonial post in a community with a city manager form of government.

HER FIRST CONTACT with Jimmy Carter came in 1974 when the Georgia governor campaigned for her unsuccessful bid to win a congressional seat in western New York.

The next year she repaid the political debt, becoming the first New York Democrat with an official sounding title to endorse the unknown Georgian.

Now, she literally has the closest office to Carter in the West Wing of the White House. Aside from physical presence, however, there is a question about her sphere of influence.

Some White House aides describe her as having the least access to the president of any senior staff member.

She insists the relationship with Carter is a good one, calling him "my best friend in the whole world." However, when the president recently invited all of his senior staff members and their families to join him at Camp David, she was not included.

THE SLENDER presidential assistant stands a shade over five feet, with short, jet black hair that accents facial features which make her Italian heritage clear.

She wrinkles her forehead as she talks, often in staccato sentences. Her large eyeglasses — shaped like a pair of twin circles — are often taken off and pointed to her listener as she drives home a point.

There are two areas that stand out in trying to search for reasons why Midge Costanza has problems. First, she publicly challenged Carter's anti-abortion stand to the point or organizing internal opposition. Washington, accustomed to unquestioning support of presidential decisions by White House staffers, was aghast.

Second, she was the only White House aide to suggest that Bert Lance resign as budget director — a view not popular with the "good ole boys" of the so-called "Georgia Mafia."

"ONE OF THE things that's very important to me is that when I leave — whether that be in four years or eight years, that's up to the president — I want to leave knowing who I am," she said as she sat in her office amid stacks of paper.

"I can't keep changing to please a lot of people," she said. "I'll never recognize myself if I did that. I have to be me."

"I am responsible for what I think," she says with a determined expression on her face. "If I wish to express what I think on any given question that's given to me, I don't stop and consider why aren't my colleagues saying this."

Ms. Costanza is aware that her White House colleagues are aiming barbs at her: "I have heard that they are but no one has bothered to tell me about it."

Then the tough exterior gives a hint of breaking down. There is moisture in the eyes, but discipline refuses to permit tears.

"I WORK FOR the president, not the junior staff members. They have a right to their opinion . . . I don't have much use for people who through anonymity criticize others."

She is convinced that the unkind words do not come from fellow senior staff members. Her loyalty allows for no doubt that the comments come from "little minds" that seek power from below.

The composure was back. She could be back campaigning on New York City's tough street corners, or in Florida or California, as she did.

"By God, when you meet me, like me or not, you better know it's based on reality," she said with a renewed determination. "I've either given you a real reason to like me, or a real reason not to like me, but there's no in between."

"Anything that is worth changing in this nation is controversial," she says. "If you don't take a stand for anything, then who are you? Not everybody has to agree with me, but you've got to stand for something."

Her parents immigrated from Sicily and opened a sausage business in Rochester N.Y. Their daughter's first taste of politics came in high school, where she was elected student vice president as a junior. The bitter side came the next year when she ran for class president and lost — to a boy she had dated.

In 1973, Ms. Costanza became the first woman elected to the City Council in Rochester, N.Y., and was chosen by colleagues as vice mayor — a ceremonial post in a community with a city manager form of government.

HER FIRST CONTACT with Jimmy Carter came in 1974 when the Georgia governor campaigned for her unsuccessful bid to win a congressional seat in western New York.

The next year she repaid the political debt, becoming the first New York Democrat with an official sounding title to endorse the unknown Georgian.

Now, she literally has the closest office to Carter in the West Wing of the White House. Aside from physical presence, however, there is a question about her sphere of influence.

Some White House aides describe her as having the least access to the president of any senior staff member.

She insists the relationship with Carter is a good one, calling him "my best friend in the whole world." However, when the president recently invited all of his senior staff members and their families to join him at Camp David, she was not included.

THE SLENDER presidential assistant stands a shade over five feet, with short, jet black hair that accents facial features which make her Italian heritage clear.

She wrinkles her forehead as she talks, often in staccato sentences. Her large eyeglasses — shaped like a pair of twin circles — are often taken off and pointed to her listener as she drives home a point.

There are two areas that stand out in trying to search for reasons why Midge Costanza has problems. First, she publicly challenged Carter's anti-abortion stand to the point or organizing internal opposition. Washington, accustomed to unquestioning support of presidential decisions by White House staffers, was aghast.

Second, she was the only White House aide to suggest that Bert Lance resign as budget director — a view not popular with the "good ole boys" of the so-called "Georgia Mafia."

"ONE OF THE things that's very important to me is that when I leave — whether that be in four years or eight years, that's up to the president — I want to leave knowing who I am," she said as she sat in her office amid stacks of paper.

"I can't keep changing to please a lot of people," she said. "I'll never recognize myself if I did that. I have to be me."

"I am responsible for what I think," she says with a determined expression on her face. "If I wish to express what I think on any given question that's given to me, I don't stop and consider why aren't my colleagues saying this."

Ms. Costanza is aware that her White House colleagues are aiming barbs at her: "I have heard that they are but no one has bothered to tell me about it."

Then the tough exterior gives a hint of breaking down. There is moisture in the eyes, but discipline refuses to permit tears.

"I WORK FOR the president, not the junior staff members. They have a right to their opinion . . . I don't have much use for people who through anonymity criticize others."

She is convinced that the unkind words do not come from fellow senior staff members. Her loyalty allows for no doubt that the comments come from "little minds" that seek power from below.

The composure was back. She could be back campaigning on New York City's tough street corners, or in Florida or California, as she did.

"By God, when you meet me, like me or not, you better know it's based on reality," she said with a renewed determination. "I've either given you a real reason to like me, or a real reason not to like me, but there's no in between."

SOME SAY Margaret (Midge) Costanza is too outspoken in her role as presidential assistant for public liaison — an office which deals with anyone from the public who has a gripe. She sits at the desk in her office in the White House.

The doctor says

Pills, hormones can raise sperm count

How about a little advice to those of us who have a problem getting pregnant? My husband and I have been married for four years. I have been off the pill more than two of these years. I'm 24 and he is 28.

I was pregnant before (another man) when I was 18. I had a legal abortion. My doctor says I am perfectly healthy and should get pregnant. The year I was off the pill, he said it would take time; now he says there must be something wrong. I used the temperature charts for a while to no avail.

A few months ago, my husband went for a sperm count. The first test came out low, so he had a repeat. When I called his doctor about the results, the doctor said the second test was just as low as the first. My husband went for a physical. The doctor asked him how many hours he worked a week (65 to 75). Then he told him there was nothing wrong with him, just tired, and that he had read the second test results wrong.

My husband does work long hours, but they are not physical. This has only been for the past eight months. Before this, he didn't work at all for almost a year, and before that just a normal 40-hour week.

I've tried to ask the doctor questions about this, but he acts as though it's none of my business, and won't tell me much of anything. He just says to wait. I think I've waited long enough, especially with no information on the subject.

I agree that you have waited long enough. Your letter suggests that you and your husband have different doctors. If so, I might suggest that you bring up the problem with your doctor. He should be able to talk to your husband's doctor and get some straight answers with numbers attached to them. He may suggest that your husband have additional tests done, or perhaps be checked by another doctor.

When a man has a low sperm count, there are things that can be done. There even have been studies that show the sperm count can be boosted by the male taking the same fertility pills women need to take when they don't ovulate. Both the ovaries and the testicles are stimulated by hormones from the pituitary gland under the brain.

SOME MEN improve by giving them thyroid hormone or improving their general health. Your doctor may want both of you to go to a fertility clinic.

The chances of pregnancy can sometimes be improved by having sex every third night. That ensures the best chance of a larger sperm count, and eventually the third night and ovulation occur at the same time.

From the rest of your letter, I appreciate that your husband is sensitive about this. Many men are. There is nothing to be ashamed about, and even if he were not producing sperm at all, that would not mean that he is less masculine. Many men with normal levels of male hormones do not produce enough healthy sperm.

Homemade caramel corn good for winter

If your family enjoys homemade popcorn on a wintry night, perhaps they'll like homemade caramel corn as well. Dentists present will all rise in horror, but at least the coating in this recipe doesn't stick to the teeth.

Julie Adler told us how to do it this way. Pop 3 quarts of popcorn, and pour even amounts into two 9-by-13-inch baking pans. In a saucepan, melt a stick of butter and mix in a cup of packed brown sugar, a quarter cup of light corn syrup and one-half teaspoon salt. Stir and cook at medium heat until mixture bubbles around the edges, and then cook for five more minutes. Remove from heat. Add one-half teaspoon baking soda and stir until mixture is foamy. Pour half of the syrup over the popcorn in each pan, and stir to coat the corn. Bake for one hour in a 200-degree oven, stirring every 15 minutes to prevent a sticky mass from forming. Let cool. Keeps well in an airtight container.

Dear Roberta: My children like playing in the bathtub with rubber duckies and other store-bought toys. But their favorite bath toys always have been empty plastic bottles. They especially like the kind with sprayers attached to the tops. Before a mom hands over one of these, kids should agree to abide by a simple rule: "No squirting outside the tub." — Dawn Spriggs

Dear Roberta: Is it true that cocoa butter is good for dry skin? — Wanda May

The same cocoa butter that sunbathers use to acquire a golden suntan is soothing for chapped hands and dry skin in general. Various cosmetic manufacturers produce it in an array of oils, creams and lotions. Our favorite type for hands is a cream with a special quality: it stays, so application after each washing isn't necessary.

Valid reasons needed

Judge may open adoption record

Julie Martoccio

Women and children first

Attention, adoptees seeking their roots: My latest bit of information concerning adoptees and their adoption records comes from Melvin Parnell, Cook County's guardian ad litem. As you probably know already — and as he pointed out — adoption records are sealed and impounded in the best interests of all parties to the adoption.

But Parnell informs me that if you can convince Cook County Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford, Room 1703, Daley Center, Chicago, that you have valid reasons for wanting your adoption record opened, he may oblige. According to Parnell, you may appear in the courtroom without an appointment, or if you wish, make inquiries at the guardian ad litem's office. However, Parnell's first suggestion is that adoptees might get much information from Yesterday's Children, Box 1554, Evanston, Ill. reiterating what I've recommended repeatedly in this column.

A word of advice: Please be aware that digging up one's roots can be akin to opening a can of worms. As an example, I'd like to tell what happened to a fine, intelligent, friend whose reputation is impeccable. Her philanthropic work is widely known, her husband and children successful and a credit to their community. Yet this woman was insulted and demeaned by the very people she wished to love . . . her natural brothers and sisters.

Her natural mother was deceased and her brothers and sisters, shocked to find that their mother had given birth to an illegitimate child, turned on my friend and literally "threw her out of their house." She is now more disillusioned and unhappy than ever. So, please, think it over carefully before you proceed!

Dear K.O.:

I am pleased that the column gave you insight into your problem and that you have informed your adoptive parents of your plan and that they are supportive. Yes! I would welcome any information you acquire in your search to find your real parents.

Dear Mr. R.:

Your letter touched me deeply, but it was inspiring to know that you successfully fought your way up from "begging for food on street corners" to your present responsible position.

However, I do not know of any legal agencies that will locate your natural parents now that you have your adoption papers. The only suggestion (other than Yesterday's Children) I have to offer at the moment is that about six months ago an adoptee in California found her parents and was the subject of a 60 Minutes program on Channel 2 and that you try to get in touch with her through the station.

Mrs. Alejandro Rey, wife of the movie star, explained step by step how she located her mother. The program indicated that the actual burden of finding one's parents falls on the adoptee who is obliged to follow every slender lead. But my knowledge and information on the subject are incomplete. However, I will continue to include any new information I receive and from whatever source. Good luck to you, and all other adoptees who have written to this column.

Readers are invited to submit questions regarding problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify writer are withheld on request, but no personal responses will be sent through the mail. Attorney Martoccio's legal information is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Easy-to-make gifts brighten the kitchen

Kitchen gifts head the popularity list this season — everyone is spending more time in the kitchen and kitchen-decor is important.

Here is a set of kitchen accessories you can make, using two standard sized pillowcases to make a quilted tea cozy, a two-sided casserole mitt, a set of padded coasters and a recipe-file cover. Use the attractive finished edges on the pillowcases for extra decorative punch.

You also will need fusible material and tape and multi-purpose fleece for padding and insulation, plus wide braid or bias tape to finish the edges.

Make paper patterns for the items. Then cut out four sections for the tea cozy, two sections for each of the four coasters and two long sections plus four mitt sections for the casserole mitt.

Cut two layers of fleece for the cozy pattern, four for the coaster pattern, one for the long section of the casserole mitt pattern and two mitt sections.

Sandwich the fleece between two layers of fabric and machine quilt.

After sections are completed, use the fusible tape and fuse braid in place to cover raw edges and join sections. Make a small envelope to hold the coasters, but you need not add the multi-purpose fleece. A small button tab holds the coasters in place.

To cover the recipe file box, simply fuse the fabric directly to the box, using fusible material.

With another set of pillowcases, you make covers for a blender, a mixer, a toaster or a coffee machine. For accurate fit, start with a paper pattern for each item. As a final touch, dress up the kitchen window with a shirred valance or crisp cafes.

With any luck, you'll receive a loaf of home-baked bread or a batch of cookies in return.

Valid reasons needed

Judge may open adoption record

Julie Martoccio

Women and children first

Attention, adoptees seeking their roots: My latest bit of information concerning adoptees and their adoption records comes from Melvin Parnell, Cook County's guardian ad litem. As you probably know already — and as he pointed out — adoption records are sealed and impounded in the best interests of all parties to the adoption.

But Parnell informs me that if you can convince Cook County Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford, Room 1703, Daley Center, Chicago, that you have valid reasons for wanting your adoption record opened, he may oblige. According to Parnell, you may appear in the courtroom without an appointment, or if you wish, make inquiries at the guardian ad litem's office. However, Parnell's first suggestion is that adoptees might get much information from Yesterday's Children, Box 1554, Evanston, Ill. reiterating what I've recommended repeatedly in this column.

A word of advice: Please be aware that digging up one's roots can be akin to opening a can of worms. As an example, I'd like to tell what happened to a fine, intelligent, friend whose reputation is impeccable. Her philanthropic work is widely known, her husband and children successful and a credit to their community. Yet this woman was insulted and demeaned by the very people she wished to love . . . her natural brothers and sisters.

Her natural mother was deceased and her brothers and sisters, shocked to find that their mother had given birth to an illegitimate child, turned on my friend and literally "threw her out of their house." She is now more disillusioned and unhappy than ever. So, please, think it over carefully before you proceed!

Dear K.O.:

I am pleased that the column gave you insight into your problem and that you have informed your adoptive parents of your plan and that they are supportive. Yes! I would welcome any information you acquire in your search to find your real parents.

Dear Mr. R.:

Your letter touched me deeply, but it was inspiring to know that you successfully fought your way up from "begging for food on street corners" to your present responsible position.

However, I do not know of any legal agencies that will locate your natural parents now that you have your adoption papers. The only suggestion (other than Yesterday's Children) I have to offer at the moment is that about six months ago an adoptee in California found her parents and was the subject of a 60 Minutes program on Channel 2 and that you try to get in touch with her through the station.

Mrs. Alejandro Rey, wife of the movie star, explained step by step how she located her mother. The program indicated that the actual burden of finding one's parents falls on the adoptee who is obliged to follow every slender lead. But my knowledge and information on the subject are incomplete. However, I will continue to include any new information I receive and from whatever source. Good luck to you, and all other adoptees who have written to this column.

Readers are invited to submit questions regarding problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify writer are withheld on request, but no personal responses will be sent through the mail. Attorney Martoccio's legal information is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Easy-to-make gifts brighten the kitchen

Kitchen gifts head the popularity list this season — everyone is spending more time in the kitchen and kitchen-decor is important.

Here is a set of kitchen accessories you can make, using two standard sized pillowcases to make a quilted tea cozy, a two-sided casserole mitt, a set of padded coasters and a recipe-file cover. Use the attractive finished edges on the pillowcases for extra decorative punch.

You also will need fusible material and tape and multi-purpose fleece for padding and insulation, plus wide braid or bias tape to finish the edges.

Make paper patterns for the items. Then cut out four sections for the tea cozy, two sections for each of the four coasters and two long sections plus four mitt sections for the casserole mitt.

Cut two layers of fleece for the cozy pattern, four for the coaster pattern, one for the long section of the casserole mitt pattern and two mitt sections.

Sandwich the fleece between two layers of fabric and machine quilt.

After sections are completed, use the fusible tape and fuse braid in place to cover raw edges and join sections. Make a small envelope to hold the coasters, but you need not add the multi-purpose fleece. A small button tab holds the coasters in place.

To cover the recipe file box, simply fuse the fabric directly to the box, using fusible material.

With another set of pillowcases, you make covers for a blender, a mixer, a toaster or a coffee machine. For accurate fit, start with a paper pattern for each item. As a final touch, dress up the kitchen window with a shirred valance or crisp cafes.

With any luck, you'll receive a loaf of home-baked bread or a batch of cookies in return.

Infant Welfare dinner dance on Saturday

Members and friends of Mount Prospect Center of Infant Welfare will dine and dance Saturday at the group's annual Christmas Ball at Itasca Country Club.

The party begins at 8 p.m. with a festive holiday dinner.

Meet the newcomers

Palatine Newcomers Club will host an evening coffee at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the home of Bea Furman. All women new in the Palatine area are welcome to attend and learn about the club and its activities.

Further details may be obtained from Gayla Seiter, 991-0787, or Dot Thomas, 358-7569.

Audubon Society offers ornaments

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Audubon Society is starting up a new series of collectibles. For the birds, of course.

A set of three glass Christmas tree ornaments with bird motifs is the first in what will be a series of holiday decorations, the society said.

Each pearl white ornament is about three and a quarter inches in diameter and contains a color illustration of the eastern bluebird, the Baltimore oriole or the cardinal.

The ornaments are packaged in sets of three that are available for $8.95 per set (plus local taxes where applicable) from: Service Dept., The National Audubon Society, 950 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

Three couples plan 1978 weddings

Scherer-Buerger

A pair of 1974 Elk Grove High School graduates are engaged and plan to marry in February 1978, according to an announcement by the parents of Rhonda Lynn Scherer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scherer of Elk Grove Village. Her fiance is Harry F. Buerger III, son of Harry F. Buerger Jr., also of Elk Grove, and the late Arlene Buerger.

Rhonda attended Harper College and Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, and is now a secretary at Tower Metals and Ore Corp., Elk Grove. Harry also atetnded Harper, as well as Eastern Illinois University. He is employed by Honeywell, Inc.

Farley-Rapp

Sarah Ann Farley and Richard Charles Rapp are planning a May '78 wedding. Their engagement and approaching marriage are announced by Sarah's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James N. Farley, Arlington Heights. Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Rapp, Evansville, Ind.

A '75 graduate of Arlington High, Sarah will graduate from Purdue University in December '78. Her fiance is a '77 graduate of Indiana State University now employed as a probation officer for Warrick County, Boonville, Ind.

Wehrheim-Eichhorst

An April '78 wedding is being planned by Debbie Wehrheim and Gary Eichhorst. Their engagement is announced by Debbie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Wehrheim, Spring Grove, Ill. Gary is the son of Mrs. Harriet Eichhorst, Mount Prospect, and Don Eichhorst, Spring Grove.

Gary, a '75 graduate of Prospect High School, is employed by R.D.G. Builders, Crystal Lake. Debbie works for A&P Foods, Fox Lake.

Patricia Ellen Marshall–Kenneth Horak

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Horak

Recent newlyweds Patricia Ellen Marshall and Kenneth Horak met as seniors at Prospect High School, where they graduated in 1975. The couple, both of Mount Prospect, exchanged vows and rings Oct. 29 in St. Raymond Catholic Church and greeted 160 guests at a reception at the Grand Plaza in Rosemont.

Their parents are the Willard Marshalls and the Robert Horaks.

All of the bride's attendants made their own gowns and their bouquets for the 4 p m. service. The dresses were in rust velour with beige lace shawls The flowers, picked fresh from the garden, were autumn mums and baby's breath.

ALL FOUR OF Patty's sisters were among her attendants, Janis Lowell of Rockford as matrons of honor and Andrea Majewski, Barrington, Judy Forsberg, Palatine, and Katy Marshall as bridesmaids. The other bridesmaids were Cindy Gavin, Wheeling, and Sandy Skelnik, Mount Prospect.

The bride's nieces, Sara Majewski and Rebecca Lowell, both 7, were flower girls in dresses similar to the adult attendants.

Patty's bridal gown was of white satin accented with lace inserts and teardrop pearls. Her waist-length veil flowed from a lace and pearl headband, and she carried a cascade of snowdrift, stephanotis and ferns.

GREG McINTYRE, Arlington Heights, was the best man and Ken's brother Dale was a groomsman along with Chris Lindahl and Dan Deever, Mount Prospect, Tom Gavin, Wheeling, and Craig Busby, Arlington Heights.

The newlyweds are living in Wheeling since returning from a two-week trip to California and the Rockies. Patty works for Budget Rent-A-Car at O'Hare Airport and her husband for R. Horak Masonry, Mount Prospect.

WTTW goes in-depth with news format

No news could turn out to be good news at Channel 11.

There is no denying that economics has forced WTTW-TV management to reassess their capabilities and limitations as a news organization suffering the pains of competition with commercial television news shops that have more money, more staff and more resources at their disposal.

So, Channel 11 is changing its 7 p.m. weeknight news format in mid-January to offer what news director John Callaway calls "a respectable alternative" to the evening news on Chicago's commercial stations.

IT'S NOT REALLY a case of the public television station having failed in its attempt at a nightly newscast, Callaway said.

"Our news was working, but the commercial stations' coverage and presentation of the news recently changed. They are putting more money and more seriousness into their news now. The commercial stations are doing what we used to do," he said. "In the day of happy talk news not long ago, we were a very important alternative."

Callaway admits his three-year venture in in-depth newscasting had its problems, but could have continued if it weren't for the sheer economics of a limiting $800,000 annual news budget. "We just don't have the money to go beyond what we're doing now," he said.

But, Callaway, a bright, enthusiastic newsman who will continue hosting his own interview show Monday through Thursday at 7:30 p.m., insists the station will maintain some kind of news "presence" at 7 p.m.

The station will continue to provide a "national news block" Friday evenings made up of the public broadcasting system's "Washington Week in Review" and "Wall Street Week," leaving Monday through Thursday for local news programming at 7 p.m., Callaway said.

IT IS LIKELY that one night will be devoted to "video" programming that will alternate half-hour news documentaries, personality profiles and round-table discussions of controversial issues similar to the excellent "Cab Crisis at City Hall" news special the station aired lastweek.

A new documentary unit headed by investigative reporter Mike Hirsh and former news producer Marty Killeen will work on many of the projects for that night.

"That new arrangement will allow us to utilize our two video crews in a way that will have more of an impact," Callaway said. "Right now the footage they produce is diminished to head shots and short clips."

Callaway admits consistent documentary effort has been a weakness of his news organization and the ability to produce one good documentary each week is nearly impossible.

"That's why we plan to alternate the documentaries with profiles and news specials. If we find we can only come up with four good documentaries in eight weeks, we'll just repeat what we have to," he said.

STATION MANAGEMENT tentatively plans to air a "Chicago Week in Review" wrap-up of news events on Thursday, possibly anchored by political reporter Joel Weisman, that would have reporters analyzing the news and discussing trends.

Another of the nights might be devoted to a studio audience response type of news show like WTTW's monthly "Feedback" which could be converted into a weekly offering, Callaway said.

Callaway said he also plans to offer a quick headline service of the day's news events preceding the new 7 p.m. news and public affairs programming.

The station will keep its current news staff, except for its main anchorman, Jim Ruddle, who begins working as an NBC correspondent in Chicago next week. Formerly a newsman and anchor for the NBC owned station, WMAQ-TV in Chicago, Ruddle's move was anticipated with the announcement that WTTW would abandon its nightly newscast.

Reporter Christine Harris has assumed Ruddle's duties and is expected to participate in and host many of Channel 11's news shows.

THE STATION'S new documentary unit will be working out of WTTW's main studios and offices at 5400 N. St. Louis Ave., Chicago, where there are better equipped facilities. However, the remainder of the news staff and news shows will be headquartered at the station's downtown studio.

In an unprecedented move, Callaway said he plans to advertise the Channel 11's news shows in newspapers and on radio and television to attract more viewers.

"We'll try to find the money for it in our budget. I think it's necessary for us to advertise since we'll be offering an alternative and something different from what we've done in the past on a regular basis," he said.

Although all of these changes are economically motivated, it may be that the transition from nightly newscast to nightly news analysis, insight and elaboration ultimately could be a wise move for Channel 11.

VIEWERS BARELY can hope for complete illumination and in-depth reporting from commercial television newscasts because of time constraints and many find the newspapers' detailed accounts of events too laborious to wade through.

The type of news and public affairs programming Channel 11 has in mind may prove to be a form of futuristic news that will offer viewers a viable and rather painless explanation and not just reporting of the day's events.

But, everything sounds good on paper, and it will be up to Channel 11's management and news staff to see that its innovative news approach concept actually works.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- Burl Ives narrates the holiday perennial "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" at 7 p.m. on Channel 2.
- Bing Crosby's last Christmas show which was taped in London five weeks before his recent death features his entire family, David Bowie and Twiggy at 8 p.m. on Channel 2.
- "The Johnny Cash Christmas Show" offers a hootenanny with Roy Clark and June Carter Cash at 9 p.m. on Channel 2.

'California Suite'—sugary enough to coat your teeth

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Neil Simon is so neat, Fanny Mae should gift wrap him and sell him by the pound.

Until she does, the next best thing is "California Suite," which opened Tuesday night at Chicago's Blackstone Theatre.

This latest set piece by Simon is as well-packaged as it is banal. It consists of four sketches, totally unrelated except for the trivial fact that they all take place in the same Los Angeles hotel suite (hence the name).

THE ELABORATE reproduced suite is the best thing about this fluffy bit of theater business replete with gold-flowered wall paper, Renoir reproduction and a picture window with palms outside.

Review/theater

This is the stuff that nostalgia is made of. An occasional restaging of Simon's hits of the 1970s — "Barefoot in the Park" and "The Odd Couple" — can be harmless good fun. What's depressing about "California Suite" is that it isn't 10 years old. It only looks it.

Neil Simon excels at situation comedy. He got his start writing for television, and he never quite made the switch to the stage.

The first scene is a good example, with the snappy, surfacey riposte between a New York career woman and her California ex-husband. While arguing over the custody of their 17-year-old daughter, the man tells his wife he has given up smoking. She quickly asks, "My God, don't you miss the coughing and hacking in the morning?"

"CALIFORNIA SUITE" is filled with such one-liners, funny enough to keep the audience tittering without giving them anything to chew on.

There is one theme that may be of passing interest to local audiences. In it Elizabeth Allen gives a thinly veiled lampoon of Lynn Redgrave before and after losing an Academy award. Redgrave recently appeared at the Goodman Theatre in a piece of real theater, George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan."

"California Suite" may be your best chance to see television live and in person, but at the prices they are charging, you may as well turn on your set and see the real thing.

ELIZABETH ALLEN co-stars with Robert Reed in the Neil Simon comedy, "California Suite," which opened Tuesday at the Blackstone.

Show looks at preschool creativity

"Creative Art for Preschoolers" is the title of Sunday's edition of "Focus: Northwest," a public affairs presentation of the Office of College Relations at Harper College in Palatine, heard at 10 30 p.m. on WWMM-FM 92.7.

Jane Thomas and Nancy Leatzow, instructors in child development at Harper College, talk with Bruce Blair about ways to enhance your child's creativity within the confines of the average home environment.

WTTW goes in-depth with news format

No news could turn out to be good news at Channel 11.

There is no denying that economics has forced WTTW-TV management to reassess their capabilities and limitations as a news organization suffering the pains of competition with commercial television news shops that have more money, more staff and more resources at their disposal.

So, Channel 11 is changing its 7 p.m. weeknight news format in mid-January to offer what news director John Callaway calls "a respectable alternative" to the evening news on Chicago's commercial stations.

IT'S NOT REALLY a case of the public television station having failed in its attempt at a nightly newscast, Callaway said.

"Our news was working, but the commercial stations' coverage and presentation of the news recently changed. They are putting more money and more seriousness into their news now. The commercial stations are doing what we used to do," he said. "In the day of happy talk news not long ago, we were a very important alternative."

Callaway admits his three-year venture in in-depth newscasting had its problems, but could have continued if it weren't for the sheer economics of a limiting $800,000 annual news budget. "We just don't have the money to go beyond what we're doing now," he said.

But, Callaway, a bright, enthusiastic newsman who will continue hosting his own interview show Monday through Thursday at 7:30 p.m., insists the station will maintain some kind of news "presence" at 7 p.m.

The station will continue to provide a "national news block" Friday evenings made up of the public broadcasting system's "Washington Week in Review" and "Wall Street Week," leaving Monday through Thursday for local news programming at 7 p.m., Callaway said.

IT IS LIKELY that one night will be devoted to "video" programming that will alternate half-hour news documentaries, personality profiles and roundtable discussions of controversial issues similar to the excellent "Cab Crisis at City Hall" news special the station aired lastweek.

A new documentary unit headed by investigative reporter Mike Hirsh and former news producer Marty Killeen will work on many of the projects for that night.

"That new arrangement will allow us to utilize our two video crews in a way that will have more of an impact," Callaway said. "Right now the footage they produce is diminished to head shots and short clips."

Callaway admits consistent documentary effort has been a weakness of his news organization and the ability to produce one good documentary each week is nearly impossible.

"That's why we plan to alternate the documentaries with profiles and news specials. If we find we can only come up with four good documentaries in eight weeks, we'll just repeat what we have to," he said.

STATION MANAGEMENT tentatively plans to air a "Chicago Week in Review" wrap-up of news events on Thursday, possibly anchored by political reporter Joel Weisman, that would have reporters analyzing the news and discussing trends.

Another of the nights might be devoted to a studio audience response type of news show like WTTW's monthly "Feedback" which could be converted into a weekly offering, Callaway said.

Callaway said he also plans to offer a quick headline service of the day's news events preceding the new 7 p.m. news and public affairs programming.

The station will keep its current news staff, except for its main anchorman, Jim Ruddle, who begins working as an NBC correspondent in Chicago next week. Formerly a newsman and anchor for the NBC owned station, WMAQ-TV in Chicago, Ruddle's move was anticipated with the announcement that WTTW would abandon its nightly newscast.

Reporter Christine Harris has assumed Ruddle's duties and is expected to participate in and host many of Channel 11's news shows.

THE STATION'S new documentary unit will be working out of WTTW's main studios and offices at 5400 N. St. Louis Ave., Chicago, where there are better equipped facilities. However, the remainder of the news staff and news shows will be headquartered at the station's downtown studio.

In an unprecedented move, Callaway said he plans to advertise the Channel 11's news shows in newspapers and on radio and television to attract more viewers.

"We'll try to find the money for it in our budget. I think it's necessary for us to advertise since we'll be offering an alternative and something different from what we've done in the past on a regular basis," he said.

Although all of these changes are economically motivated, it may be that the transition from nightly newscast to nightly news analysis, insight and elaboration ultimately could be a wise move for Channel 11.

VIEWERS BARELY can hope for complete illumination and in-depth reporting from commercial television newscasts because of time constraints and many find the newspapers' detailed accounts of events too laborious to wade through.

The type of news and public affairs programming Channel 11 has in mind may prove to be a form of futuristic news that will offer viewers a viable and rather painless explanation and not just reporting of the day's events.

But, everything sounds good on paper, and it will be up to Channel 11's management and news staff to see that its innovative news approach concept actually works.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- Burl Ives narrates the holiday perennial "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" at 7 p.m. on Channel 2.
- Bing Crosby's last Christmas show which was taped in London five weeks before his recent death features his entire family, David Bowie and Twiggy at 8 p.m. on Channel 2.
- "The Johnny Cash Christmas Show" offers a hootenanny with Roy Clark and June Carter Cash at 9 p.m. on Channel 2.

'California Suite'—sugary enough to coat your teeth

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Review/theater

Neil Simon is so neat, Fanny Mae should gift wrap him and sell him by the pound.

Until she does, the next best thing is "California Suite," which opened Tuesday night at Chicago's Blackstone Theatre.

This latest set piece by Simon is as well-packaged as it is banal. It consists of four sketches, totally unrelated except for the trivial fact that they all take place in the same Los Angeles hotel suite (hence the name).

THE ELABORATE reproduced suite is the best thing about this fluffy bit of theater business replete with gold-flowered wall paper, Renoir reproduction and a picture window with palms outside.

This is the stuff that nostalgia is made of. An occasional restaging of Simon's hits of the 1970s — "Barefoot in the Park" and "The Odd Couple" — can be harmless good fun. What's depressing about "California Suite" is that it isn't 10 years old. It only looks it.

Neil Simon excels at situation comedy. He got his start writing for television, and he never quite made the switch to the stage.

The first scene is a good example, with the snappy, surfacey riposte between a New York career woman and her California ex-husband. While arguing over the custody of their 17-year-old daughter, the man tells his wife he has given up smoking. She quickly asks, "My God, don't you miss the coughing and hacking in the morning?"

"CALIFORNIA SUITE" is filled with such one-liners, funny enough to keep the audience tittering without giving them anything to chew on.

There is one theme that may be of passing interest to local audiences. In it Elizabeth Allen gives a thinly veiled lampoon of Lynn Redgrave before and after losing an Academy award. Redgrave recently appeared at the Goodman Theatre in a piece of real theater, George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan."

"California Suite" may be your best chance to see television live and in person, but at the prices they are charging, you may as well turn on your set and see the real thing.

ELIZABETH ALLEN co-stars with Robert Reed in the Neil Simon comedy, "California Suite," which opened Tuesday at the Blackstone.

Show looks at preschool creativity

"Creative Art for Preschoolers" is the title of Sunday's edition of "Focus: Northwest," a public affairs presentation of the Office of College Relations at Harper College in Palatine, heard at 10:30 p.m. on WWMM-FM 92.7.

Jane Thomas and Nancy Leatzow, instructors in child development at Harper College, talk with Bruce Blair about ways to enhance your child's creativity within the confines of the average home environment.

Larry Pressman shares life with long-time friend

by VERNON SCOTT

LARRY PRESSMAN, star of the new 'Mulligan's Stew' series, attended his wife's wedding to another man years ago and married her himself in 1972. The two have known each other 16 years.

Larry Pressman, star of the new "Mulligan's Stew" series, attended the wedding of his actress wife, Lanna Saunders, to another man years ago and married her himself five years ago.

They've known one another 16 years, dating when they were both single. But their friendship was strictly platonic until they discovered they'd fallen in love.

Today they make their home in the San Fernando valley with Lanna's son, David, 12. Pressman has known his stepson since birth, making for a happy, tight-knit family.

THE PRESSMANS were married in New York and shortly thereafter moved to Southern California.

Their three-bedroom cantilevered home hangs 20 feet above a canyon with a spectacular view of the hills, which are patrolled by their three cats, Peesha, Maude and Rhoda.

The Pressmans are art collectors and their home is decorated with good oil paintings and watercolors inherited from Lanna's father. An impressive portrait of Lanna dominates the living room.

Lanna's collection of sea shells is in evidence. but there isn't room enough in the house to display Larry's collection of Oriental screens and household Buddhas. Currently they are house-hunting for larger quarters.

Not the least of their acquistions are beautiful antiques which are combined with colorful contemporary furniture. Perhaps the most impressive which has been converted to a planter

THE HOUSE IS a natural for parties, and the Pressmans entertain regularly. Lanna is of Russian extraction and, according to Larry, a peerless cook of Russian delicacies.

They prefer to have two or three couples for dinner several times a month On occasion they preside at buffet dinners for 20 or more. Even for big parties Lanna does all the cooking. Guests can expect an array of perroshmi (meat pies), borscht, blini and cotlettes (fried ground veal, pork and beef patties). Larry limits his culinary activities to an occasional salad

Like many a Hollywood actor, Larry has become a health nut. He's out of bed at 4:30 on weekday mornings for a round of calisthentics and to jog a mile and a half around the neighborhood.

Breakfast, consisting of yogurt, melon and grapefruit juice, is served at Paramount Studios where the hour-long NBC family series is filmed. Lunch consists of a health food salad. More often than not Larry doesn't get home until 7 30. He eats lightly before going to bed.

On Saturdays Larry drives a few blocks to a public tennis court for a few sets of frantic singles and then spends the afternoon poking around antique stores or shopping for clothes with Lanna.

Sundays mean a day at the beach with David when the weather is clement.

ONE WEEKEND night is set aside for a quiet dinner at an elegant restaurant and the theater or a movie.

The Pressmans share a love of classical music. Their collection of eight-track stereo is heavy with Beethoven, Bach, Mozart, Mahler and Chopin.

Larry says his one indulgence is good clothes, mostly tweed suits and jackets.

"I buy good things and keep them a long time," he said. "I wouldn't dream of going to the theater in blue jeans."

(United Press International)

Players set two 'Charlie Brown' shows

To make possible school field trips to the December production of "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown," The Players of Schaumburg Repertory Company has scheduled two special performances of the show, at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Dec. 15 in Schaumburg Township Library Theatre, 32 W. Library Lane.

Group reservations for 10 or more persons are being accepted for the weekday performances. Admission is $1 75 for children under 10, $2 25 for students under 18, and $2.75 for adults.

Because the seating capacity of the theater is limited, it is suggested that reservations be made early and confirmed with full payment on or before Nov. 27.

"YOU'RE A GOOD Man, Charlie Brown" is a musical based on the Charles Schulz comic strip "Peanuts" and is suitable for all ages.

In the cast are Bonnie Willemssen, Leigh Heflin and Kim Koziol, all of Hanover Park; Scott Kenyon, Elmhurst; Susan Machnica and Kathy Mal, Schaumburg; Dan Kerth, Glen Ellyn; and Liz Featheringham, Hoffman Estates. Producer-director is Sonja Leraas, Schaumburg, assisted by choreographer Geni Lucchesi, Des Plaines, and pianist Marianne Zeh, Arlington Heights.

Additional performances of "Charlie Brown" are scheduled Dec. 10, 11, 17 and 18. Information on tickets and reservations may be obtained by calling 885-2380 after 4 p.m.

Larry Pressman shares life with long-time friend

by VERNON SCOTT

Larry Pressman, star of the new "Mulligan's Stew" series, attended the wedding of his actress wife, Lanna Saunders, to another man years ago and married her himself five years ago.

They've known one another 16 years, dating when they were both single. But their friendship was strictly platonic until they discovered they'd fallen in love.

Today they make their home in the San Fernando valley with Lanna's son, David, 12. Pressman has known his stepson since birth, making for a happy, tight-knit family.

THE PRESSMANS were married in New York and shortly thereafter moved to Southern California.

Their three-bedroom cantilevered home hangs 20 feet above a canyon with a spectacular view of the hills, which are patrolled by their three cats, Peesha, Maude and Rhoda.

The Pressmans are art collectors and their home is decorated with good oil paintings and watercolors inherited from Lanna's father. An impressive portrait of Lanna dominates the living room.

Lanna's collection of sea shells is in evidence, but there isn't room enough in the house to display Larry's collection of Oriental screens and household Buddhas. Currently they are house-hunting for larger quarters.

Not the least of their acquistions are beautiful antiques which are combined with colorful contemporary furniture. Perhaps the most impressive which has been converted to a planter.

THE HOUSE IS a natural for parties, and the Pressmans entertain regularly. Lanna is of Russian extraction and, according to Larry, a peerless cook of Russian delicacies.

They prefer to have two or three couples for dinner several times a month. On occasion they preside at buffet dinners for 20 or more. Even for big parties Lanna does all the cooking. Guests can expect an array of perroshmi (meat pies), borscht, blini and cotlettes (fried ground veal, pork and beef patties). Larry limits his culinary activities to an occasional salad.

Like many a Hollywood actor, Larry has become a health nut. He's out of bed at 4:30 on weekday mornings for a round of calisthentics and to jog a mile and a half around the neighborhood.

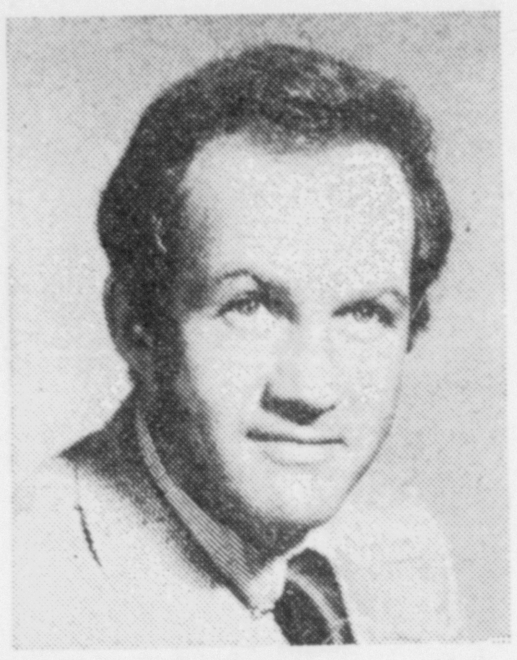
Breakfast, consisting of yogurt, melon and grapefruit juice, is served at Paramount Studios where the hour-long NBC family series is filmed. Lunch consists of a health food salad. More often than not Larry doesn't get home until 7:30. He eats lightly before going to bed.

On Saturdays Larry drives a few blocks to a public tennis court for a few sets of frantic singles and then spends the afternoon poking around antique stores or shopping for clothes with Lanna.

Sundays mean a day at the beach with David when the weather is clement.

ONE WEEKEND night is set aside for a quiet dinner at an elegant restaurant and the theater or a movie.

The Pressmans share a love of classical music. Their collection of eight-track stereo is heavy with Beethoven, Bach, Mozart, Mahler and Chopin.



LARRY PRESSMAN, star of the new 'Mulligan's Stew' series, attended his wife's wedding to another man years ago and married her himself in 1972. The two have known each other 16 years.

Larry says his one indulgence is good clothes, mostly tweed suits and jackets.

"I buy good things and keep them a long time," he said. "I wouldn't dream of going to the theater in blue jeans."

Players set two 'Charlie Brown' shows

To make possible school field trips to the December production of "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown," The Players of Schaumburg Repertory Company has scheduled two special performances of the show, at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Dec. 15 in Schaumburg Township Library Theatre, 32 W. Library Lane.

Group reservations for 10 or more persons are being accepted for the weekday performances. Admission is $1.75 for children under 10, $2.25 for students under 18, and $2.75 for adults.

Because the seating capacity of the theater is limited, it is suggested that reservations be made early and confirmed with full payment on or before Nov. 27.

"YOU'RE A GOOD Man, Charlie Brown" is a musical based on the Charles Schulz comic strip "Peanuts" and is suitable for all ages.

In the cast are Bonnie Willemssen, Leigh Heflin and Kim Koziol, all of Hanover Park; Scott Kenyon, Elmhurst; Susan Machnica and Kathy Mai, Schaumburg; Dan Kerth, Glen Ellyn; and Liz Featheringham, Hoffman Estates. Producer-director is Sonja Leraas, Schaumburg, assisted by choreographer Geni Lucchesi, Des Plaines, and pianist Marianne Zeh, Arlington Heights.

Additional performances of "Charlie Brown" are scheduled Dec. 10, 11, 17 and 18. Information on tickets and reservations may be obtained by calling 885-2360 after 4 p.m.

It's the Canon NP-50. For low-to-medium copying requirements. It's engineered with rugged solid state technology. It's compact, produces clear, legible copies in statement, letter and legal size, on plain paper that can be written on immediately. And copy onto transparencies, labeled stock and colored paper.

It will replace copiers like the Xerox 660 and old fashioned electrofax copiers that use coated paper to produce copies that are tough to write on and read.

The Canon NP-50 is so reliable it greatly reduces your operating costs. And our suggested retail price of $2975 includes a handsome rollaway stand. Another savings.

Find out more about a whole new generation in copiers, call or write us today.

Lack of investment by business hurts U.S. consumer: economists

by JOHN N. FRANK

The average American is being hurt financially by the reluctance of American business to invest in new plants and equipment, leading economists said Tuesday.

And it's up to the federal government to encourage such investment and thus help create new jobs, said speakers at Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Company's capital formation conference in Chicago.

Capital formation refers to business investment in plants and equipment. Economists agree the rate of such investment has been very low in recent years, despite upswings in the general economy.

"WHO ARE THE victims? They are not corporations. They are first, the unemployed who need to see more 'Help Wanted' signs in front of new factories. Second, all of us are victims in not seeing improvements in our standard of living," economist Paul W. McCracken said.

"What is detering the business management from investing is a question of uncertainty," said George W Ball, senior managing director of Lehman Brothers Inc., New York City.

The uncertainty concerns federal government plans for tax policy, environmental regulations and red tape that delays new construction and hampers its profitability, Ball said.

Roger E. Anderson, chairman of Continental Bank, said the federal government should:

- Enact an immediate massive tax cut for both industries and individuals.
- Increase investment tax credits.
- Change depreciation rates so they are more favorable to business.

"ONE THING THAT we need to do is have a clarification of government policy in money areas," Anderson said.

"A full-dress tax reform or revision package, about which we hear much talk, will take at least a year to work out and we should not wait that long," he said.

Government also should place "firm restraint on budget outlays in order that both the volume of Treasury borrowing and taxes can be reduced," McCracken said.

He also called for tax action including a reduction in corporate tax rates of about 4 per cent and an increase in the investment tax credit.

"The probability that without some such action capital formation will remain sluggish is high," McCracken said.

And while that may not sound important to the average worker, it could affect what he pays for things he buys as well as how much he earns.

Burns sees no drop in jobless rate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board Tuesday said he foresees no significant decline in the nation's unemployment rate during the next few years.

Burns also renewed his call for business tax cuts and predicted the Carter administration and Congress will act to dispel confusion within the business community over government economic policy and said he would give "serious consideration" to remaining on the board if President Carter decides not to reappoint him to the Fed's top post.

BURNS SAID he "almost certainly would accept" an offer from President Carter to continue as Fed chairman.

In a speech before the American Council of Life Insurance in New York, Burns said he was skeptical that the jobless rate, currently 7 per cent, would be reduced even though the administration is planning to stimulate the economy with tax cuts.

"Even with additional momentum imparted to the expansion," he said, "it is doubtful that the unemployment rate will drop over the next few years to uncertainty about governmental regarded as acceptable.

"The reason for skepticism," he said "is that a formidable array of structural factors is now impeding the smooth functioning of our labor markets."

The most prominent of these factors, Burns said, "is the recent upsurge in the growth of the labor force, a phenomenon dominated by sharply increasing participation of adult women."

Burns said women have entered the job market becuase of the "pressure of inflation on household budgets" which has "spurred many women to seek supplementary family income" and becase there have been "fundamental changes in social attitudes toward family life and careers for women."

BECAUSE WOMEN and young people have entered the job market in increasing numbers, unemployment has remained high. Thse two groups, he said "often lack relevant work experience."

Addressing the issue of business confidence, Burns said "indiscriminate federal injections of purchasing power into the economy would do little to end business reluctance to invest in major projects."

What is needed, he said, is "specific attention to the shortcomings of the business environment — particularly to uncertainly about governmental policy concerning taxes, inflation, energy, and environmental controls."

Husband's pension latest target of divorced wife

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — In divorce court, lawyers are going after, and winning, a piece of the husband's pension for his ex-wife. Some judges order payments to the wife when the husband retires; others have demanded an immediate cash distribution from the pension trust.

Traditionally, there have been legal and practical barriers to dividing pension funds between husband and wife. But judges in a number of states are accepting new arguments, in order to tap this source of money.

"Practically speaking, there aren't a lot of assets in most divorces," says Henry Allen Pattiz, a Beverly Hills tax attorney who lectures widely on employe benefits and pension plans. "Pension funds represent money the couple has been forced to save rather than spend, or money that was saved for them and kept out of their reach. Judges are now deciding that it just isn't fair to let one partner in the marriage walk away with what may be the only pool of cash."

THE DIVISION of pension funds began in California, a community property state where the assets of the marriage are jointly owned by husband and wife. In effect, the wife goes after the funds as co-owner.

Judges are not uniform in their decisions on this matter. Even within the same state, different jurisdictions are ruling differently as to whether the spouse does indeed share in the ownership of the pension, or whether its funds can be dispersed. What has emerged is a hodgepodge of conflicting cases, in which litigants on both sides can find points favorable to their point of view.

The problems faced by businesses when they get a court order to distribute pension funds to the ex-spouse are enormous, reports Business Week. Under federal law, the entire pension plan can lose its tax shelter if any money is distributed before retirement. So far this issue has not been joined. Pattiz believes that no actual distributions have yet been made, and in any case, the government is looking the other way.

Companies and unions also face tremendous legal and bookkeeping costs if they have to divide pension accounts and send a representative to the divorce hearings of every employe or union member. Banks that are pension-fund trustees may also get involved Lawyers handling pension cases predict that there will soon be a lawsuit challenging the court's right to distribute pension money to an ex-spouse.

In Pattiz's view, the best solution is a federal law establishing uniform rules on pension divisions for all the states .When the law on Individual Retirement Accounts was written, provision was made for dividing the money in case of divorce, without incurring penalties. The same could be done for Keogh and employer-funded plans.

Dockworkers OK contract, end strike

Striking dockworkers have voted overwhelmingly to accept new three-year contracts with east and gulf coast shippers, International Longshoremen's Assn. Pres. Thomas W. Gleason announced Tuesday. The settlement, which contains job security provisions and wage increaes, ended a two-month-old strike against containerized and automated shipping cargoes. Gleason, speaking at ILA headquarters in New York said longshoremen in the northeast had approved the tentative settlements by a vote of 10,537 to 3,583, and trends in other Atlantic and gulf coast cities were running "three to four to one in favor of the argeements." About 50,000 ILA members stopped handling cargo carried on container and automated ships Oct. 1, when the old contracts expired. The major issue in the strike was a guaranteed annual income for dockworkers, who have lost jobs because of containerization and the automation of cargo handling. The U.S Dept. of Commerce Monday blamed the strike, which sharply reduced exports, for the nation's record $3.1 billion foreign trade deficit in the month of October.

During the strike, longshoremen handled only bulk cargo ships, and perishable and strategic goods on container or automated ships. A tentative agreement was reached Nov. 13 between the New York ILA local and the Council of North Atlantic Shipping Associations and New York Shipping Assn

Firestone urged to recall radials

A consumer group, saying it has received numerous complaints about Firestone 500 steel belted radial tires, Tuesday asked the company to recall them and spend more money on quality control. The Center for Auto Safety said there has been a "sharp increase" in complaints about the tires blowing out or suffering from tread separation, to the point where half of the complaints it is now receiving from consumers concern Firestone tires. Firestone said: "We have not seen the letters received by the center . . . and would not be able to comment on the validity of the conclusions drawn by the center without studying the inormation on which they are based."

'Business conditions look good'

Business conditions will improve in 1978, but the economic pace should peak sometime around the first quarter and then decline in the second half, the National Assn. of Purchasing Management reported today The NAPM's semi-annual look ahead revealed 59 per cent of the purchasing agents expect business to be better next year and 15 per cent expect worsening conditions. Asked the same question at this time last year, 69 per cent were optimistic and 12 per cent negative about the business outlook. Fifty per cent said the 1978 first half should strengthen compared with 1977 second half and 12 per cent believe it will weaken. But only 30 per cent believe the 1978 second hald will outpace the first half and 17 per cent expect a poorer performance. The organization's semi-annual surveys in 1976 and 1977 revealed similar expectations about the next year's business cycle an improvement which peaks at the end of the first quarter or early into the second quarter, followed by a decline in the rate of growth in the second half.

Oil companies tax credits probed

A House subcommittee threatened Tuesday to subpoena information from the IRS unless the administration decides in six weeks whether oil companies should continue receiving billions of dollars in credits for foreign taxes they pay. "Since 1973, the cost of these (tax) credits to the U.S. Treasury has risen to over $7 billion," said Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y. "and they are increasing at the rate of an additional $3.5 million per day." Comr. Jerome Kurtz of the Internal Revenue Service told Rosenthal's house government operations subcommittee his agency has reviewed a 22-year-old ruling allowing oil firms credit on their U.S. taxes for some payments they make to oil-producing nations.

Lack of investment by business hurts U.S. consumer: economists

by JOHN N. FRANK

The average American is being hurt financially by the reluctance of American business to invest in new plants and equipment, leading economists said Tuesday.

And it's up to the federal government to encourage such investment and thus help create new jobs, said speakers at Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Company's capital formation conference in Chicago.

Capital formation refers to business investment in plants and equipment. Economists agree the rate of such investment has been very low in recent years, despite upswings in the general economy.

"WHO ARE THE victims? They are not corporations. They are first, the unemployed who need to see more 'Help Wanted' signs in front of new factories. Second, all of us are victims in not seeing improvements in our standard of living," economist Paul W. McCracken said.

"What is detering the business management from investing is a question of uncertainty," said George W. Ball, senior managing director of Lehman Brothers Inc., New York City.

The uncertainty concerns federal government plans for tax policy, environmental regulations and red tape that delays new construction and hampers its profitability, Ball said.

Roger E. Anderson, chairman of Continental Bank, said the federal government should:

- Enact an immediate massive tax cut for both industries and individuals.
- Increase investment tax credits.

Government also should place "firm restraint on budget outlays in order that both the volume of Treasury borrowing and taxes can be reduced," McCracken said.

He also called for tax action including a reduction in corporate tax rates of about 4 per cent and an increase in the investment tax credit.

"The probability that without some such action capital formation will remain sluggish is high," McCracken said.

And while that may not sound important to the average worker, it could affect what he pays for things he buys as well as how much he earns.

Special Assessment Notice

VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS SPECIAL ASSESSMENT No. 184

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the President and Board of Trustees of the VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Cook County, Illinois, have ordered the levying of a special assessment as follows:

That the roadway of the east one-half of Old Wilke Road from and connecting with the existing pavement in Central Road, southerly to and connecting with the existing pavement in Algonquin Road at a point three thousand, one hundred seventy two (3,172) feet, more or less, south of the south line of said Central Road, be improved by grading, paving, curbing and drainage, all complete in place in the VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Cook County, Illinois.

The ordinance for the said improvement is on file in the office of the Clerk of the VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, at the Village Hall, and the VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS has applied to the Circuit Court of Cook County, for the levying of the special assessment to pay the cost of the said improvement accordingly and returned to the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois, County Department, County Division, Chicago Civic Center, and known as Special Assessment No. 184.

The final hearing will be had on the said proceeding on the 22nd day of December, 1977, at the opening of Court or as soon thereafter as the business of the Court will permit.

All persons desiring to do so may file objections in the said Court before said day and may appear at the said hearing and make defense.

Said ordinance provides for the collection of the said assessment in ten (10) installments with interest thereon at seven per cent (7%) per annum.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT on the 15th day of December, 1977 at the hour of 8:00 P.M. there will be a public hearing at the PUBLIC SAFETY BOARDROOM, 112 East Northwest Highway, concerning a petition for change to the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect as follows:

CASE NO. ZBA-49-V-77 commonly known as 109 S. Busse Rd.

A request for a variation from Article I Section 14.101-D "To rebuild, structurally alter, add to or relocate any building or structure or part thereof."

And G. "To construct one building on more than one lot, or to occupy more than one lot by more than one main use."

Also, Article XXVI Section 14.2602-B-26, "Lot: Portion of platted territory measured, set apart, and subdivided as a distinct parcel having its principal frontage upon a street and shown upon a plat of subdivision or resubdivision approved by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect and so recorded by the Recorder of Deeds of Cook County, Illinois, or so registered by the Registrar of Titles of Cook County, Illinois, as the case may be."

In the alternative I would request that in this unusual instance you overrule the Zoning Administrator, in that I don't believe that the intent of the above sections was meant to apply in this case.

Legal description of the property commonly known as: 109 S. Busse Road, Mt. Prospect, Illinois 60056.

That part of Lots F and J in Kirchhoff's Subdivision of the Northwest quarter of the Northwest quarter and the North 10 chains of the Southwest quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section 11, Township 41 North, Range 11 East of the Third Principal Meridian described as follows:

Commencing at a point in the West line of said Lot F 320 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence East on a line 320 feet North of and parallel to the South line of Lots F and J as measured on the west line of said Lot F, 733.95 feet to the Center of Weller Creek; thence Northerly along the Center of Weller Creek 120 feet to a line 440 feet North of and parallel with the South line of Lots F and J, as measured on the West line of said Lot F; thence West on said parallel line 729.55 feet to the West line of Lot F; thence South on the West line of Lot F 120 feet to the place of beginning; containing 2.0155 Acres more or less in Cook County, Illinois, except the West 24.75 feet thereof.

Special Assessment Notice

VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS SPECIAL ASSESSMENT No. 184

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the President and Board of Trustees of the VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Cook County, Illinois, have ordered the levying of a special assessment as follows:

That the roadway of the east one-half of Old Wilke Road from and connecting with the existing pavement in Central Road, southerly to and connecting with the existing pavement in Algonquin Road at a point three thousand, one hundred seventy two (3,172) feet, more or less, south of the south line of said Central Road, be improved by grading, paving, curbing and drainage.
all complete in place in the VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Cook County, Illinois.

The ordinance for the said improvement is on file in the office of the Clerk of the VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, at the Village Hall, and the VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS has applied to the Circuit Court of Cook County, for the levying of the special assessment to pay the cost of the said improvement accordingly and returned to the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois, County Department, County Division, Chicago Civic Center, and known as Special Assessment No. 184.

The final hearing will be had on the said proceeding on the 22nd day of December, 1977, at the opening of Court or as soon thereafter as the business of the Court will permit.

All persons desiring to do so may file objections in the said Court before said day and may appear at the said hearing and make defense.

Said ordinance provides for the collection of the said assessment in ten (10) installments with interest thereon at seven per cent (7%) per annum.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT on the 15th day of December, 1977 at the hour of 8:00 P.M. there will be a public hearing at the PUBLIC SAFETY BOARDROOM, 112 East Northwest Highway, concerning a petition for change to the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect as follows:

CASE NO. ZBA-49-V-77 commonly known as 109 S. Busse Rd.

A request for a variation from Article I Section 14.101-D "To rebuild, structurally alter, add to or relocate any building or structure or part thereof."

And G. "To construct one building on more than one lot, or to occupy more than one lot by more than one main use."

Also, Article XXVI Section 14.2602-B-26, "Lot: Portion of platted territory measured, set apart, and subdivided as a distinct parcel having its principal frontage upon a street and shown upon a plat of subdivision or resubdivision approved by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect and so recorded by the Recorder of Deeds of Cook County, Illinois, or so registered by the Registrar of Titles of Cook County, Illinois, as the case may be."

In the alternative I would request that in this unusual instance you overrule the Zoning Administrator, in that I don't believe that the intent of the above sections was meant to apply in this case.

Legal description of the property commonly known as: 109 S. Busse Road, Mt. Prospect, Illinois 60056.

That part of Lots F and J in Kirchhoff's Subdivision of the Northwest quarter of the Northwest quarter and the North 10 chains of the Southwest quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section 11, Township 41 North, Range 11 East of the Third Principal Meridian described as follows:

Commencing at a point in the West line of said Lot F 320 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence East on a line 320 feet North of and parallel to the South line of Lots F and J as measured on the west line of said Lot F, 733.95 feet to the Center of Weller Creek;

thence Northerly along the Center of Weller Creek 120 feet to a line 440 feet North of and parallel with the South line of Lots F and J, as measured on the West line of said Lot F; thence West on said parallel line 729.55 feet to the West line of Lot F; thence South on the West line of Lot F 120 feet to the place of beginning; containing 2.0155 Acres more or less in Cook County, Illinois, except the West 24.75 feet thereof.

Tryst claimed before 'love kidnaping'

MORMON MISSIONARY Kirk Anderson leaves court in Epsom, England following his testimony in pretrial hearing in the case of former beauty contestant Joyce McKinney, who is charged with kidnaping him for sexual intercourse.

EPSOM, England (UPI) — A blonde American beauty queen Tuesday testified a Mormon missionary bought a king-sized bed and asked her to "try it out" with him before they got married. She denied charges she kidnaped him and shackled him to a bed in order to have sex with him.

Joyce McKinney, 27, of Asheville, N.C., said in a final defense statement she had fallen in love with Kirk Anderson, a Mormon missionary, at first sight, became pregnant by him and wanted to marry him.

Anderson, 21, of Provo, Utah, who sat quietly reading his Bible at the rear of the courtroom, denied he had willingly taken part in a sexual "bondage" game with Ms. McKinney and insisted she kidnaped him and forced him to have sex.

MS. McKINNEY, who followed Anderson to England from the United States, is charged with abducting him with a toy gun and chloroform and holding him against his will for three days. On the last night of his captivity, she allegedly shackled him to a bed with the aid of a friend, ripped off his clothes and forced him to have sex.

Ms. McKinney does not contest the charges but says she acted with Anderson's permission in order to rescue him from the Mormon church.

Anderson denied it and told the court Tuesday he even burned his underwear after having sex with Ms.McKinney because it had been "desecrated."

"I will never forget the first quiver when he looked at me," Ms. McKinney said in her final defense statement. "That night I felt more in love than I had ever done in my whole life.

"He didn't make a grab at me," she said. "He asked me to get married."

"IN PREPARATION for our marriage he had ordered a king-sized bed," Miss McKinney said.

"Kirk said he would like to try it out," she said. "I took a shower and I put on a sexy nightgown. He was under the covers nude. I was Miss Wyoming in the U.S. pageant and I don't have to seduce boys. He pulled me into bed."

Miss McKinney said she later discovered she was pregnant and suffered a miscarriage.

Earlier, Anderson denied a suggeston by defense lawyer Stuart Elgrod that the love session in England during which he was chained and shackled was in fact a "very elaborate (sex) scenario."

Anderson admitted he had discussed his "problems" with Ms. McKinney after his kidnaping.

"I THINK YOU told us that as a result of a visit to a psychiatrist (on her part) that she was told that physical bondage was an important part of your sexual relationship," a defense lawyer said.

'I think she said I was sexually repressed," Anderson replied.

Anderson said on the last night of his three days' captivity at the remote cottage in southeast England, Ms. McKinney and an accomplice, Joseph Keith May, 24 of Maywood, Calif., spreadeagled him on his bed and shackled his arms and legs to a bed after he refused to have sex with her.

"They both came down and May was carrying rope and he assisted in securing me to the bed I didn't know the intention was to have forced sexual intercourse," he said.

"I did not resist. After they tied down one leg and then the other I could not resist the rest," the crew-cut missionary said.

ELGROD ASKED Anderson what happened to the underclothes he claimed were ripped from his body by Miss McKinney as he lay shackled on a bed during the sex act.

"I disposed of them in their condition," Anderson said. "I burned them. It is part of my belief that they were so sacred to me that any time they were desecrated in any way I have to dispose of them."

The pretrial hearing will continue Dec. 6.

Ms McKinney said she was Miss Wyoming in 1973.

Vietnamese in Maine being harassed and beaten

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Some South Vietnamese refugees living in Maine have been attacked and harassed by young men, but the attackers sometime have gotten more than they bargained for from their combat-wise victims

"These Americans don't realize who they're messing with," said Mickey O'Malley of the state Division of Community Services "These South Vietnamese, the young men anyway, have spent most of their life fighting. They're tough, and they won't be pushed around.

"I'm scared some of these American kids will end up in the hospital, which could really set off some reprisals," said Mrs O'Malley, director of the Citizens Assistance Line Two years ago she coordinated the move of 160 of Maine's 400 refugees into the state.

SEVERAL ATTACKS on Vietnamese refugees in Augusta have been reported to police within the last six months, but refugees report things have quieted down.

The incidents included beatings, vandalism and thefts Such attacks have resulted in four Americans being indicted by a Kennebec County grand jury on charges of assaulting and terrorizing Vietnamese Two other cases were still pending grand jury action

The refugees also report some merchants have taken advantage of them. Police said there were reports of verbal harassment in nearby Winthrop involving American women who date Vietnamese

Among incidents described recently by police or included by Mrs. O'Malley in a report to Gov. James B. Longley last May:

- A Vietnamese man visiting a brother in Augusta several months ago was yanked from a car and attacked by two men with knives. He kicked one assailant and took away his knife but was jumped from behind and held by the other while the first one beat him. One man pleaded guilty to a charge of simple assault and the other faces trial next month for aggravated assault.

- During the summer, That Dinh Tran, 23, of Augusta, said he was harrassed by five American teen-agers after he refused to give them money. He tried to throw some of them out of his apartment and later found two tires on his car slashed

- In October, Aiep Minh Le, 23, of Augusta, found the windows of his automobile smashed. He said the vandalism was directed against him because he is Vietnamese.

"We're not looking for trouble," he said "The Americans are jealous, I think. We have very little here, but they think we're stealing their jobs.

"Things are quiet now. That makes us happy. No one has bothered us. But we know how to kill," said Le, who received combat training while with an intelligence organization in South Vietnam.

FORMER SOUTH Vietnamese, Toan Son Ngoc, 25; Tam Van Nguyun, 23; and Hiep Minh Le, 23, all now residing in Augusta, Maine sit in their apartment and tell a reporter of their problems. Hiep recently had the windows of his car smashed, because he says, he is Vietnamese. Toan's apartment was broken into and his stereo, color TV, and aquarium were smashed. Things are quiet now they say, but adds Hiep, who served with a S. Vietnamese intelligence unit, "we know how to kill."

McClellan to be buried today; successor sought

LITTLE ROCK (UPI) — Veteran Arkansas Sen John L McClellan, a staunch conservative Democrat who gained a crime-busting reputation as chairman of the Senate Rackets Committee in the 1950s, will be buried today in the state that sent him to Washington for more than four decades

In failing health for the past several months, McClellan died in his sleep Sunday night He was 81

Only a few hours after McClellan's death was announced Monday, speculation began at the state capitol about whom Gov David Pryor would appoint as McClellan's successor

THE NEW SENATOR will serve only the remainder of McClellan's term, which ends Jan. 3, 1979. Arkansas law forbids appointed officeholders to run in the next election.

Among the possible replacements mentioned were former Rep. Wilbur Mills and former Sen J. William Fulbright. Norma McClellan, the senator's widow, was also mentioned as a possibility Aides to the governor, however, said the name of McClellan's successor probably wouldn't be as well known as either Mills or Fulbright. Their suggestion was that the governor would choose a close friend, a lawyer and possibly someone from Pryor's native southern Arkansas.

McClellan, also chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee, had announced a week earlier he would not seek office again

A SPOKESMAN for the family said the body of the Southern senator would lie in state in the capitol rotunda from 10 a.m. to noon for the public Funeral services were scheduled for 2 p m CST.

"The unexpected death of Senator John L. McClellan deprives the Senate of a resolute and gifted lawmaker," President Carter said. "He persistently spoke out for a strong national defense and upheld integrity in the operations of government.

"I am especially grateful for his wise and generous counsel during the early months of my administration."

McClellan served nearly 36 years in the Senate and, previously, four years in the House.

Teaching of creation theory asked

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

"Equal time" is being asked for the theory of creation in High School Dist. 214 biology classes

Where evolution is taught as an explanation of man's origins, the Biblical theory of God's creation of the universe should be taught as well, Elk Grove Village resident Lawrence Pahl told the Dist 214 Board of Education Monday

"By being presented only the evolutionary explanation, students are outrightly cheated of their liberty to hear both sides of this fundamentally important matter, the origin of life," Pahl, a Dist. 214 substitute teacher, said.

Pahl said public opinion samplings in the Midwest indicate a large percentage of persons favor teaching both creation and evolution in the public schools.

"As a board you have to take this into account," he said.

WHILE MAKING no decision on the issue, the board did agree to review biology textbooks Pahl said deal with the question of man's origins from both viewpoints.

None of the four biology textbooks currently used in the district have a chapter on the theory of creation, Associate Supt. Roderick McLennan said. He added, though, that the books don't stress evolution as an explanation of man's origins either.

"Evolution is taught as something apart from who started it all," McLennan said. "It's presented as a characteristic that causes changes of structure."

Board member Richard Bachhuber said he would be hesitant about introducing creation theory in the classroom because of its religious connotation.

"How do we practically disassociate religion in teaching creation theory?" he asked. "If we can't separate it we have a problem that's very difficult to handle."

PAHL SAID HE is a firm believer in the First Amnemdnet and "the wisdom behind it," but that he believes it's possible to present the scientific merits of creation theory.

McLennan said he thinks the subject of creation is best covered by the district's controversial issues policy, which states that students can be excused without penalty from discussions contrary to their beliefs or their family's beliefs

Optional materials on creation theory can be made available in school libraries for students who choose to learn more about it, he said.

Tryst claimed before 'love kidnaping'

MORMON MISSIONARY Kirk Anderson leaves court in Epsom, England following his testimony in pretrial hearing in the case of former beauty contestant Joyce McKinney, who is charged with kidnaping him for sexual intercourse.

EPSOM, England (UPI) — A blonde American beauty queen Tuesday testified a Mormon missionary bought a king-sized bed and asked her to "try it out" with him before they got married. She denied charges she kidnaped him and shackled him to a bed in order to have sex with him.

Joyce McKinney, 27, of Asheville, N.C., said in a final defense statement she had fallen in love with Kirk Anderson, a Mormon missionary, at first sight, became pregnant by him and wanted to marry him.

Anderson, 21, of Provo, Utah, who sat quietly reading his Bible at the rear of the courtroom, denied he had willingly taken part in a sexual "bondage" game with Ms. McKinney and insisted she kidnaped him and forced him to have sex.

English lovers told to spare the rod or start packing

LONDON (UPI) — Under English common law a husband was allowed to beat his wife as long as he did it with a stick "no bigger than his thumb" to give her "moderate correction."

But that common law has been replaced by a new one that gives a wife — and now a common-law wife — recourse against a husband who raises a stick against her, even if it is only thumb-sized

She can kick him out of his home

In an historic judgment Monday, the Court of Appeal ruled that Britain's five-month-old Domestic Violence and Matrimonial Proceedings Act applies to common-law wives or mistresses.

THE CASE HEARD by five senior appeal judges hinged on whether 21-year-old Jennifer Davis could have her violent common-law husband, Nehemiah Johnson, evicted from their joint-tenancy apartment.

According to court testimony, Johnson had threatened Ms. Davis "with a screwdriver, said he would kill her and dump her in the river. He kept an ax under the bed and threatened to chop her body up and put her in the deep freeze."

The court ruled for Ms. Davis and her right to turn Johnson out of their home. And it ruled against the traditional view of property rights.

"Yesterday's precedent-making decision by the Court of Appeal narrows the legal gap between mistress and wife to a slim line I would never have thought possible in English law," a newspaper columnist wrote Tuesday.

"The one-time solid pillars of the matrimonial state are cracking under the weight of the even more solid fact that nowadays many couples simply are not getting married," he said.

THE APPEAL COURT ruling is only one in a sequence of judgments establishing rights for mistresses.

In 1972, a woman was awarded one third of the value of the cottage she helped her fiance build before they broke off their engagement.

In 1975, a court awarded a mistress one quarter of the value of the "love-nest" her married lover bought but she renovated.

child support and the right to claim a portion of his estate if he is supporting them at the time of his death.

But it was only 16 years ago that Lord Justice Hodson ruled in a case in which a common-law wife claimed a share of the home she had shared

And other court judgments have given mistresses custody of children from a common-law marriage, the right to take the father to court for with her late lover.

"This dispute is to be treated as a dispute between strangers. It is not a situation where the only just solution is to treat the parties on an equal footing," Hodson said

'Battered woman' innocent in husband's gun killing

MARQUETTE, Mich. (UPI) — A woman described by police as a battered wife who killed her husband by firing both barrels of a shotgun at him as he walked through the front door of their home was found innocent of murder Tuesday

The verdict by Marquette County Circuit Judge John E. McDonald clearing Sharon McNearney, 42, was returned following a two-day nonjury trial. The judge said the prosecution failed to prove she had not acted in self defense

Mrs. McNearney had been charged with murder for shooting her husband, George, 45, last Feb 12, with a 20-gauge shotgun.

HER ONLY DEFENSE was a tape-recorded statement given to Marquette Police detectives immediately following the shooting. In it, she told of an argument with her husband earlier in the day and her fear that she would face physical violence upon his return.

McDonald, reached at his home after the trial ended, refused to discuss the basis of his ruling in detail.

"The issue was whether the killing was in self defense," he said "The prosecution did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that it was not in self defense."

Another Michigan case raising the rights of battered housewives ended in Lansing last month with a jury finding Francine Hughes innocent by reason of temporary insanity in the torch slaying of her husband following 13 years of physical abuse.

Capt. Marvin Gauthier, head of the department's detective division, told a reporter after the McNearney trial there had been a history of wife beatings involving the couple, who had teen age children

Gauthier said McNearney had been arrested for felonious assault a year and a half ago for firing a gun at his wife

Mrs. McNearney, in the statement presented at the trial, also told of past batterings.

HEART ATTACK PREVENTION

A resting electrocardiogram is taken at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. to detect any heart abnormalities.

Of every six people who get cancer today two will be saved and four will die. Of the four who would otherwise die one might be saved with earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment. (According to American Cancer Society publication '76 Cancer Facts and Figures.)

The health examination services available at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection include all cancer detection procedures recommended by the American Cancer Society, Illinois Division

Heart Disease accounts for nearly half of all deaths each year. Unlike most Cancer, Heart Attack can be postponed through reducing one's risk factors such as diet, exercise, blood pressure, smoking, etc. Dr. Morris Collen, a well known specialist in preventive medicine, was quoted in the January 1977 issue of FORTUNE: if one has a checkup every year or two at age thirty five and thereafter, directed at postponable diseases, the mortality rate from those diseases after seven years is approximately 50 percent of what it would have been without exams.

The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. offers a preventive health screening examination designed for three purposes

1. To establish a health profile for each individual to be used as a base line for future care.
2. To analyze an individual's risk factors for heart disease and cancer and statistically forecast probable life expectancy and suggest ways it might actually be increased by reducing the risk factors found
3. Screen for treatable disease. Early detection and prompt treatment increase the probability of a favorable outcome

This meticulous 3 hour low cost examination includes a computerized medical history, health risk analysis, physical examination, proctosigmoidoscopy, chest x-ray, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, over 30 chemical determinations on blood and urine, vision, audiometry, spirometry, glaucoma test, body measurements. Women also receive a pap smear and instruction in breast self examination. Exercise stress test, 24 hour holter [illegible] and [illegible] cardiography are available as options.

Give yourself the best protection available today against cancer and heart disease by calling your physician or the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. located at 1000 Grand Canyon Parkway, Hoffman Estates, Illinois. Act now before Dec. 31...

and save $250, $500, $1,000 or more in income taxes ...every year!

Individual Retirement Account
for those employed without pension plan

If you are salaried or a wage earner not covered by a pension plan (other than social security) you should start your own retirement plan. By opening an Individual Retirement Account with Lincoln Federal Savings you can deposit up to $1,500 or up to $1,750 in a joint IRA with a non working spouse (or 15% of your income—whichever is less) in a tax sheltered account with us.

You can claim full amount of your annual deposits for income tax deductions; also, you won't have to pay any tax on the interest your Individual Retirement Account earns until the funds are actually paid to you. That will be after retirement, when you'll be in a lower tax bracket.

How does this tax shelter of $1,500 save you money?

	No Tax Shelter	Tax Shelter
Pre tax income	$1,500	$1,500
Income tax at 25%	375	0
Net after tax extra income	$1,125	$1,500

Remember too, earnings on your annual deposits are tax free until after retirement (see table on left which shows how fast an IRA accumulates)

Keogh Retirement Plans
for the self-employed

If you are self employed - a doctor, lawyer, farmer, barber or accountant (even if only part time) you can set aside 15% of your annual earned income up to a maximum of $7,500 in a Keogh Self Employed Retirement Account with Lincoln Federal

For example $7,500 deposited annually in a Lincoln Federal six year certificate earning 7¾% compounded daily would earn more than $228,000 in interest alone in 20 years. Principal plus interest would be more than $378,000!

Rollovers
Pension Plan Terminated? Changing Jobs?

If your pension or profit sharing plan has been terminated or you've just changed employers and anticipate or have received a payout you can now transfer your funds to an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) Rollover Plan within 60 days after the payout is received. To get the tax free break, you must "Rollover" all the funds you received from the distribution less your own contributions, if any

What this means to you - you postpone the taxes due on the payout until retirement when you'll probably be in a lower tax bracket, so tax savings as well as tax deferment is at stake

Individual Retirement Account
for those employed without pension plan

If you are salaried or a wage earner not covered by a pension plan (other than social security) you should start your own retirement plan. By opening an Individual Retirement Account with Lincoln Federal Savings you can deposit up to $1,500 or up to $1,750 in a joint IRA with a non-working spouse (or 15% of your income—whichever is less) in a tax-sheltered account with us.

You can claim full amount of your annual deposits for income tax deductions: also, you won't have to pay any tax on the interest your Individual Retirement Account earns until the funds are actually paid to you. That will be after retirement, when you'll be in a lower tax bracket.

How does this tax shelter of $1,500 save you money?

Net after tax extra income	$1,125	$1,500

Remember too, earnings on your annual deposits are tax free until after retirement (see table on left which shows how fast an IRA accumulates).

Keogh Retirement Plans
for the self-employed

If you are self-employed - a doctor, lawyer, farmer, barber or accountant (even if only part time) - you can set aside 15% of your annual earned income up to a maximum of $7,500 in a Keogh-Self Employed Retirement Account with Lincoln Federal.

For example $7,500 deposited annually in a Lincoln Federal six-year certificate earning 7¾% compounded daily would earn more than $228,000 in interest alone in 20 years. Principal plus interest would be more than $378,000!

Rollovers
Pension Plan Terminated? Changing Jobs?

If your pension or profit-sharing plan has been terminated or you've just changed employers and anticpate or have received a payout you can now transfer your funds to an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) Rollover Plan within 60 days after the payout is received. To get the tax-free break, you must "Rollover" all the funds you received from the distribution less your own contributions, if any.

What this means to you - you postpone the taxes due on the payout until retirement when you'll probably be in a lower tax bracket, so tax savings as well as tax deferment is at stake.

Without Pistol, Jazz falls to Bulls

by DON FRISKE

Ed Badger looked up at the scoreboard as he went to perform one of his many chores as coach of the Bulls. Halftime pep talks are a part of the contract.

This one was needed, thanks to a horrid first half by the home team at Chicago Stadium Tuesday night. But, thanks to the visiting New Orleans Jazz, the Bulls were still in the game.

So Badger gave his talk, the players listened and, 24 playing minutes later, 13,286 spectators went home in a happy mood as the Bulls defeated the Jazz, 95-87.

THE SUBJECTS OF the halftime discussion were defense and shot selection, two things the Bulls forgot all about in the first two quarters.

"We were just standing around and shooting off the wrong foot," Badger said. "As bad as we played, we were still in it."

The bulls committed 14 turnovers in the first half, but the Jazz equaled that number. But the Bulls sank only 14 of 43 field goal attempts before the intermission. That was for a meager 33 per cent, but still only trailed by two points, 42-40.

Both teams were without their star-players in the first half. Pete Maravich, the NBA's leader in scoring with a 27.8 average, was back in New Orleans with a sore bone spur on his big toe.

BULLS CENTER Artis Gilmore was on the floor, but only in a very limited capacity. The Jazz used a zone defense to eliminate the big guy's effectiveness, so he went to the bench for most of the second quarter and finished the half with only six points.

While Maravich sat at home nursing his toe, Gilmore was getting ready for a sparkling second-half performance. The Bulls' middleman scored 15 points after the break as the Jazz quickly saw their tiny advantage turn into a large disadvantage, one they could never overcome.

The Bulls came storming out of their locker room to outscore New Orleans 28-8 during the first seven minutes of the third period. Norm Van Lier's two points on a goaltending call gave the Bulls a 64-50 lead.

The visitors closed to within eight points with 5:57 left in the game, but the Bulls went back to some sound defense and ran off nine straight points to clinch the decision.

GILMORE WAS THE game's leading scorer with 21 points while Mickey Johnson contributed 18 for the Bulls. Leonard "Truck" Robinson led the Jazz with 17 points, but was held to only nine rebounds, far below his league-leading mark of 16.4.

But the Jazz were undoubtedly a different team without Maravich, who missed his first game of the season. New Orleans was working on a five-game winning streak coming into Chicago, and in the last four of those victories the Pistol had a scoring average of 36.3 points.

"Without Pete, we were shorthanded one guard," said Elgin Baylor, the Jazz coach. "That means more guys are involved in our offense. They (Bulls) had the shots, but they wouldn't fall. Maybe it was an element of surprise."

The Bulls, who made only four of 21 attempts in the second quarter for 19 per cent, showed their sharpest turnaround in the next period. In those 12 minutes they connected on 13 of 24 shots for 54 per cent while the Jazz hit only five of 16.

JOHNSON SAW the big difference as a matter of moving feet.

"We just started moving the ball a lot. We broke a lot in the third quarter and beat them before they could set up the zone," the Bulls forward said.

The Bulls' movement also kept the fans from moving to the parking lot as they watched the home team for the first time in three weeks. The Bulls now leave on a two-game road trip before returning to Chicago to play the Cleveland Cavaliers Saturday night.

Doom stalks Vikes, fans keep the faith

MINNEAPOLIS — Minnesotans don't scare easily. For instance, the good citizens of Minneapolis and St. Paul refused to lose their composure when the temperature plunged to 16 below zero in the middle of November. Even the news that such a chill was a record for so early in the season failed to arouse panic in the hearty icemen of the North Country.

Weren't they frightened by the prospects of an early onset of winter? Nonsense. They didn't see it that way at all. Until the snow begins to fall, it's just another late summer and the folks are thankful for it.

The weather is one of those variables that Twin Cities' denizens soon discover are invariable. So they learn to live with it. In Chicago, the attitude is if you don't like the weather, give it five minutes and it will change. Here, the elements are far less cooperative. No one really knows where the sun disappears to between October and May, but it sure never shows its face in the Twin Cities.

MINNESOTANS HAVE conditioned themselves to their sports disasters, too, so thankfully this winter should be survivable. It has not been a pleasant November. The baseball Twins have lost two popular stars in the free agent draft — Larry Hisle and Lyman Bostock — and the feeing is that team owner Cal Griffith let them go willingly. Griffith's once-mighty family empire appears to be crumbling down around his ears.

Add to this the misfortune of the University of Minnesota basketball team that is still on NCAA probation, and still without its two top players, plus the early season woes of the hockey team and you have the makings of a wretchedly poor December-through-February.

The gravity of the situation is pointed up by the fact that baseball has dominated the headlines in a town that craves winter sports. Though some of the news was good (Rod Carew won the American League's MVP award and he alone seems to be content to stay here), the general notion is that baseball in Minnesota is on its apocalyptic last legs.

Through all the community anguish, and evidently riding above it, came the Minnesota Vikings, a football team at one with the heartbeat of a city (or twin cities) and a state. The Vikings are an establishment here, like Dayton's or Pillsbury. The Vikes, as they are affectionately known, would provide the positive headlines.

Yet most fans in the Twin Cities came to realize at the start of the season that 1977 would be a last hurrah for the Vikings. Coach Bud Grant's team was old beyond its years. The Vikings were over the hill when they lost the Super Bowl to the Oakland Raiders one year ago. Now, whenever Fred Cox or Jim Marshall or Paul Krause or a dozen other Vikes set foot on the field, they set foot also on previously-unbroken ground in the longevity record books.

AND THERE WAS Fran Tarkenton, the master quarterback for whom age meant only another candle or two on the cake. When Tarkenton broke his leg two weeks ago, it was a signal to Viking fans that all was lost. Without Sir Francis, the team was like a ship without a rudder, cast adrift in the NFL seas, able to do this or that on instinct or memory but without the guiding hand of experience to show the way safely to port.

When the Bears beat them, 10-7, less than two weeks ago, the Vikings were as far down as any first-place team could be.

Considering all that, then, what makes the team and a community come out of the shadow of doom? How are the fires of hope rekindled? What convinces them that despair has passed them by, going the other way on a dark night? Is it the sight of Tarkenton sitting up in an Atlanta hospital bed, his leg in a cast the size of a tree trunk, insisting that he will play again? Or is it simply that no one here can imagine another team winning the Black and Blue Division?

Whatever it is, the Vikings, behind Bob Lee's much-maligned passing arm, beat the Packers in a Green Bay blizzard to evoke the memories of past triumph. And now there is a new feeling here, amid all the calamity, that the Vikes can indeed rise above the adversity and deliver one final hurrah.

THEY NEED TO BEAT San Francisco on Sunday and Detroit on the final week of the season to guarantee a title and a strictly ceremonial playoff berth. Two weeks ago it was a sign of insanity to suggest that it could be done. Today, some of the players are even talking about beating Oakland, as crazy as that sounds. But for this team and its fans, at least, the satisfaction is not just in the winning but in the striving, too.

The Vikings' reign would appear to be all but over. The players, some of whom were here more than 15 years ago when the franchise began, are too old to be playing football. Cox is 38. Tarkenton is 37. Krause is 36. Marshall is 40. For them all, 1977 will be a kind of swan song.

The Minnesota Vikings are going to be rebuilt soon, renovated and revived much like downtown Minneapolis was resurrected almost brick by brick. In one of those downtown book shops that Minneapolis is so proud of, there is a display of books — a mountain of books, really — that asks stridently, "Will the Vikings EVER Win the Super Bowl?"

It is a pointless question now because this Viking team will never get that far, certainly not without Tarkenton, but probably not with him, either. Twin Cities' fans know it. They know that one day very soon these Vikings are going to turn belly up and expire.

But, first, this team has one final task to perform, one last favor to grant the people of Minneapolis-St. Paul and environs. There is one last item of business on the Vikings' agenda before winter finally closes in for good.

And despite the odds against them, their chances are not to be regarded lightly.

Harper halts understaffed Morton

by VIC NOVAK

The best chance for a Morton College victory against Harper College Tuesday came with only 17:33 gone is the first half. One scoreboard clock displayed that time, but another showed 15:24 remaining.

Officials then synchronized both clocks in the St. Viator gym, but a discrepancy occurred again a few minutes later. This time, the game officials decided to use just one clock.

That decision meant the game could continue. Morton should have hoped all clocks malfunctioned because Harper's Hawks flew past Morton's Panthers for a 46-24 halftime lead and 89-55 victory.

MORTON, UNDERSTAFFED and having no starter taller than 6-foot-4 never led in the game The closest the Panthers came to the fast-breaking Hawks was a 4-2 deficit after officials decided to use one clock.

Harper then ripped Morton apart for a 24-4 lead, a spurt that was the game itself.

The Hawks used their height to good advantage as Harper guards Ken Hanks (12 assists total) and Bill Gilmore fed 6-foot-6 Dan Breen for easy close-in baskets against Morton's 2-1-2 zone defense. Breen's 15 points topped all scorers in the first half.

"We tried to go inside against the zone" Harper coach Roger Bechtold said.

The Hawks also utilized their height advantage well on the defensive boards, out-rebounding Morton 17-11 for many easy fast breaks.

HARPER EXPERIENCED no trouble shooting from the field against Morton's 2-1-2 zone, hitting 19 of 45 field goal attempts for 42 per cent.

Morton coach Dan Poprawski said the loss of five players three ineligible and two injured, left him with only nine.

"I felt we had to reserve ourselves as much as possible tonight," Poprawski said. "We just didn't think we were ready to play a man-to-man the whole game."

Poprawski also said his forwards, Jim DeStesano and Quinn Scarnak, did not have the speed to stay with Harper man-to-man.

Final totals showed Breen leading all players with 23 points while teammates Bill Gilmore, John Carbery, and Ed Chmiel contributed 10 each. Destesano and Scarnak were Morton's scoring leaders with 19 and 10 points respectively.

"WE PLAYED WELL tonight," said Bechtold. "Basically, they're (Harper) unselfish kids.

"It's a good team this year. We're very happy with our players," He said. Harper is now 4-1 while Morton is 1-3.

Bears—one game at a time

by BOB GALLAS

Bears coach Jack Pardee and most of his players love to chant the ancient football axiom, "We'll play 'em one at a time," whenever they're asked about their playoff possibilities.

And though the Bears chances for a playoff spot is the favorite topic at most neighborhood bars these days, Pardee and his boys may have the right idea.

Not only do the Bears have a shot at the playoffs if they can overtake the Vikings, who own a one-game lead with three to play, but there's also an outside chance the Bears could end up the National Football Conference Wild Card playoff team.

BUT AFTER five minutes of figuring out the "ifs," it's easy to see why the Bears are playing them one at a time. They're probably as confused about the playoff picture as Joe Fan.

The easiest way for the Bears to gain a playoff spot is to win their division, but even if they win their remaining three games with the Buccaneers, Packers and Giants, they'll need help.

Vikings must lose either San Francisco or Detroit or must lose two of their remaining three games, provided of course, the Bears win out.

If the Vikings lost to Oakland, both the Bears and Vikings would finish with 9-5 marks, but the title would go to the Vikes through the tie-breaking process.

THE FIRST tie-breaking criteria is head-to-head competition (the Bears and Vikes split the season series). The second tie-breaker is best won-lost record in the division (presently, the Bears and Vikings each have lost just one divisional game, to each other.) The third tie breaker is best won-lost percentage within the conference, and both clubs there, too, have lost only once.

So it would come down to the fourth tie-breaking criteria, best point differential in head-to-head competition That's where Minnesota would take it because they beat the Bears by six, then lost by only three.

However, if the Vikings lose to the Lions, they would still tie the Bears with a 9-5 record but would not get the title because they would have one more divisional loss. Or if they lose to the 49ers, they would have one more conference loss than the Bears.

But for those who are tired of worrying about the Vikings there is a possibility the Bears will make the playoffs regardless of what the Vikings do.

AGAIN. PROVIDED the Bears win their remaining three, they can make the playoffs regardless of what Minnesota does if:

- Atlanta loses at least one more to either New England, Los Angeles and Buffalo.
- Washington wins its remaining three against Buffalo, St. Louis and Los Angeles.

If all that happens the Cards and the Falcons would be out of contention for the NFC wild card spot and the Bears would be tied with the Redskins. Both teams would have 9-5 records.

But the wild card spot would go to the Bears under the tie-breaker system because the Bears have a better point differential in conference games than the Redskins.

The Cardinals, too, would own a 9-5 record but since they would have lost to the Redskins twice, they would be a third-place team and would be eliminated from the playoff picture.

THE WILD CARD spot would go to the Bears if the Bears keep their lead in point differential in conference games. Right now, Chicago has a 28-point lead with conference games against the Buccaneers and Giants remaining. The Redskins remaining conference games are against much tougher opponets, the Rams and Cardinals.

Right now the Bears have outscored their conference foes by 24 points while the Redskins have been outscored by four points.

If St. Louis ends up beating out the Redskins for the second place spot in the NFC East, the Cards must lose two more games for the Bears to heat them out for the wild card. If all of that sounds simple to you, look out for men in white coats carrying nets.

There's also a chance the Bears could make the playoffs with an 8-6 record, of course there's also a chance the Cubs will be playing night games at Wrigley Field next year and that snow will fall Sunday in Tampa.

It's better to play 'em one at a time.

BEAR FACTS: The Bears get back to work today after a five-day holiday following the Thanksgiving win in Detroit . . . The team left for Tampa Tuesday night where they'll practice all week to get used to the heat . . . A win Sunday would be the Bears' fourth in a row, a string the team has not matched since 1968...If the Bears win their next three, a must if they entertain playoff hopes, it will give them six wins in a row, something the team has not done since the 1969 club won its last seven to finish with an 8-4 record.

The Redskins remaining conference games are against much tougher opponets, the Rams and Cardinals.

Right now the Bears have outscored their conference foes by 24 points while the Redskins have been outscored by four points.

If St. Louis ends up beating out the Redskins for the second place spot in the NFC East, the Cards must lose two more games for the Bears to beat them out for the wild card. If all of that sounds simple to you, look out for men in white coats carrying nets.

There's also a chance the Bears could make the playoffs with an 8-6 record, of course there's also a chance the Cubs will be playing night games at Wrigley Field next year and that snow will fall Sunday in Tampa·

It's better to play 'em one at a time.

BEAR FACTS: The Bears get back to work today after a five-day holiday following the Thanksgiving win in Detroit . . . The team left for Tampa Tuesday night where they'll practice all week to get used to the heat . . . A win Sunday would be the Bears' fourth in a row, a string the team has not matched since 1968...If the Bears win their next three, a must if they entertain playoff hopes, it will give them six wins in a row, something the team has not done since the 1959 club won its last seven to finish with an 8-4 record.

Bowling tourney dates near

Eligibility dates for the approaching Paddock Publications bowling tourneys are at hand with first place teams as of those dates eligible for the big events in January.

In case of ties, it is up to league officials to decide on a playoff or other method of determining which team is eligible to represent the league.

In a few cases, when the first place team is unable to participate, the second-place squad will be asked to compete. Tourney promoters are interested in having one team from each league in the area served by Paddock Publications' Daily Herald, hopefully the first-place squad as of the eligibility date.

THE MEN'S EVENT at Striker Lanes in Buffalo Grove Jan. 15 will include first-place teams of all men's leagues as of Dec. 17. League secretaries are urged to schedule time reservations at 394-2300 as soon as possible with entry deadline Dec. 31.

First-place teams of all women's leagues as of Dec. 24 will be eligible for the Jan. 22 tourney at Elk Grove Bowl with Jan. 7 the deadline for entries.

Leading squads of all mixed leagues as of Dec. 24 are eligible for the Champagne Tournament at Elk Grove Bowl with deadlines for entries Jan. 7. Each participant will receive champagne from Armanetti's Wine Cellar in Rolling Meadows.

A total of $4,115 is expected to be awarded in the three tournaments if 96 teams compete in the men's event, 96 squads in the women's meet and 64 teams in the mixed.

Bowling tourney dates near

Eligibility dates for the approaching Paddock Publications bowling tourneys are at hand with first place teams as of those dates eligible for the big events in January.

In case of ties, it is up to league officials to decide on a playoff or other method of determining which team is eligible to represent the league.

In a few cases, when the first place team is unable to participate, the second-place squad will be asked to compete. Tourney promoters are interested in having one team from each league in the area served by Paddock Publications' Daily Herald, hopefully the first-place squad as of the eligibility date.

THE MEN'S EVENT at Striker Lanes in Buffalo Grove Jan. 15 will include first-place teams of all men's leagues as of Dec. 17. League secretaries are urged to schedule time reservations at 394-2300 as soon as possible with entry deadline Dec. 31.

First-place teams of all women's leagues as of Dec. 24 will be eligible for the Jan. 22 tourney at Elk Grove Bowl with Jan. 7 the deadline for entries.

Leading squads of all mixed leagues as of Dec. 24 are eligible for the Champagne Tournament at Elk Grove Bowl with deadlines for entries Jan. 7. Each participant will receive champagne from Armanetti's Wine Cellar in Rolling Meadows.

A total of $4,115 is expected to be awarded in the three tournaments if 96 teams compete in the men's event, 96 squads in the women's meet and 64 teams in the mixed.

Cubs look to farm clubs to bolster club

Vic Novak

Byline report

The way baseball is being conducted today, you'd think the sport's farm systems have been put out to pasture by free agents and the New York Yankees.

Nobodies play out their options, become free agents and make more money than legitimate stars such as Ernie Banks and Ted Williams ever dreamed about.

The Yankees, consisting almost entirely of such players, have won two American League titles and a World Series championship.

BUT A CLOSER examination shows 1977's other three divisional champions — Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Kansas City — were built mostly from their individual farm systems, rather than free agent signings.

Like Merrill Lynch being bullish on America, C.V. Davis believes in the farm system. Davis is director of player development for the Chicago Cubs. It's a fancy term that means he is in charge of the Cubs' farm system.

Davis said he believes Yankee owner George Steinbrenner eventually will wind up short like football's Washington Redskins. The Skins now have a mediocre football team because they traded most of their high draft choices away for veteran players whose ages have caught up with them.

Davis noted the Yanks won their division title by only one game and he said he does not believe they can be that lucky again, unless their farm system starts improving.

A NUMBER OF observers believe the Cubs farm system could stand such improvement. They note the 1977 Cubs did not field a starting nonpitcher produced by the Chicago farm system. All regulars were acquired through trades.

The only Cub-bred nonpitchers in 1977 were reserves Dave Rosello, an infielder, and Joe Wallis, an outfielder.

The pitching staff was more of a success. Cubs farm system graduates include Rick and Paul Reuschel, Bruce Sutter, Ray Burris, Dennis Lamp, Mike Krukow and Bill Bonham, now with Cincinnati.

Davis, who has been with the Cubs since Monday after 21 years with the White Sox farm system, said he believes the Cubs system is as successful as that of any other major league club.

"I'M NOT SAYING that they (the Cubs) haven't been following a good philosophy," Davis said. "The Cubs have been successful as anyone in building a farm system."

Davis said he still is trying to get acquainted with most of the Cubs minor league players.

When asked to name some promising Cubs minor leaguers that might make the majors this spring, Davis could name only four: Scott Thompson, a lefthanded hitting first baseman; George Riley, a lefthanded pitcher; Chuck Rodgers, a righthanded pitcher; and Donnie Moore, a righthanded pitcher.

Davis said, "A lot of teams in baseball would like to have Donnie Moore."

Moore started the 1977 season with the Cubs before being farmed out to Wichita, Chicago's top farmclub. There, Moore won four and lost four with a 4.32 earned run average in 62 innings of 10 games striking out 90 batters.

TEAMMATE THOMPSON produced 129 hits in 428 times at bat for a .301 average, hitting 10 home runs and batting in 47 runners.

Rodgers also at Wichita, was 10-9 with a 4.31 ERA, fanning 73 batters in 159 innings of 27 games.

Davis said critics should not be surprised the Cubs have enjoyed more success developing pitchers instead of catchers, infielders, and outfielders because 75 to 80 per cent of the major league rookies are pitchers. Since pitching requires fewer skills than other positions, they can advance to the major leagues faster.

"There's no magic to developing players," Davis said. "It's a project to develop ballplayers. No one club has the magic answer."

BUILDING A SUCCESSFUL farm system is an expensive project. Davis estimated most major league clubs spend from $1.2 million to more than $12 million to run farm systems consisting of four teams and 75 to 100 players. That cost also includes about 15 full-time scouts with salaries of $15,000 each.

It's also a risky business. Of the 30 to 40 high school and college age players drafted by each major league team in the June free agent draft, most clubs sign only 50 to 60 per cent of the draftees.

In the 1970 draft, the While Sox drafted, signed and developed seven players that eventually made the major leagues. They were pitchers Rich Gossage, Terry Forster, and Bart Johnson; catcher Brian Downing; first baseman Sam Ewing; and outfielder Jerry Hairston.

Davis said a year like that was the exception, not the rule. Normally, a major league club is lucky if more than one player from each draft eventually reaches the big leagues.

CUB FANS CAN only hope Davis, who headed the White Sox farm organization the past four seasons, can enjoy similar success on the North Side.

Bountiful harvests of farm products are not as exciting as staging spectacular off-season winter trades.

However, it's more successful. Just ask the Phils, Dodgers and Royals.

Free agent infielder Brohamer may exchange White Sox for Red

BOSTON (UPI) — Free agent infielder Jack Brohamer appears headed for the Boston Red Sox, it was learned Tuesday.

Ed Kleven, representative for the 27-year-old utility player, declined to confirm or deny reports Brohamer has agreed to terms. But Kleven did say Brohamer, who has been with the White Sox the past two years, would sign with either Boston or Milwaukee.

"I'm hopeful he will sign with Boston," Kleven said. "But I can't say anything one way or the other right now."

But a source close to the veteran infielder said Brohamer has agreed to play for Boston.

Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan and Kleven have had several conversations in the past week. They talked again Tuesday. Sullivan was not available for comment.

KLEVEN SAID he would talk again today with Sullivan.

Brohamer, who batted .257 in 59 games last season for the White Sox, reportedly has agreed to a three-year contract for approximateley $300,000.

His lifetime batting average is .241 after playing six seasons with the Cleveland Indians and Chicago. He has played shortstop, second and third base in his professional career.

While refusing to affirm the report, Kleven said: "Jack was only drafted by four teams (Boston, Milwaukee, California and the New York Yankees). California already has eight second basemen.

"And the Yankees? That's preposterous. There's no way he could get to play there. What would he do, carry Willie Randolph's shoes?"

The Red Sox want Brohamer to play second base, a position held by 33-year-old Denny Doyle the past 2½ seasons.

A shooting star

Cub catcher Cuno Barragan broke in with a bang in 1962 when he hit a home run in his first major league at-bat. It was the last homer Barragan ever hit. He broke his leg soon after and disappeared from sight.

Wheeling takes Glenbrook 68-54

Wheeling made 23 first quarter points and then breezed to a 68-54 victory over Glenbrook North in a nonconference basketball game on the Spartan court Tuesday evening.

Steve Majkowski paced a balanced Wildcat scoring effort and a two-thirds court man-to-man press did the rest as Wheeling cracked the win column for the first time this season after three setbacks.

Glenbrook's only real threat was posed late in the third quarter when they rallied back within eight points of the 'Cats on two occasions.

"Scott Mulford really gave us a lift tonight. He improves every time he gets out on the court," said Wheeling coach Ted Ecker of his 6-8 pivotman, the only newcomer in the team's otherwise seasoned starting lineup.

Majkowski finished with 15 points and three other Wildcats finished in double figures with Jim Sabal contributing 13, Dan Larson 11 and Mulford 10. Jim Lockafeer added 7 more to the winning cause.

Denver pushes by Seattle, 115-99

NBA report

Center Dan Issel scored a game-high 20 points and Bobby Jones and David Thompson combined for 34 Tuesday to power the Denver Nuggets to an easy 115-99 homecourt victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

The Nuggets, appearing sluggish in the opening minutes of play, broke open the game in the final three minutes of the third period. Seattle, down only 75-71, was held scoreless for the remainder of the period and trailed by 12 at the end of the quarter. The Nuggets then moved to leads of as many as 24 points.

Bob Lanier scored a layup and a free-throw with 19 seconds remaining to lift the Detroit Pistons to a 100-99 win over the Milwaukee Bucks.

The win was the first in eight tries for the Pistons on the road this season and broke a seven-game losing streak.

GEORGE MCGINNIS, Julius Erving and Doug Collins riddled San Antonio for 86 points and Philadelphia roared past the Spurs 129-117 for the 76ers' ninth straight win.

McGinnis hit 31 points, Erving had 28 and Collins netted 27 as the 76ers broke open a close game near the end of the third period and raced on for the win.

Tom McMillen's 13 points led a fourth-quarter Atlanta surge as the Hawks ran off a 19-2 scoring binge en route to a 108-101 victory over the Boston Celtics.

Down 81-67 late in the third quarter, the Hawks took an 86-83 lead with 8:27 left in the game. Five striaight Atlanta points with three minutes left enabled the Hawks to pull out to a nine-point lead and secure the win.

FOOTS WALKER poured in 20 points ,including 14 in a driving 35-point third period, and Walt Frazier chipped in with 19 to spark the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 118-101 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Cavs, who now have won three straight and 11 of their last 13 games, turned the ball over only three times in racing to a 48-39 halftime lead and then blew the Lakers out in the third period.

Rookie Robert Reid, starting his first game in the NBA, shot Houston into an early lead and guard Calvin Murphy got the hot hand early in the fourth quarter to help the Rockets end a six-game losing streak with a 120-103 victory over the New York Knicks.

Murphy, hampered by an ankle injury much of the season, led all scorers with 23 points.

North Stars defeat Flames, 4-3

NHL report

Second-period goals by Minnesota's "Swedish Connection" line of Rolan Eriksson, Kent-Erik Anderssom and Per-Olav Brasar enabled the North Stars to rebound from a 2-0 deficit and score a 4-3 NHL victory over the Atlanta Flames Tuesday night.

Guy Lafleur scored his 19th goal of the season and added two assists while Rejean Houle scored two third-period goals to pace a 9-1 romp by the Montreal Canadiens over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

It was the Canadiens' 15th win of the season, the most in the NHL, and gave Montreal a league-leading 33 points.

Lafleur set up the girst goal by Steve Shutt at 6:23 of the first period and then assisted on Yvan Cournoyer's goal at 11:15 of the same session. Yvan Lambert gave Montreal a 3-0 led with a power play goal at 16:17. The goal was set up by newly-acquired Pierre Larouche who came to the Canadiens earlier in the day in a trade from the Penguins for veteran Peter Mahovlich and minor leaguer Pete Lee.

Doug Risebrough gave Montreal a 4-0 first period lead 20 seconds later. Lafleur and Bob Gainey counted for the Canadiens, who moved ahead 6-0 before five minutes of the middle session. Blair Chapman got the Penquins' only goal with just 47 steconds left in the second period, but Houle came back to score for Montreal only 57 seconds into the final period.

Right winger Lanny McDonald scored an unassisted 30-foot slapshot at 6:54 of the third period to give the Toronto Maple Leafs a 3-2 victory over the Cleveland Barons.

Hayes jabs writers at conference

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Although he cut short another news conference, Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes did manage to slip in a brief journalism lecture Monday night.

In Cincinnati to address an Ohio State alumni dinner, Hayes was asked at a news conference the inevitable question about his taking a punch at a television cameraman at the Nov. 19 Michigan game.

"I didn't come down here to talk about it and it's not difficult to not talk about it," said Hayes. "You know, freedom of the press has two sides. It also means I can quit talking when I want to."

BUT BEFORE HAYES ended the news conference, he did elaborate on the state of journalism when a young reporter persisted and asked about the coach's "bad relations" with the press.

"I've always had bad relations and I've always had good relations," said Hayes. "Check my record. I know they teach you in journalism school to search for things that are wrong and write it up. That's the way you young writers were taught.

"You've brought down some big people in this country doing that and your readers are starting to hate you for it. Why don't you write about what I've done for football?"

Hayes pointed out that Ohio State has made $45 million from football since he came to Ohio State in 1951.

"With all the restrictions on recruiting, we've still done very well," he added. "I'm very proud of that."

Last week, both Cincinnati daily newspapers ran stinging editorials criticizing Hayes for taking a punch at the TV cameraman.

Free agent infielder Brohamer may exchange White Sox for Red

BOSTON (UPI) — Free agent infielder Jack Brohamer appears headed for the Boston Red Sox, it was learned Tuesday.

Ed Kleven, representative for the 27-year-old utility player, declined to confirm or deny reports Brohamer has agreed to terms. But Kleven did say Brohamer, who has been with the White Sox the past two years, would sign with either Boston or Milwaukee.

"I'm hopeful he will sign with Boston," Kleven said. "But I can't say anything one way or the other right now."

But a source close to the veteran infielder said Brohamer has agreed to play for Boston.

Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan and Kleven have had several conversations in the past week. They talked again Tuesday. Sullivan was not available for comment.

KLEVEN SAID he would talk again today with Sullivan.

Brohamer, who batted .257 in 59 games last season for the White Sox, reportedly has agreed to a three-year contract for approximateley $300,000.

His lifetime batting average is .241 after playing six seasons with the Cleveland Indians and Chicago. He has played shortstop, second and third base in his professional career.

While refusing to affirm the report, Kleven said: "Jack was only drafted by four teams (Boston, Milwaukee, California and the New York Yankees). California already has eight second basemen.

"And the Yankees? That's preposterous. There's no way he could get to play there. What would he do, carry Willie Randolph's shoes?"

The Red Sox want Brohamer to play second base, a position held by 33-year-old Denny Doyle the past 2½ seasons.

A shooting star

Cub catcher Cuno Barragan broke in with a bang in 1962 when he hit a home run in his first major league at-bat. It was the last homer Barragan ever hit. He broke his leg soon after and disappeared from sight.

Wheeling takes Glenbrook 68-54

Wheeling made 23 first quarter points and then breezed to a 68-54 victory over Glenbrook North in a nonconference basketball game on the Spartan court Tuesday evening.

Steve Majkowski paced a balanced Wildcat scoring effort and a two-thirds court man-to-man press did the rest as Wheeling cracked the win column for the first time this season after three setbacks.

Glenbrook's only real threat was posed late in the third quarter when they rallied back within eight points of the 'Cats on two occasions.

"Scott Mulford really gave us a lift tonight. He improves every time he gets out on the court," said Wheeling coach Ted Ecker of his 6-8 pivotman, the only newcomer in the team's otherwise seasoned starting lineup.

Majkowski finished with 15 points and three other Wildcats finished in double figures with Jim Sabal contributing 13, Dan Larson 11 and Mulford 10. Jim Lockafeer added 7 more to the winning cause.

Denver pushes by Seattle, 115-99

NBA report

Center Dan Issel scored a game-high 20 points and Bobby Jones and David Thompson combined for 34 Tuesday to power the Denver Nuggets to an easy 115-99 homecourt victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

The Nuggets, appearing sluggish in the opening minutes of play, broke open the game in the final three minutes of the third period. Seattle, down only 75-71, was held scoreless for the remainder of the period and trailed by 12 at the end of the quarter. The Nuggets then moved to leads of as many as 24 points.

Bob Lanier scored a layup and a free-throw with 19 seconds remaining to lift the Detroit Pistons to a 100-99 win over the Milwaukee Bucks.

The win was the first in eight tries for the Pistons on the road this season and broke a seven-game losing streak.

GEORGE MCGINNIS, Julius Erving and Doug Collins riddled San Antonio for 86 points and Philadelphia roared past the Spurs 129-117 for the 76ers' ninth straight win.

McGinnis hit 31 points, Erving had 28 and Collins netted 27 as the 76ers broke open a close game near the end of the third period and raced on for the win.

Tom McMillen's 13 points led a fourth-quarter Atlanta surge as the Hawks ran off a 19-2 scoring binge en route to a 108-101 victory over the Boston Celtics.

Down 81-67 late in the third quarter, the Hawks took an 86-83 lead with 8:27 left in the game. Five striaight Atlanta points with three minutes left enabled the Hawks to pull out to a nine-point lead and secure the win.

FOOTS WALKER poured in 20 points ,including 14 in a driving 35-point third period, and Walt Frazier chipped in with 19 to spark the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 118-101 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Cavs, who now have won three straight and 11 of their last 13 games, turned the ball over only three times in racing to a 48-39 halftime lead and then blew the Lakers out in the third period.

Rookie Robert Reid, starting his first game in the NBA, shot Houston into an early lead and guard Calvin Murphy got the hot hand early in the fourth quarter to help the Rockets end a six-game losing streak with a 120-103 victory over the New York Knicks.

Murphy, hampered by an ankle injury much of the season, led all scorers with 23 points.

North Stars defeat Flames, 4-3

NHL report

Second-period goals by Minnesota's "Swedish Connection" line of Rolan Eriksson, Kent-Erik Anderssom and Per-Olav Brasar enabled the North Stars to rebound from a 2-0 deficit and score a 4-3 NHL victory over the Atlanta Flames Tuesday night.

Guy Lafleur scored his 19th goal of the season and added two assists while Rejean Houle scored two third-period goals to pace a 9-1 romp by the Montreal Canadiens over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

It was the Canadiens' 15th win of the season, the most in the NHL, and gave Montreal a league-leading 33 points.

Lafleur set up the girst goal by Steve Shutt at 6:23 of the first period and then assisted on Yvan Cournoyer's goal at 11:15 of the same session. Yvan Lambert gave Montreal a 3-0 led with a power play goal at 16:17. The goal was set up by newly-acquired Pierre Larouche who came to the Canadiens earlier in the day in a trade from the Penguins for veteran Peter Mahovlich and minor leaguer Pete Lee.

Doug Risebrough gave Montreal a 4-0 first period lead 20 seconds later. Lafleur and Bob Gainey counted for the Canadiens, who moved ahead 6-0 before five minutes of the middle session. Blair Chapman got the Penquins' only goal with just 47 stconds left in the second period, but Houle came back to score for Montreal only 57 seconds into the final period.

Right winger Lanny McDonald scored an unassisted 30-foot slapshot at 6:54 of the third period to give the Toronto Maple Leafs a 3-2 victory over the Cleveland Barons.

Hayes jabs writers at conference

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Although he cut short another news conference, Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes did manage to slip in a brief journalism lecture Monday night.

In Cincinnati to address an Ohio State alumni dinner. Hayes was asked at a news conference the inevitable question about his taking a punch at a television cameraman at the Nov. 19 Michigan game.

"I didn't come down here to talk about it and it's not difficult to not talk about it," said Hayes. "You know, freedom of the press has two sides. It also means I can quit talking when I want to."

BUT BEFORE HAYES ended the news conference, he did elaborate on the state of journalism when a young reporter persisted and asked about the coach's "bad relations" with the press.

"I've always had bad relations and I've always had good relations," said Hayes. "Check my record. I know they teach you in journalism school to search for things that are wrong and write it up. That's the way you young writers were taught.

"You've brought down some big people in this country doing that and your readers are starting to hate you for it. Why don't you write about what I've done for football?"

Hayes pointed out that Ohio State has made $45 million from football since he came to Ohio State in 1951.

"With all the restrictions on recruiting, we've still done very well," he added. "I'm very proud of that."

Last week, both Cincinnati daily newspapers ran stinging editorials criticizing Hayes for taking a punch at the TV cameraman.

'Dream come true' for new Canadien

MONTREAL — "It's like a dream come true," said Pierre Larouche Tuesday after he learned he was traded to the Montreal Canadiens from the Pittsburgh Penguins

Larouche was sent to Montreal along with "future considerations" for veteran center Pete Mahovlich, 31, and rookie right-winger Peter Lee 21

Lee has been playing with the Canadiens' farm team at Nova Scotia in the American League

"It's like a miracle to come home and play in my own backyard and on the team of my former idol, Jean Beliveau," added Larouche, who was a superstar in his junior days with Sorel before he was drafted as Pittsburgh's top choice in 1974

"I was always well-treated in Pittsburgh but I don't think they have much of a chance to win the Stanley Cup this season With Montreal I'd have to say my opportunity is much greater," said Larouche

Leonard says coaches need 'voice'

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana Pacers Coach Bobby Leonard charged Tuesday that NBA officials have too much power and suggested they should be watched and fined if they do a poor job in calling a game

Leonard suggested it may be time for coaches to organize so they have a "voice" in league matters just as the players do For that matter, he said, referees are also organized

"They have a union that is recognized," Leonard said

He suggested if players and coaches are subject to fines, perhaps officials should be fined if they call "a bad game"

Leonard leveled his blast following a weekend game at Denver in which five technical fouls wre called and the two coaches, Leonard and Denver's Larry Brown, were tossed out.

Detroit's Vitale leaves coaching

DETROIT — With tears in his eyes, University of Detroit basketball Coach Dick Vitale retired from coaching Tuesday because of a bleeding ulcer

Vitale, who picked up the tatters of the Titan basketball program four years ago and let the school to an NCAA bid last season, said he would stay on as Detroit athletic director. Assistant Dave Gaines was named to replace Vitale and becomes the school's first black coach

"Last night I had the toughest meeting I ever had in my life with my players and my wife," Vitale said. "After three major bleeds, I've had it

"The one thing about bleeding inside is that you don't feel it I feel super," he said His voice choked and he began to sob. It was one of several tearful interludes that punctuated his announcement.

"I always wanted to be a pro ocach I guess that's out the window now," he said

Stock interested in NU position

MADISON, Wis — Wisconsin offense coordinator Mike Stock said he has withdrawn his name as a candidate for the vacant Badger head football coaching job because he is interested in returning to his alma mater, Northwestern.

"I'm very interested in the Northwestern job and I do not think it wold be in the best interest to be up for both jobs," he said

The two posts opened when John Jardine quit at Wisconsin and John Pont resigned at Northwestern

Stock who was an all-Big Ten fullback for the Wildcats in 1959, also said he decided to drop his bid for the Wisconsin job because Badger defensive coordinator Gary Blackney is seeking it.

"I think one guy off the staff going for the job is enough," he said

Cauthen shakes slump, takes six

Steve Cauthen certainly has a flair for the dramatic.

Cauthen, the teenage jockey sensation who has earned almost $6 million already this year, was in the midst of an 0-22 racing slump when he entered Tuesday's first race at Aqueduct. Eight races later, Cauthen had his critics shaking their heads in awe after he finished with six winners on a nine-race card

In the featured $15,000 eighth race, Cauthen rallied A. Mohan's Pub to a one-length victory over Right Number.

'Dream come true' for new Canadien

MONTREAL — "It's like a dream come true," said Pierre Larouche Tuesday after he learned he was traded to the Montreal Canadiens from the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Larouche was sent to Montreal along with "future considerations" for veteran center Pete Mahovlich, 31, and rookie right-winger Peter Lee, 21.

Lee has been playing with the Canadiens' farm team at Nova Scotia in the American League.

"It's like a miracle to come home and play in my own backyard and on the team of my former idol, Jean Beliveau," added Larouche, who was a superstar in his junior days with Sorel before he was drafted as Pittsburgh's top choice in 1974.

"I was always well-treated in Pittsburgh but I don't think they have much of a chance to win the Stanley Cup this season. With Montreal I'd have to say my opportunity is much greater," said Larouche.

Leonard says coaches need 'voice'

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana Pacers Coach Bobby Leonard charged Tuesday that NBA officials have too much power and suggested they should be watched and fined if they do a poor job in calling a game.

Leonard suggested it may be time for coaches to organize so they have a "voice" in league matters, just as the players do. For that matter, he said, referees are also organized.

"They have a union that is recognized," Leonard said.

He suggested if players and coaches are subject to fines, perhaps officials should be fined if they call "a bad game."

Leonard leveled his blast following a weekend game at Denver in which five technical fouls wre called and the two coaches, Leonard and Denver's Larry Brown, were tossed out.

Detroit's Vitale leaves coaching

DETROIT — With tears in his eyes, University of Detroit basketball Coach Dick Vitale retired from coaching Tuesday because of a bleeding ulcer.

Vitale, who picked up the tatters of the Titan basketball program four years ago and let the school to an NCAA bid last season, said he would stay on as Detroit athletic director. Assistant Dave Gaines was named to replace Vitale and becomes the school's first black coach.

"Last night I had the toughest meeting I ever had in my life with my players and my wife," Vitale said. "After three major bleeds, I've had it.

"The one thing about bleeding inside is that you don't feel it. I feel super," he said. His voice choked and he began to sob. It was one of several tearful interludes that punctuated his announcement.

"I always wanted to be a pro ocach. I guess that's out the window now," he said.

Stock interested in NU position

MADISON, Wis. — Wisconsin offense coordinator Mike Stock said he has withdrawn his name as a candidate for the vacant Badger head football coaching job because he is interested in returning to his alma mater, Northwestern.

"I'm very interested in the Northwestern job and I do not think it wold be in the best interest to be up for both jobs," he said.

The two posts opened when John Jardine quit at Wisconsin and John Pont resigned at Northwestern.

Stock, who was an all-Big Ten fullback for the Wildcats in 1959, also said he decided to drop his bid for the Wisconsin job because Badger defensive coordinator Gary Blackney is seeking it.

"I think one guy off the staff going for the job is enough," he said.

Cauthen shakes slump, takes six

Steve Cauthen certainly has a flair for the dramatic.

Cauthen, the teenage jockey sensation who has earned almost $6 million already this year, was in the midst of an 0-22 racing slump when he entered Tuesday's first race at Aqueduct. Eight races later, Cauthen had his critics shaking their heads in awe after he finished with six winners on a nine-race card.

In the featured $15,000 eighth race, Cauthen rallied A. Mohan's Pub to a one-length victory over Right Number.

5TH GRADE DIVISION

STANDINGS: Bulls 5-0, Warriors 5-0, Blazers 3-2, Cavaliers 2-2, Lakers 2-3, Celtics 1-3, Knicks 1-4, Nuggets 1-4.

Bulls 21, Knicks 14

In winning their fifth straight game the Bulls set off to a fast start. A balanced scoring effort by the Bulls got them past a tough opponent. Danny Urbain, Mike Bianchi, Andy Falter, Chris Knoeppel, Mark Gibbs and Mike Lach scored for the Bulls. Dan Fay, Joe Bullock, Ed Hardy, Todd Hill and Dave Spurlock did the scoring for the Knicks. The Knicks played tough defense in the 2nd, 3rd and 4th quarters.

Warriors 32, Nuggets 16

The Warriors got off to a very fast start in winning their fifth straight game. Dave Benoit, Mike Cohen and Peter Freund led the Warriors scoring effort. Bill Koif, Steve Vinci, Doug Carver and Glenn Rymsza gave a good defensive effort for the Warriors. Mike Marchuk and Dave Demas led the scoring for the Nuggets while Billy Gray displayed a lot of defensive hustle.

Lakers 10, Celtics 7

Jay Spurr and Ken Morrissey led the Lakers' offense while Mark Kramer highlighted the defense. An injured Doug Sammon gave strong moral support from the bench.

Blazers 22, Cavaliers 19

Rick Baker, Dan Holmes and Dan Schurr led the offense for the Blazers while Bob Metz did a fine rebounding and defensive job. Key baskets in the fourth quarter by Dan Holmes and Dan Schurr provided the margin of victory for the Blazers in a well played game.

6TH GRADE DIVISION

A bad angle shot by Bob Vuglar with 1:47 remaining to be played slipped by Conant goalie Bill Madden to lift Hoffman Estates to a 4-3 victory over the Cougars.

Conant battled back three times from one goal deficits during the game before Scott Atkinson's goal with less than four minutes remaining tied the score at 3-3. Vuglar scored twice for Hoffman.

Dundee scored four times in the third period to battle back for a 6-6 tie with Elgin Larkin. Dundee's John Wodarczyk and Dan Runyan each had two goals as did Larkin's Les Willard and Andy Morrison.

Rock Valley broke open a close game with two third period goals to beat Schaumburg 5-2. Hersey became league-leading Rockford's 12th victim as the Huskies dropped an 8-3 decision.

Current standings — Rockford 12-0, Hoffman Estates 9-2, Conant 5-4-2, Rock Valfey 5-5-1, Hersey 4-8-1, Schaumburg 3-7-1, Elgin Larkin 2-8-2, Dundee/Crown 1-11-1.

the snow thrower that nobody pushes around

At last! If you're tired of pushing snow around with an old fashioned power shovel, Ariens has a better way. It's the all new 2.7 hp Sub-Compact Sno-Thro that's lightweight, and propels itself. It's got three speeds forward, plus a reverse, with a two-stage operation that clears a twenty inch path, and tosses the snow up to twenty-five feet away. All you do is walk behind it and watch the snow fly! Electric starter optional.

Check all the features at your Ariens dealer. While you're at it, check the sub-compact price on the new Ariens 2.7 hp Sub-Compact Sno-Thro.

Puppies make ideal gifts— but take care in choosing

Dave Terrill

Just dogs

About this time each year we repeat some comments about the selection of a new Christmas puppy. Perhaps first and foremoost is that you pick one that will fit into your family lifestyle. By that we mean not only the size of the dog — you don't want to raise a Great Dane in a one room apartment — but also one that can be cared for. Establish immediately who will have that responsibility.

After the above has been decided, then start looking for the breed you want. Keep in mind that health, size and breeder reputation are important considerations when looking for a puppy. A responsible dog breeder will want to make certain that every puppy he sells will have a good home, so the breeder should supply guidance in determining that a specific breed is suitable for a specific family's lifestyle.

You should purchase a new puppy when it is between 6 and 3 weeks of age. An older dog is all right. However, the older the dog is the more time it may take to get it adjusted to your family.

Such things as feeding should be worked out with the breeder, and where the new pup will sleep and who will take care of the "clean-up" until the animal is housetrained must be decided. Mother will usually end up with the job while dad is at work and the youngsters in school.

One thing you should consider is to bring the puppy into the new home a few days before Christmas. Don't introduce the pup to a new home for the first time on Christmas Day. There is too much going on and the excitement can cause problems.

Lastly, the new puppy should not be handled by very young children without adult supervision. Youngsters sometimes will squeeze too hard and cause problems.

Feeding table scraps—

Considering the time of year when the holidays make all sorts of table scraps available, remember that feeding your dog such things does not give him the proper balance needed in his diet.

You have been told by your own doctor to make sure that you eat a balanced diet and the same applies for your dog. A special treat now and then may be in order, but don't let that take the place of a good balanced dog food that has been formulated with your dog's requirements in mind.

New guardian—

Will the parakeet replace the dog as guardian of the home? A woman in New York City returned to her apartment and heard her pet parakeet "screaming his head off" as she was about to open her door. She ran to a neighbor and called police, who caught two thieves ransacking the apartment.

Which proves once again that it doesn't take a large animal to protect an apartment, be it a parakeet or a small dog.

8-year-old girl triumphs in final Pick the Winners

Holly Ziemek

Holly Ziemek is only 8-years old, but she knows her football better than any of the other 980 entries in last week's Pick the Winners Contest.

Holly, who lives at 1206 W. Sunset in Mount Prospect, correctly picked every contest on the card — 19 in all — for the first perfect entry of the year.

The excellent effort came on the final week of the contest. The 11 weekly winners will learn who will receive a trip to the Rose Bowl this Saturday at the annual banquet. The banquet will be at The Lancer Restaurant in Schaumburg.

"I sit with my dad and we fill the card out," Holly said. "We try every week. The Bears are my favorite team, and I usually get their game right."

Ziemek won the final weekly prize of a Thermos Sports Kit as well as the Rose Bowl trip opportunity.

Last weekend's college results were: Army 17, Navy 14; Holy Cross 35, Boston College 20; Florida 31, Miami (Fla.) 14; Georgia Tech 16, Georgia 7; Tennessee 42, Vanderbilt [illegible]; Texas 57, Texas A&M 28; Virginia Tech 27, VMI 7; LSU 66, Wyoming 7. The Arkansas-Texas Tech game was played last Thursday.

NFL scores were Dallas 14, Washington 7; Houston 34, Kansas City 20; Los Angeles 9, Cleveland 0; San Francisco 20, New Orleans 17; New England 14, Philadelphia 6; San Diego 30, Seattle 28; Atlanta 17, Tampa Bay 0; Minnesota 13, Green Bay 6; Cincinnati 30, NY Giants 13; Pittsburgh 23, NY Jets 20.

The tie-breaker contest was Denver 27, Baltimore 13.

Three Steps to Early Disease Detection

1. An analysis of your lifestyle and health history will help in determining the probability of you contacting disease. This information also will be helpful in identifying changes in your normal activity which have proven to add to general good health and increase life expectancy.

2. Diagnostic tests including blood analysis, chest x-rays, an electrocardiogram, and urinalysis will help determine the presence or absence of disease. If further testing is indicated, it will be prescribed by the physician.

3. After a complete and comprehensive physical examination by a member of the hospital's Medical Staff, you will receive an interpretation of all results and suggestions for a personalized health program.

These steps are all part of the Early Disease Detection Program of Holy Family and the hospital's Medical Staff practicing in your community.

Call us Monday through Friday, at 297-1800, extension 1157, to obtain more information on how you can take these three steps to Early Disease Detection.

THURSDAY IN THE HERALD
Favorite secret recipes?
SUGAR 'N SPICE tells all every Thursday in The Daily Herald.

When you're as tall as Artis Gilmore, you know where most of your heat goes. Through the ceiling.

When Chicago Bulls center Artis Gilmore was just a little guy, his teachers taught him a basic law of nature: heat rises. And now that he's 7 foot 2, Artis knows what they meant—because he's up there where the heat is. That's why Artis knows the value of insulation.

An uninsulated home can lose 3 times as much heat.
You already know that insulation cuts down on heat loss. But it might startle you to know this: Uninsulated homes lose up to three times as much heat as insulated ones.

Roofs usually account for the greatest amount of heat loss. In a typical uninsulated ranch house, over 30% of the heat loss goes through the roof alone. While many homes are insulated to some extent, the majority of single-family homes today need additional insulation—and, generally, improving the attic insulation will help the most and is the easiest to do.

A high R-Value can save you money.
R-Value is the term that describes the effectiveness of insulation material. The higher the R-Value, the lower your heat loss and the more money you save on fuel bills.

We recommend R-19 insulation in the attic, where most heat is lost. If you're a single-family-residence customer of ours, we'll even help finance the cost. Just call toll-free: 800-972-5782.

Save up to 60%.
By installing proper insulation in ceilings, walls and floors, by adding storm doors and windows, and by caulking around windows, door frames and foundation—you can save up to 60% on your heating bill.

So even if you're not as tall as Artis Gilmore, you should know where your heat is going, and stop it—with insulation.

Three Steps to Early Disease Detection

1. An analysis of your lifestyle and health history will help in determining the probability of you contacting disease. This information also will be helpful in identifying changes in your normal activity which have proven to add to general good health and increase life expectancy.

2. Diagnostic tests including blood analysis, chest x-rays, an electrocardiogram, and urinalysis will help determine the presence or absence of disease. If further testing is indicated, it will be prescribed by the physician.

3. After a complete and comprehensive physical examination by a member of the hospital's Medical Staff, you will receive an interpretation of all results and suggestions for a personalized health program.

These steps are all part of the Early Disease Detection Program of Holy Family and the hospital's Medical Staff practicing in your community.

Call us Monday through Friday, at 297-1800, extension 1157, to obtain more information on how you can take these three steps to Early Disease Detection.

THURSDAY IN THE HERALD
Favorite secret recipes?
SUGAR 'N SPICE tells all every Thursday in The Daily Herald.

When you're as tall as Artis Gilmore, you know where most of your heat goes. Through the ceiling.

When Chicago Bulls center Artis Gilmore was just a little guy, his teachers taught him a basic law of nature: heat rises. And now that he's 7 foot 2, Artis knows what they meant—because he's up there where the heat is. That's why Artis knows the value of insulation.

An uninsulated home can lose 3 times as much heat.

You already know that insulation cuts down on heat loss. But it might startle you to know this: Uninsulated homes lose up to three times as much heat as insulated ones.

Roofs usually account for the greatest amount of heat loss. In a typical uninsulated ranch house, over 30% of the heat loss goes through the roof alone. While many homes are insulated to some extent, the majority of single-family homes today need additional insulation—and, generally, improving the attic insulation will help the most and is the easiest to do.

A high R-Value can save you money.

R-Value is the term that describes the effectiveness of insulation material. The higher the R-Value, the lower your heat loss and the more money you save on fuel bills.

We recommend R-19 insulation in the attic, where most heat is lost. If you're a single-family-residence customer of ours, we'll even help finance the cost. Just call toll-free: 800-972-5782.

Save up to 60%.

By installing proper insulation in ceilings, walls and floors, by adding storm doors and windows, and by caulking around windows, door frames and foundation—you can save up to 60% on your heating bill.

So even if you're not as tall as Artis Gilmore, you should know where your heat is going, and stop it—with insulation.

Paddock's Striking Lanes surprises with high series

Striking Lanes, a sleeping giant throughout the first half of the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League schedule, awoke with a clamor and a new season-high series.

The quintet of Bette Brelle (592-219-201), Lu Schoenberger (580-206), Alice Schroder (570-200-205), Judy Brumond (565-201) and Eunice Whitmore (522) exploded to a 2829 series, igniting a charge that has left them just two points off the league lead.

Victim of the onslaught was Petterson Tire Corp. which salvaged two of the seven points as Bobbie Kostelny hit 584-202, Dee Harris 520-202, Winnie Lohse 516 and Carol Sander 501-204.

PACE-SETTING L-Tran Engineering captured five of seven points from Tower Cleaners as Marlis Pleickhardt registered 576-221 and Vi Douglas 517-201. Tower got a 567-232 from Judy Tomaszewski, Elaine Nirva's 528 and Dee Gawel's 507.

Ziebart Rustproofing of Des Plaines rode Peggy Harris' individual high series of the night (597-202-213) to a 5-2 win over Mason Shoes. Teammates Marge Voykovich contributed 555-203, Pat Coleantonio 522 and Joan Christensen 514. Mason's firepower came from Irma Faust's 552 and Sally Jo Gerard's 524.

Thunderbird Country Club whipped Ten Pin Bowl, 5-2, as Marge Carlson erupted for 591-224-207, Dee Kachelmuss 549, Mary Yurs 524 and Connie Staudenmayer 523-211.

STANDINGS

L-Tran Engineering 54, Striking Lanes 52, Ziebart of Des Plaines 46, Mason Shoes 45, Ten Pin Bowl 42, Petterson Tire Corp. 39, Tower Cleaners 30 and Thunderbird Country Club 28.

Weber's kettles bowl team series high of 3344

by DON CHRISTENSEN

Paddock Classic bowlers were hot again Saturday with a new high team series being set and 15 men reaching the coveted 600 level at Hoffman Lanes.

Beverly Lanes fell victim to Weber's Bar-B-Que Kettles despite a very respectful 3092 team series of their own. Webers, with games of 1188, 1105, and 1051 for 3344, whipped Beverly Lanes though Art Okinski blasted a new league high of 279, in the 1st game.

Sixth man Ed Main led a contingent of five Weber keglers with a big 721, followed by Joe Simonis' 693, Lou Diegel's 660, Jerry Ingall's 636 and Dick Jensen's 614.

BEVERLY LANES had four big shooters of their own paced by Okinski's 687, Ken Miller's 652, Mike Cregan's 618, and Bob Glaser's 609. The big total also enabled Weber's Kettles to overtake Formco Metal by one-half point. The two meet next week, which should go a long way in determining the first half winner.

Formco Metal took two of three games and 20 of 32 points from Des Plaines Ace Hardware. Barry Stjernberg and Mike Shoop led the attack for Formco on games of 201, 257, 234 and 692 for Stjernberg and 235, 226, 202 for 663 by Shoop. Glen Chesser was high for Ace with 618.

Sim's Bowl climbed out of the cellar when Jerry Belluzzi and Rich Wagner bowled for 654 and 644, respectively. After a slow start, Sim's Bowl came back with 1095 and 983, which boosted them to a 2971 team series and 24 points

Dick McFeely Pontiac won the first game on a 928 effort. Gerry Withey's 609 total was high for Dick McFeely.

There has been a schedule change this week with teams moving from Beverly Lanes back to Hoffman The schedule: Sim's Bowl vs. Beverly Lanes, Formco Metal vs. Weber's Kettles, and Des Plaines Ace Hardware vs. Dick McFeely Pontiac.

STANDINGS

Weber's Kettles 255 5, Formco Metal 255, Des Plaines Ace Hardware 198, Sim's Bowl 153, Beverly Lanes 152.5, Dick McFeely Pontiac 139.

Fan's missed football game costs RTD $45

DENVER (UPI) — A county judge awarded a loyal Denver Broncos fan $44.70 because a foulup by the Regional Transportation District caused her to miss attending the Broncos' first regular season game.

Judge John Sanchez of the Denver County Court said he believed Helen Harris of Aurora, Colo., was entitled to damages because she was forced to watch the football game on television.

"There is a great difference in seeing the game on television and seeing it in person," Sanchez said. The judge also said he would have awarded Mrs. Harris more in damages if she had asked for them.

Mrs. Harris, acting as her own attorney, asked only for the price of two RTD season passes to the Broncos games and two tickets to the missed game.

Mrs. Harris went to the Aurora Mall with her daughter to catch a bus to Mile High Stadium for the game Sept. 18. The bus never showed up.

"I called RTD, but they gave me the runaround," Mrs. Harris said. "It was a little guy against a big guy. I just felt I was right, so I took them to court."

An RTD attorney said the decision will be appealed.

As the poet might have said, "A little caution now and then is relished by the best of men."

South looked over dummy. At first glance he thought about making an overtrick. All he had to do would be to ruff his two little hearts in dummy. Then he thought that overtricks were fine, but players who make their contracts do better than those who go down.

So, South gave up all play for the overtrick and decided to play safely for his contract.

At trick two he led a low heart from his hand. When West discarded South smiled happily. He had insured his contract provided trumps didn't break 5-0.

The defense tried. West chucked a club. East cashed the ace and king and led a third club, but South ruffed, let his last low heart, ruffed with dummy's ace, drew trumps and chalked up the rubber.

This wasn't a far-fetched safety play. East had opened with very few high cards. It was very likely that he held a six-card suit.

Ask Andy

Baked goods rise because of powder

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to David Nelson, 14, of Sullivan, Wis., for his question:

HOW DOES BAKING POWDER WORK?

There are basically three kinds of bread: yeast bread, flat bread and quick bread. Quick bread is the type that is made most often at home and includes muffins, corn bread and fluffy biscuits. Most quick breads call for the addition of baking powder to its ingredients.

Baking powder is a white powder used to make biscuits and cakes leaven, or rise. Added to flour when baking, baking powder produces a chemical reaction when air and either water or sweet milk is mixed in. Bubbles of carbon-dioxide gas form and they become trapped in the flour mixture. When the mixture is heated in the oven, the bubbles will expand and make the entire mixture rise.

Baking powder contains starch, sodium bicarbonate (baking soda) and other acid-forming ingredients. The starch keeps the powder dry and prevents it from going through its magic act until liquid is added.

Different speeds of reaction are obtained by different types of baking powders. Sulfate powder is the slowest since it does not react fully until heated. Tartrate and phosphate powders are the fastest since they act as soon as they are mixed with a liquid.

Double-action or combination powders also are widely used. This type reacts well in both mixing and baking processes.

Tartrate baking powders contain cream of tartar and tartaric acid, while phosphate powders use calcium dihydrogen phosphate. Sulfate powders contain sodium aluminum sulfate, or alum, while double-action or combination powders have both phosphate and sulfate.

Baking soda and sour milk have the same rising effect on flour mixtures as baking powder and sweet milk.

About 99 per cent of all commercial bread is of the yeast type. Baking powder is not used here. Rather, as the name clearly tells you, yeast is used as the raising ingredient.

Flat bread, which includes matzo and tortillas, uses little or no leaven.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Heather Sherwood, 11, of Arlington Heights, Ill., for her question:

WHERE DO PISTACHIO NUTS COME FROM?

Pistachio nuts are sometimes called green almonds. They grow on trees in the eastern Mediterranean area, in southwestern Asia and in California.

Pistachios are about 1 inch long and have smooth, thin and hard shells that tend to open at the edges much like the shells of oysters. They are covered with a thin, smooth skin that is pale red to yellow. This skin must be removed before the kernel can be processed.

A pistachio kernel either may be eaten as a nut or ground and used as a food flavoring and coloring. Sometimes they are salted in brine while still in their shells.

Pistachio trees do well in dry regions and grow to about 30 feet in height. Trees can be either male or female. In order to produce nuts, the female tree must have a male tree nearby to provide pollen for its flowers.

Send your question on a postcard to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to boys and girls 7 to 17.

New takeoff cuts jet noise: study

JETLINERS using O'Hare Airport could rattle fewer nerves, a new federal study shows. If a different take-off procedure were used, fewer people would have to put up with unbearable jet noise. The procedure that is now used creates the most noise of six procedures studied.

by THOMAS LEE

Airlines can sharply reduce the noise created by jets departing O'Hare Airport, a new federal study shows.

The study indicates that if airlines adopted a takeoff procedure now in use at a Washington, D.C., airport, the areas exposed to highly objectionable noise would be cut by one-third.

The study shows the takeoff procedure now used by most major airlines is the loudest procedure among those tested. An industry group, the Air Transport Assn. of America, sanctions this procedure as simple, safe and not excessively noisy.

Antinoise lobbyists disagree and are hailing the new study as scientific evidence in their fight against jet noise. They say they will use the study to argue for a federal crackdown on airport noise.

THE STUDY was commissioned by the Federal Aviation Administration and performed by the Mitre Corp., a Virginia think-tank owned by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The FAA is researching proposed regulations that may require airlines to adopt certain procedures to abate noise.

Charles R. Foster, director of the FAA office of environmental quality, said the study will play "some role" in rule formulation but won't be the only evidence to bear upon the rule

The proposed rule-making is vitally important in Chicago's Northwest suburbs, where neighbors of O'Hare Airport have objected to airport noise since the mid-1960s. The objections have spawned a local chapter of the National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment, a group lobbying for noise abatement laws.

Other groups have joined the fight, and their efforts have included the recent collection of more than 21,000 signatures in a letter-writing campaign to Washington.

Several individuals who work close to pending antinoise legislation and regulations said they had never heard of the study, and were surprised when told about it by The Daily Herald

AN FAA SPOKESMAN said the agency made no attempt to hide the study, but no special attempt to publicize it, either. The study is dated March 1977.

The study compares and analyzes the noise created by six different takeoff procedures.

Among them are two "quiet thrust" procedures, one used at Washington National Airport in Washington and another used by Northwest Orient Airlines. The two are variations of the same basic idea, which involves flap retraction and thrust reduction shortly after takeoff. Because less thrust is used, less noise is made.

Some antinoise advocates refer to these procedures as "tiptoeing out of the airport."

The study also analyzes the procedure used by most airlines, called the

Korean spy plan disclosed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret South Korean intelligence plan unveiled Tuesday at a House hearing called for broad efforts to influence U.S. policy last year by infiltrating the White House, Congress, the Pentagon and the State Dept.

No immediate evidence was produced to show that the purported Korean CIA plan, with a projected cost of $750,000, was implemented on a broad scale to generate the internal spy network it envisioned to gain favorable policies for Korea.

The 24-page document outlining clandestine operations at the White House and elsewhere in government also proposed steps to win influence in the news media, academic circles, religious groups and other organizations. It referred to a separate plan for congressional campaign contributions but gave no details.

THE PLAN WAS released by an International Relations subcommittee investigating CIA activities in the United States. Chairman Donald Fraiser, D-Minn., said it amounted to "outright subversion."

The lead-off witness, Sohn Ho Young, the chief KCIA agent in New York until he defected two months ago, testified the document was drafted in 1975 for use the next year and was approved at agency headquarters in Seoul, but said he didn't know if the plan ever was executed

"My common sense tells me it was not really carried out," he said, partly as a result of newspaper reports about Korean CIA influence-peddling on Capital Hill that began to surface as the plan was being put together in Washington.

NEITHER SOHN nor four later witnesses named as "targets" in the plan provided significant evidence to show they were subverted. Subcommittee investigators said privately they still had no proof any government official was given money under the plan.

No other names in the original document were identified. Fraser said they were deleted to protect the privacy of those involved.

The thrust of the plan appeared to be aimed at "manipulation" of congressmen and key officials in the U.S. diplomatic-military establishment, with offers of free trips to Korea, campaign contributions, gifts and monthly payoffs to get them to cooperate.

Amounts of money were listed in many specific cases and it said contacts with dozens of lawmakers had

U.S. will go to talks in Cairo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States formally announced Tuesday it will attend the Middle East peace talks in Cairo but U.S officials said the Soviet Union sent word it will shun the negotiations.

A State Dept spokesman praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for injecting a "new, dynamic element in the negotiations" by calling the Cairo talks

In Moscow, however, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said the Soviet Union cannot support Sadat's initiatives. A nation which "departs from the Common Arab front," Gromyko said, does not deserve approval

STATE DEPT. officials said the Soviets informed Sec. of State Cyrus Vance that they wouldn't send a representative to Cairo

In New York, U.N. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim noted that many of those invited to Cairo don't plan to go. He proposed they all gather on "neutral ground" at the United Nations in a followup meeting a few weeks from now

Officials said the State Department's choice for a U.S representative to the Cairo talks is Hermann Eilts, the U.S. ambassador to Egypt since 1974.

State Dept. spokesman Hodding Carter III earlier had said that the U.S. representative would be "someone whose background and competence is heavily in the area and who has a good knowledge of the history."

SO FAR, ONLY Israel, the United States and Waldheim have announced

Public works union won't be recognized

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

A public works employes union, apparently organized in Mount Prospect within the last two months, will not be recognized in salary negotiations this year unless it complies with the village's collective bargaining ordinance.

Mayor Carolyn H. Krause, after an executive session Tuesday night with the village board, said public employes have a right to collective bargaining. But "certain procedures must be followed," she said, including a special election before an organized union is recognized as the official bargaining agent for any village department.

The village Monday unexpectedly received a letter from the Assn. of Independent Municipal Employes stating, "A majority of employes in the Mount Prospect Public Works Dept. have chosen and joined AIME to represent them in all aspects of their employ."

SEVERAL VILLAGE public works employes apparently did an about-face since late in September when a majority of the 40-member department, by secret ballot, decided an in-house advisory committee rather than a union should represent them in wage negotiations this year.

"I'm not only surprised, but somewhat dismayed at the thought that the advisory committee that I was meeting with in good faith had union members on it who didn't make themselves known to me," Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said. "Not only are they members but they are officers."

Cliff Thielitz, president of the Mount Prospect chapter of AIME and member of the employe committee recognized earlier this month by the village as the bargaining unit for the public works department, refused to comment on the sudden appearance of two public works factions.

"It was a complete surprise to me and a disappointment," said Charles Matt, non-union chairman of the public works advisory committee. "I am still not for the association in the Village of Mount Prospect. I'm still very antiunion, antiassociation. I think it's labor's attack on management in general. I don't think it has to do with

Nancy Gotler

Byline report

Before moving out of his Arlington Heights apartment last summer, Landon G. Brooks spent two days cleaning it to ensure that his $350 security deposit would be returned.

Four months later he still has not seen a penny of the money, even though the assistant manager of the complex says Brooks' apartment was left "spotless."

Brooks, who now lives at 464 Beech Dr., Wheeling, has joined the ranks of what area attorneys and property managers agree is a growing number of tenants who do not receive their full security deposit after moving.

THIRTEEN PER cent of all small claims court cases in Cook County in the past three years were filed by tenants trying to reclaim their deposits, an indication, one attorney says, that the system is riddled with fraud despite laws designed to protect renters.

"There is a lot of fraud perpetrated against tenants by landlords who, in an awful lot of instances, are acting deliberately," John Biestek, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., said.

"Nowhere near the majority of landlords are deliberately fraudulent, but when one landlord manages 300 apartment units he can bilk a lot of people out of their deposits over the years," he said.

Biestek said tenants who call him for help most often complain that huge amounts were deducted from the security deposit for minor or nonexistent damages or that no explanation is offered at all.

IN BROOKS' CASE, the attorney for the Stonebridge Apartments, 600 W. Rand Rd., where he lived, advised the managers to stop returning deposits to anyone whose lease was not fulfilled until an investigation of a former Stonebridge employe is completed.

The attorney, Richard J. Daley, could not elaborate.

But Brooks had a clause in his lease allowing him to move early if he gave the management at least 60 days notice. And he was never told, despite repeated phone calls, why his money had not been returned.

"I feel that I'm owed an explanation," he said. "It appears that they don't intend to give me my money back because they've had plenty of time to do it if they did."

Assistant Mgr. Eric Rubenstein said when the legal problem is resolved, Brooks' money "most assuredly" will be refunded. He said the lack of communication was an "oversight."

THE SECURITY deposit, usually equal to one month's rent, is paid by the tenant when a lease is signed as the owner's insurance against damage.

Landlords of complexes with at least 10 apartments legally are bound either to refund the full deposit or furnish receipts itemizing what repairs were made with the money within 30 days after a renter moves.

But there are no penalties when the law is ignored, Biestek said, and most attorneys will not represent a tenant trying to recover a deposit because they cannot assure the client he will break even.

"I get calls constantly from people

Public works union won't be recognized

personalities "

Herbert Weeks, director of the Mount Prospect Public Works Dept., said he had no idea several of his employes were organizing

"I am shocked that they felt this was necessary," Weeks said "I don't think they know all of the ramifications of having an association I don't think they realize the public trust they are betraying by not allowing the advisory committee of our own employes already, recognized by the village, to bargain on their behalf "

UNDER VILLAGE ordinance, the union may be recognized as an exclusive representative in salary negotiations provided a petition for a secret ballot election is filed with the village manager by 30 per cent of the public works employes

The village next week will begin wage talks with police, fire and public works representatives AIME will not be recognized until an election, as required by ordinance. Firefighters in the past have negotiated salaries through an advisory committee similar to the one the public works department will send to the bargaining table for the first time this year Police, represented by the Combined Counties Police Assn., are the only employes the village recognizes as organized union members

JETLINERS using O'Hare Airport could rattle fewer nerves, a new federal study shows. If a different take-off procedure were used, fewer people would have to put up with unbearable jet noise. The procedure that is now used creates the most noise of six procedures studied.

New takeoff cuts jet noise: study

by THOMAS LEE

Airlines can sharply reduce the noise created by jets departing O'Hare Airport, a new federal study shows.

The study indicates that if airlines adopted a takeoff procedure now in use at a Washington, D.C., airport, the areas exposed to highly objectionable noise would be cut by one-third.

The study shows the takeoff procedure now used by most major airlines is the loudest procedure among those tested. An industry group, the Air Transport Assn. of America, sanctions this procedure as simple, safe and not excessively noisy

Antinoise lobbyists disagree and are hailing the new study as scientific evidence in their fight against jet noise. They say they will use the study to argue for a federal crackdown on airport noise.

THE STUDY was commissioned by the Federal Aviation Administration and performed by the Mitre Corp., a Virginia think-tank owned by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology The FAA is researching proposed regulations that may require airlines to adopt certain procedures to abate noise

Charles R. Foster, director of the FAA office of environmental quality, said the study will play "some role" in rule formulation but won't be the only evidence to bear upon the rule

The proposed rule-making is vitally important in Chicago's Northwest suburbs, where neighbors of O'Hare Airport have objected to airport noise since the mid-1960s. The objections have spawned a local chapter of the National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment, a group lobbying for noise abatement laws

Other groups have joined the fight, and their efforts have included the recent collection of more than 21,000 signatures in a letter-writing campaign to Washington

Several individuals who work close to pending antinoise legislation and regulations said they had never heard of the study, and were surprised when told about it by The Daily Herald.

AN FAA SPOKESMAN said the agency made no attempt to hide the study, but no special attempt to publicize it, either. The study is dated March 1977.

The study compares and analyzes the noise created by six different takeoff procedures.

Among them are two "quiet thrust" procedures, one used at Washington National Airport in Washington and another used by Northwest Orient Airlines The two are variations of the same basic idea, which involves flap retraction and thrust reduction shortly after takeoff. Because less thrust is used, less noise is made

Some antinoise advocates refer to these procedures as "tiptoeing out of the airport."

The study also analyzes the procedure used by most airlines, called the

Korean spy plan disclosed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret South Korean intelligence plan unveiled Tuesday at a House hearing called for broad efforts to influence U.S. policy last year by infiltrating the White House, Congress, the Pentagon and the State Dept.

No immediate evidence was produced to show that the purported Korean CIA plan, with a projected cost of $750,000, was implemented on a broad scale to generate the internal spy network it envisioned to gain favorable policies for Korea.

The 24-page document outlining clandestine operations at the White House and elsewhere in government also proposed steps to win influence in the news media, academic circles, religious groups and other organizations. It referred to a separate plan for congressional campaign contributions but gave no details.

THE PLAN WAS released by an International Relations subcommittee investigating CIA activities in the United States. Chairman Donald Fraser, D-Minn., said it amounted to "outright subversion"

The lead-off witness, Sohn Ho Young the chief KCIA agent in New York until he defected two months ago, testified the document was drafted in 1975 for use the next year and was approved at agency headquarters in Seoul, but said he didn't know it the plan ever was executed

"My common sense tells me it was not really carried out," he said, partly as a result of newspaper reports about Korean CIA influence-peddling on Capital Hill that began to surface as the plan was being put together in Washington

NEITHER SOHN nor four later witnesses named as "targets" in the plan provided significant evidence to show they were subverted. Subcommittee investigators said privately they still had no proof any government official was given money under the plan.

No other names in the original document were identified. Fraser said they were deleted to protect the privacy of those involved.

The thrust of the plan appeared to be aimed at "manipulation" of congressmen and key officials in the U.S. diplomatic-military establishment, with offers of free trips to Korea, campaign contributions, gifts and monthly payoffs to get them to cooperate.

Amounts of money were listed in many specific cases and it said contacts with dozens of lawmakers had

U.S. will go to talks in Cairo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States formally announced Tuesday it will attend the Middle East peace talks in Cairo but U.S. officials said the Soviet Union sent word it will shun the negotiations.

A State Dept spokesman praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for injecting a "new, dynamic element in the negotiations" by calling the Cairo talks

In Moscow, however, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said the Soviet Union cannot support Sadat's initiatives A nation which "departs from the Common Arab front," Gromyko said, does not deserve approval

STATE DEPT. officials said the Soviets informed Sec of State Cyrus Vance that they wouldn't send a representative to Cairo

In New York, U.N. Sec Gen. Kurt Waldheim noted that many of those invited to Cairo don't plan to go. He proposed they all gather on "neutral ground" at the United Nations in a followup meeting a few weeks from now.

Officials said the State Department's choice for a U.S. representative to the Cairo talks is Hermann Eilts, the U.S. ambassador to Egypt since 1974.

State Dept. spokesman Hodding Carter III earlier had said that the U.S. representative would be "someone whose background and competence is heavily in the area and who has a good knowledge of the history."

SO FAR, ONLY Israel, the United States and Waldheim have announced

City to remain without ethics ordinance

Rolling Meadows does not need an ethics ordinance and for the time being will remain one of the only Northwest suburban towns not to have one, city officials decided Tuesday.

Calling local ethics legislation unnecessary and unenforceable, the city council decided in a committee meeting not to try to pass the law proposed by Ald. Raymond Neuckranz, 1st.

Instead the council may consider passing a resolution asking officials to sign voluntarily a statement of ethics policy.

AFTER THE MEETING, Neuckranz, who spent several weeks researching ethics laws in neighboring towns, said he would be satisfied with the voluntary code.

"When I sign something, to me it's a reminder," he said. "I'm saying I believe in this. I don't care if they can prosecute me. It's like the Ten Commandments. If I break one, who's going to come after me?"

The ordinance Neuckranz proposed was a 13-page, detailed law that would have prohibited certain instances of accepting gifts, personal use of city property or equipment, granting special favors to citizens, promising appointments in return for political support, engaging in business transactions that may present a conflict of interest, and disclosing confidential information.

In addition, the law would have required all public officials and their immediate families to fill out a disclosure statement with information about ownership of property in or near the city and businesses within the city, debts and loans incurred and gifts received and given

MAYOR ROLAND J. Meyer and some aldermen said the law is unnecessary because the state has an ethics law that covers city officials. Because Rolling Meadows is not a home-rule community, it cannot pass anything more stringent than the state law

"Then why pass it?" Meyer asked. "This would just be window dressing, a show case."

Kathy Ross, a lawyer in the office of City Atty. Donald Rose, told the council several sections of the Neuckranz proposal go beyond the state law and would be invalid. She noted the

Rent deposit often money kissed goodby

Nancy Gotler

Byline report

Before moving out of his Arlington Heights apartment last summer, Landon G. Brooks spent two days cleaning it to ensure that his $350 security deposit would be returned

Four months later he still has not seen a penny of the money, even though the assistant manager of the complex says Brooks' apartment was left "spotless."

Brooks, who now lives at 464 Beech Dr., Wheeling, has joined the ranks of what area attorneys and property managers agree is a growing number of tenants who do not receive their full security deposit after moving.

THIRTEEN PER cent of all small claims court cases in Cook County in the past three years were filed by tenants trying to reclaim their deposits, an indication, one attorney says, that the system is riddled with fraud despite laws designed to protect renters.

"There is a lot of fraud perpetrated against tenants by landlords who, in an awful lot of instances, are acting deliberately" John Biestek, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., said.

"Nowhere near the majority of landlords are deliberately fraudulent, but when one landlord manages 300 apartment units he can bilk a lot of people out of their deposits over the years," he said.

Biestek said tenants who call him for help most often complain that huge amounts were deducted from the security deposit for minor or nonexistent damages or that no explanation is offered at all.

IN BROOKS' CASE, the attorney for the Stonebridge Apartments, 600 W. Rand Rd., where he lived, advised the managers to stop returning deposits to anyone whose lease was not fulfilled until an investigation of a former Stonebridge employe is completed.

The attorney, Richard J. Daley, could not elaborate.

But Brooks had a clause in his lease allowing him to move early if he gave the management at least 60 days notice. And he was never told, despite repeated phone calls, why his money had not been returned.

"I feel that I'm owed an explanation," he said. "It appears that they don't intend to give me my money back because they've had plenty of time to do it if they did."

Assistant Mgr. Eric Rubenstein said when the legal problem is resolved, Brooks' money "most assuredly" will be refunded. He said the lack of communication was an "oversight."

THE SECURITY deposit, usually equal to one month's rent, is paid by the tenant when a lease is signed as the owner's insurance against damage.

Landlords of complexes with at least 10 apartments legally are bound either to refund the full deposit or furnish receipts itemizing what repairs were made with the money within 30 days after a renter moves.

But there are no penalties when the law is ignored, Biestek said, and most attorneys will not represent a tenant trying to recover a deposit because they cannot assure the client he will break even.

"I get calls constantly from people

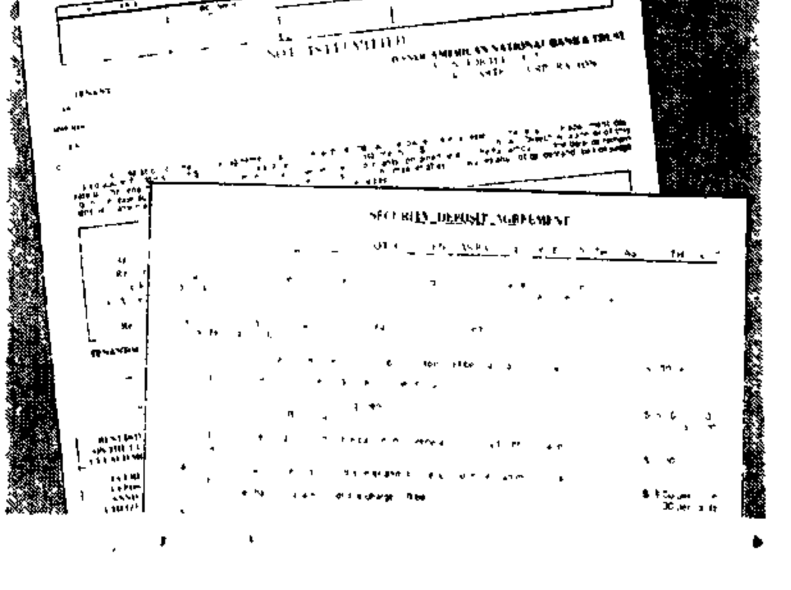
NORTHWEST SUBURBAN attorneys and property owners warn renters to insist that landlords furnish a list of deductions that will be made from the security deposit for specific damages.



Lack of space postpones day-care program

Palatine Township Dist. 15 will not start an after-school day-care program during the current school year because of a lack of space.

However, a program may be established next school year.

If space to house the program in the district's schools can be found without bumping other communities groups or using classrooms, the program could be started in September.

This was the consensus of four of six board of education members at Tuesday night's meeting of the personnel and professional relations committee.

Staffing and student assignment needs for the 1978-79 school year and data on the past use of schools by outside groups is to be presented to the board in February by administrators.

BOARD MEMBERS Walter Kendall, Lyn Rowe, Patsy Kelly and Everett Charlier said they philosophically support the idea of the self-supporting after-school day-care program proposed by representatives of community agencies so long as space can be found.

Supt. Frank Whiteley told board members the district's non-classroom space is in constant use after school by scouting programs, intramural activities and park district classes. Only four empty classrooms exist and three of these are at Jefferson School in Hoffman Estates, where new home construction draws additional children daily, he said.

Principals and teachers are reluctant to have classroom space used by outside groups because of the "chaos" this creates, Whiteley said.

THE AFTER-SCHOOL day-care committee suggested that its program would cooperate with other community programs rather than push them out, but administrators indicated this would not be feasible. When more than one organization uses the same room at the same time, it becomes difficult to establish liability, Whiteley said.

"We have a very limited amount of space that could be made available to community groups," Board Pres. Joe Meyer said. "A long-term commitment to a program running from 3 to 6 p.m. five days a week eliminates other competition for that space."

Board member Irene Sjostedt said many children need the schools for after-school activities aside from the day-care program and that she would not want to see these uses bumped.

"There should be some facility somewhere, even in a teachers' lounge, to start a pilot program to provide fun things for kids to do," Louise Silberg, of the Palatine Park District, said.

New house ready – and vandalized

by THOMAS J. MOORE
and TOM VALEO

The windows and mirrors were broken, holes had been kicked in the walls and the bathroom fixtures were damaged.

But that did not stop Bob and Yvonne Greenburg from moving into their new home in the Strathmore Grove subdivision in Buffalo Grove Tuesday, three months after they were first promised the house.

The Greenburg's home is one of six damaged in a vandalism spree that began in Strathmore Grove Thanksgiving night when vandals set fire to the model home used as the office by Levitt and Sons Construction Co., causing at least $20,000 damage.

"WE'RE STAYING here tonight," Greenburg said while standing in the kitchen of the new home. "If for nothing else, for safety's sake."

Workmen tracked mud and snow in the front door on their way upstairs to repair the estimated $2,000 in damage while movers brought in furniture through the garage.

Mrs. Greenburg said the vandalism made her feel "different" about her new home, and a little afraid.

"At least I was spared seeing it," she said as she cleaned up around the kitchen. "With all the hassle of moving, I didn't need that little extra."

The Greenburgs sold their home in Wheeling long ago and had been paying rent to stay while the completion date on their new home was moved back again and again. They had promised to be out of their old home on Tuesday, so they had to move, regardless of the vandalism.

VANDALS ALSO damaged the house next to the Greenburgs'.

"It was just a few things, nothing horrendous," said Joel Aronson, who moved into the house Monday. "We're in and happy about being in."

Two windows were broken and the dishwasher was kicked and dented, Aronson said. Outside, the telephone line had been cut before it was buried. It cannot be fixed until spring. Aronson said others in the neighborhood have had the same problem with their telephone cables.

The two houses were the only completed ones in the subdivision to be vandalized during the weekend, a spokesman for Levitt Construction said, and they would have been occupied if bad weather last winter and a shortage of building materials had not delayed completion.

Korean spy plan disclosed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret South Korean intelligence plan unveiled Tuesday at a House hearing called for broad efforts to influence U.S. policy last year by infiltrating the White House, Congress, the Pentagon and the State Dept

No immediate evidence was produced to show that the purported Korean CIA plan, with a projected cost of $750,000, was implemented on a broad scale to generate the internal spy network it envisioned to gain favorable policies for Korea.

The 24-page document outlining clandestine operations at the White House and elsewhere in government also proposed steps to win influence in he news media, academic circles, religious groups and other organizations. It referred to a separate plan for congressional campaign contributions but gave no details.

THE PLAN WAS released by an International Relations subcommittee investigating CIA activities in the United States. Chairman Donald Fraiser, D-Minn., said it amounted to "outright subversion."

The lead-off witness, Sohn Ho Young, the chief KCIA agent in New York until he defected two months ago, testified the document was drafted in 1975 for use the next year and was approved at agency headquarters in Seoul, but said he didn't know if the plan ever was executed.

"My common sense tells me it was not really carried out," he said, partly as a result of newspaper reports about Korean CIA influence-peddling on Capital Hill that began to surface as the plan was being put together in Washington.

NEITHER SOHN nor four later witnesses named as "targets" in the plan provided significant evidence to show they were subverted. Subcommittee investigators said privately they still had no proof any government official was given money under the plan.

No other names in the original document were identified. Fraser said they were deleted to protect the privacy of those involved.

The thrust of the plan appeared to be aimed at "manipulation" of congressmen and key officials in the U.S. diplomatic-military establishment, with offers of free trips to Korea, campaign contributions, gifts and monthly payoffs to get them to cooperate.

Amounts of money were listed in many specific cases and it said contacts with dozens of lawmakers had

U.S. will go to talks in Cairo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States formally announced Tuesday it will attend the Middle East peace talks in Cairo but U.S. officials said the Soviet Union sent word it will shun the negotiations.

A State Dept spokesman praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for injecting a "new, dynamic element in the negotiations" by calling the Cairo talks

In Moscow, however, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said the Soviet Union cannot support Sadat's initiatives. A nation which "departs from the Common Arab front," Gromyko said, does not deserve approval.

STATE DEPT. officials said the Soviets informed Sec. of State Cyrus Vance that they wouldn't send a representative to Cairo.

In New York, U.N. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim noted that many of those invited to Cairo don't plan to go. He proposed they all gather on "neutral ground" at the United Nations in a followup meeting a few weeks from now.

Officials said the State Department's choice for a U.S. representative to the Cairo talks is Hermann Eilts, the U.S. ambassador to Egypt since 1974.

State Dept. spokesman Hodding Carter III earlier had said that the U.S. representative would be "someone whose background and competence is heavily in the area and who has a good knowledge of the history."

Lack of space postpones day-care plan

Palatine Township Dist. 15 will not start an after-school day-care program during the current school year because of a lack of space.

However, a program may be established next school year.

If space to house the program in the district's schools can be found without bumping other communities groups or using classrooms, the program could be started in September.

This was the consensus of four of six board of education members at Tuesday night's meeting of the personnel and professional relations committee.

Staffing and student assignment needs for the 1978-79 school year and data on the past use of schools by outside groups is to be presented to the board in February by administrators.

BOARD MEMBERS Walter Kendall, Lyn Rowe, Patsy Kelly and Everett Charlier said they philosophically support the idea of the self-supporting after-school day-care program proposed by representatives of community agencies so long as space can be found.

Supt. Frank Whiteley told board members the district's non-classroom space is in constant use after school by scouting programs, intramural activities and park district classes. Only four empty classrooms exist and three of these are at Jefferson School in Hoffman Estates, where new home construction draws additional children daily, he said.

Principals and teachers are reluctant to have classroom space used by outside groups because of the "chaos" this creates, Whiteley said.

THE AFTER-SCHOOL day-care committee suggested that its program would cooperate with other community programs rather than push them out, but administrators indicated this would not be feasible. When more than one organization uses the same room at the same time, it becomes difficult to establish liability, Whiteley said.

"We have a very limited amount of space that could be made available to community groups," Board Pres. Joe Meyer said. "A long-term commitment to a program running from 3 to 6 p.m. five days a week eliminates other competition for that space."

Byline report

Before moving out of his Arlington Heights apartment last summer, Landon G. Brooks spent two days cleaning it to ensure that his $350 security deposit would be returned.

Four months later he still has not seen a penny of the money, even though the assistant manager of the complex says Brooks' apartment was left "spotless."

Brooks, who now lives at 464 Beech Dr., Wheeling, has joined the ranks of what area attorneys and property managers agree is a growing number of tenants who do not receive their full security deposit after moving.

THIRTEEN PER cent of all small claims court cases in Cook County in the past three years were filed by tenants trying to reclaim their deposits, an indication, one attorney says, that the system is riddled with fraud despite laws designed to protect renters.

"There is a lot of fraud perpetrated against tenants by landlords who, in an awful lot of instances, are acting deliberately," John Biestek, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., said.

"Nowhere near the majority of landlords are deliberately fraudulent, but when one landlord manages 300 apartment units he can bilk a lot of people out of their deposits over the years," he said.

Biestek said tenants who call him for help most often complain that huge amounts were deducted from the security deposit for minor or nonexistent damages or that no explanation is offered at all.

IN BROOKS' CASE, the attorney for the Stonebridge Apartments, 600 W. Rand Rd., where he lived, advised the managers to stop returning deposits to anyone whose lease was not fulfilled until an investigation of a former Stonebridge employe is completed.

The attorney, Richard J. Daley, could not elaborate.

But Brooks had a clause in his lease allowing him to move early if he gave the management at least 60 days notice. And he was never told, despite repeated phone calls, why his money had not been returned.

"I feel that I'm owed an explanation," he said. "It appears that they don't intend to give me my money back because they've had plenty of time to do it if they did."

Assistant Mgr. Eric Rubenstein said when the legal problem is resolved, Brooks' money "most assuredly" will be refunded. He said the lack of communication was an "oversight."

THE SECURITY deposit, usually equal to one month's rent, is paid by the tenant when a lease is signed as the owner's insurance against damage.

Landlords of complexes with at least 10 apartments legally are bound either to refund the full deposit or furnish receipts itemizing what repairs were made with the money within 30 days after a renter moves.

But there are no penalties when the law is ignored, Biestek said, and most attorneys will not represent a tenant trying to recover a deposit because they cannot assure the client he will break even.

Raising of drinking age to be considered tonight

Raising the legal drinking age from 19 to 21 will be discussed tonight at a special meeting of the Palatine Village Board's health, safety and welfare committee

Committee Chairman James Shaw said two approaches to raising the drinking age will be discussed at the meeting, which will begin at 8 p m at the Bank of Palatine, 1 E. Northwest Hwy

The first would involve urging the Cook County Board to use its home-rule power and raise the drinking age countywide and also asking the Illinois General Assembly to do the same statewide

THE SECOND would be for Palatine to invoke the home-rule power and pass an ordinance raising the drinking age in the village to 21

The public will be invited to comment on both approaches, Shaw said

Police Chief Jerry Bratcher will report on vandalism in Palatine since the legal drinking age was lowered by the state legislature in 1973 That information will be used by the trustees in determining whether vandalism and teen-age drinking are related, Village Pres Robert J Guss Jr said

Tom Walstrom, an owner of Durty Nellie's West Irish Pub, said he expected several tavern owners to attend tonight's meeting

Last week, Arlington Heights tabled for two months a proposal to raise the drinking age in that village. Mount Prospect also has delayed further consideration of the matter

Earlier this month, the Northwest Municipal Conference endorsed raising the drinking age areawide

JETLINERS using O'Hare Airport could rattle fewer nerves, a new federal study shows. If a different take-off procedure were used, fewer people would have to put up with unbearable jet noise. The procedure that is now used creates the most noise of six procedures studied.

New takeoff cuts jet noise: study

by THOMAS LEE

Airlines can sharply reduce the noise created by jets departing O'Hare Airport, a new federal study shows.

The study indicates that if airlines adopted a takeoff procedure now in use at a Washington, D.C., airport, the areas exposed to highly objectionable noise would be cut by one-third.

The study shows the takeoff procedure now used by most major airlines is the loudest procedure among those tested. An industry group, the Air Transport Assn. of America, sanctions this procedure as simple, safe and not excessively noisy.

Antinoise lobbyists disagree and are hailing the new study as scientific evidence in their fight against jet noise. They say they will use the study to argue for a federal crackdown on airport noise

THE STUDY was commissioned by the Federal Aviation Administration and performed by the Mitre Corp., a Virginia think-tank owned by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The FAA is researching proposed regulations that may require airlines to adopt certain procedures to abate noise

Charles R. Foster, director of the FAA office of environmental quality, said the study will play ' some role" in rule formulation but won't be the only evidence to bear upon the rule

The proposed rule-making is vitally important in Chicago's Northwest suburbs, where neighbors of O'Hare Airport have objected to airport noise since the mid-1960s. The objections have spawned a local chapter of the National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment, a group lobbying for noise abatement laws

Other groups have joined the fight, and their efforts have included the recent collection of more than 21,000 signatures in a letter-writing campaign to Washington.

Several individuals who work close to pending antinoise legislation and regulations said they had never heard of the study, and were surprised when told about it by The Daily Herald

AN FAA SPOKESMAN said the agency made no attempt to hide the study, but no special attempt to publicize it, either. The study is dated March 1977.

The study compares and analyzes the noise created by six different takeoff procedures.

Among them are two "quiet thrust" procedures, one used at Washington National Airport in Washington and another used by Northwest Orient Airlines. The two are variations of the same basic idea, which involves flap retraction and thrust reduction shortly after takeoff. Because less thrust is used, less noise is made

Some antinoise advocates refer to these procedures as "tiptoeing out of the airport."

The study also analyzes the procedure used by most airlines, called the Police wait for the departure of Affairs

by PAT DOYLE

An alleged house of prostitution is operating with impunity in Elk Grove Township while businessmen and Cook County Sheriff's police wait for it to close.

The police haven't interfered with Affairs, advertised as a men's club at 2407 E. Oakton St., since it agreed five weeks ago to leave Dec. 10. And they have so plans to act before that date

Undercover county sheriff's police don't want to raid the place and reveal their identities because they may be needed in the future to infiltrate similar operations run by the same people, said Sgt. Clark Buckendahl of the county's vice control division.

BUCKENDAHL has good reason to believe they may be needed again. The people who run Affairs once operated the Fantasy Travel Club in Leyden Township, he said, adding they will offer prostitution as long as possible in one location before moving somewhere else.

"They open in another location and then we start all over again," Buckendahl said. "One of the reasons I'm not going back in there is that I don't want another officer identified by those people."

Sheriff's police arrested Brenda Smith, 26 of Chicago, and Jack Michaels, 34, of Schiller Park, during a raid of Affairs Sept. 23. Smith was charged with prostitution and Michaels with keeping a house of prostitution. They are to appear in circuit court Dec. 19.

But the arrests didn't stop Affairs which reopened the next day

A suit by the owners of the Oakton Street building to evict the club was more successful. George Demir, of Chicago, the reported proprietor of Affairs, agreed to pay owners Jack Skaathan and Robert Nogan $1,600 and get out of the building by Dec. 10 in return for dropping the suit.

"TO BE PERFECTLY honest, they are going to be out whether we make any arrests or not," Buckendahl said. "We know they are going to be out of there. Our problem is settled"

But Buckendahl said he doesn't expect Affairs to move by the Dec. 10 deadline Fantasy Travel Club stalled

Abortion clinic talks continue

Discussions continue tonight on whether to allow an abortion clinic in Elk Grove Village.

The village plan commission will meet at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 901 Wellington Ave., to talk about changing zoning ordinances to allow clinics that perform abortions.

The commission has been studying a proposal made by the village board to change the ordinances. The board suggested the changes in the hope of avoiding a court battle with George Long, owner of the Medical-Dental Clinic, 730-764 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Elk Grove Village.

LONG ASKED the village in April for a permit to remodel the building for the abortion clinic. He intends to rent the space to a Florida man.

After Building Comr. Thomas Rettenbacker denied the permit on grounds it didn't comply with zoning, Long took his case to the zoning board of appeals and won. But the village board did not accept the zoning board's decision and referred the matter to another committee.

Long filed suit in August against the village, charging it with stalling on his request for a permit.

Two weeks later the village board offered to change its ordinances and sent a proposal to the plan commission.

The proposal says clinics capable of performing abortions would have to be located within 15 minutes travel time of a hospital that could handle an emergency case and employ doctors who are staff members of such a hospital.

Eldon Ham, attorney for Long, maintains that the amendment is unnecessary. He says the existing ordinances allow for such an operation.

BUT HAM AND Long admit they will go along with any proposal that would guarantee them the permit they need to renovate for abortions.

But they want assurances soon or they say they will go ahead with a court hearing Dec. 15.

A survey taken by the Daily Herald shows 53.6 per cent of Elk Grove Village residents disapprove of having a private surgical clinic in the village where abortions would be performed. Twenty-eight per cent approve and 18.4 per cent have no opinion.

New house ready—and vandalized

by THOMAS J. MOORE
and TOM VALEO

The windows and mirrors were broken, holes had been kicked in the walls and the bathroom fixtures were damaged.

But that did not stop Bob and Yvonne Greenburg from moving into their new home in the Strathmore Grove subdivision in Buffalo Grove Tuesday, three months after they were first promised the house.

The Greenburg's home is one of six damaged in a vandalism spree that began in Strathmore Grove Thanksgiving night when vandals set fire to the model home used as the office by Levitt and Sons Construction Co., causing at least $20,000 damage.

"WE'RE STAYING here tonight," Greenburg said while standing in the kitchen of the new home. "If for nothing else, for safety's sake."

Workmen tracked mud and snow in the front door on their way upstairs to repair the estimated $2,000 in damage while movers brought in furniture through the garage.

Mrs. Greenburg said the vandalism made her feel "different" about her new home, and a little afraid.

"At least I was spared seeing it," she said as she cleaned up around the kitchen. "With all the hassle of moving, I didn't need that little extra."

The Greenburgs sold their home in Wheeling long ago and had been paying rent to stay while the completion date on their new home was moved back again and again. They had promised to be out of their old home on Tuesday, so they had to move, regardless of the vandalism.

VANDALS ALSO damaged the house next to the Greenburgs'.

"It was just a few things, nothing horrendous," said Joel Aronson, who moved into the house Monday. "We're in and happy about being in."

Two windows were broken and the dishwasher was kicked and dented, Aronson said. Outside, the telephone line had been cut before it was buried. It cannot be fixed until spring. Aronson said others in the neighborhood have had the same problem with their telephone cables.

The two houses were the only completed ones in the subdivision to be vandalized during the weekend, a spokesman for Levitt Construction said, and they would have been occupied if bad weather last winter and a shortage of building materials had not delayed completion.

In all, 10 homes in various stages of completion were damaged, the spokesman said, and no delays were expected because of the vandalism. However, the repair bill for the damage could run as high as $50,000, he said.

POLICE HAVE intensified their investigation of the vandalism since the fire in the model home Thanksgiving night. Two fires were started in the house, at the corner of Ill. Rte. 83 and Busch Road, but one fire apparently went out before it did any damage, Long Grove fire officials said.

The vandals also ransacked the office files, overturned furniture and splashed indelible ink used for the duplicating machine on the walls, police said.

Gary Deters of the Buffalo Grove Crime Prevention Unit said vandalism at construction sites in the village has occurred in the past. Last summer, after burglars removed the rug from an unoccupied house, members of the unit showed the contractors how to secure their buildings.

Vow to have open hospital forum

Wheeling officials say that all interested groups will be allowed to speak on a proposed Wheeling-Buffalo Grove hospital despite one resident's concerns that a Dec 14 public information meeting on the hospital will be one-sided

Sheila Schultz, a spokeswoman for the Citizens Lobby for Responsible Government, Monday told trustees she is concerned that the public will have little opportunity to speak at the meeting. She said the attorney for Franklin Boulevard Hospital, Chicago, developer of the proposed hospital, has said residents would be allowed to speak only during a short question-and-answer period.

Franklin Boulevard is planning a 238-bed hospital for a 20-acre site on Schoenbeck Road, just north of Hintz Road in unincorporated Wheeling Township. Hospital officials have said they will seek annexation although no application has been made to Wheeling officials.

"INFORMATION ABOUT the hospital never has been made available to the citizens. That's what people are concerned about," she said.

Trustee John Cole said if Franklin Boulevard makes a presentation without allowing residents to speak, "then they're wasting the people's time."

"If we let the hospital use the village hall for a public forum, then it should be a public forum," he said.

Trustees said they are prepared to stay and meet with residents even if the hospital officials adjourn the meeting early.

"I will be here as a citizen. If the people have questions, I think it behooves us all to stay here," Trustee Dolores Dahm said.

The trustees emphasized the village has no connection with the meeting other than providing a meeting place. They said all arrangements for the session were made through Village Pres. William Hein.

Skateboard park hung up on zoning

A Chicago businessman says he wants to build a skateboard park in Hoffman Estates next spring and, perhaps, cover it with a plastic bubble for year-round skating.

But first, Robert Vitacco must pass a series of zoning hearings by village officials If he is successful, his "Surf on Turf" skateboard park could become the first in the Northwest suburbs

For the last eight years, Vitacco has been co-owner of an Old Town apparel store specializing in expensive custom-made leather clothing.

BUT HE GREW tired of the clothing business, he says, and decided to cash in on the growing popularity of skateboarding

"I'll bet I've seen 100 skateboard parks in California, Texas, Mississippi, Georgia, all over. And it seems to be a very lucrative business," he says. "And I'd bet that it'd be lucrative for the village, too, if they came up with an entertainment tax or something like that.

"And I figure I can make a kid happier for $2 an hour on a skateboard than I can make an adult by selling him a $200 leather coat," he adds.

Financial considerations aside, Vitacco thinks he can convince village officials that his skateboard park would cut down on the number of skateboarding injuries.

"THE VERY FIRST skateboard park in the country was built in Carlsbad, Calif., by a guy who had hit a kid on a skateboard with his car," Vitacco says. "As it happened, he was an attorney with some money, so he put up a park.

"Skateboarding is really easy as long as you can keep rolling and as long as you're on a good surface and not running over pebbles or cracks in the sidewalk all the time. I saw one guy skating in California who was 55 years old and somebody told me about a 60-year-old woman who went skating with her grandson."

Skaters at "Surf on Turf" would be required to wear helmets, knee and elbow pads, gloves, shoes and long sleeves, he adds.

Vitacco says he has an option on 1 75-acres of vacant land on Higgins Road west of Roselle Road and is prepared to spend $200,000 to build his skateboard rink and equipment shop there.

AND HE IS TALKING to a plastics company about covering the rink with a plastic bubble, "but I don't think I need year-round skating to make it go."

Although the property already is zoned for business, Vitacco's plans must first be approved by Hoffman Estaes' zoning board of appeals, plan commission and village board because the village zoning laws do not provide for skateboard parks.

"I understand that I could build a go-cart track there right now without a special permit," he says, "but I guess nobody had heard of skateboarding when they set up the zones."

Although skateboard parks are common in the South and West and one is being built in Springfield there are none in the Northwest suburbs. The Elk Grove Park District studied a $110,000 plan to build a three-rink skateboard park last summer but abandoned the idea as to expensive. A Palatine man is seeking that village's permission to develop a 2.5-acre skateboard park on an undisclosed site.

past its eviction date in order to get as much business as possible, he said.

"If they have not left we will go back into court and get an order to throw them out of the building," he said That would happen within a few days of the Dec. 10 deadline, Buckendahl said.

Skaathan said he and his attorney have discussed the possibility that the club won't leave by Dec. 10. However, he is confident it will be gone soon

"THAT'S SOMETHING I'll have to face when the times comes,' Skaathan said,

Stalling past the Dec. 10 deadline wouldn't surprise Lawrence Fretzin, Skaathan's attorney, who said more than a month ago that delay was the name of the game for the club.

"The longer they delay, the more money they make," he said.

New takeoff cuts jet noise: study

JETLINERS using O'Hare Airport could rattle fewer nerves, a new federal study shows. If a different take-off procedure were used, fewer people would have to put up with unbearable jet noise. The procedure that is now used creates the most noise of six procedures studied.

by THOMAS LEE

Airlines can sharply reduce the noise created by jets departing O'Hare Airport, a new federal study shows.

The study indicates that if airlines adopted a takeoff procedure now in use at a Washington, D.C., airport, the areas exposed to highly objectionable noise would be cut by one-third.

The study shows the takeoff procedure now used by most major airlines is the loudest procedure among those tested. An industry group, the Air Transport Assn. of America, sanctions this procedure as simple, safe and not excessively noisy.

Antinoise lobbyists disagree and are hailing the new study as scientific evidence in their fight against jet noise. They say they will use the study to argue for a federal crackdown on airport noise.

THE STUDY was commissioned by the Federal Aviation Administration and performed by the Mitre Corp., a Virginia think-tank owned by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The FAA is researching proposed regulations that may require airlines to adopt certain procedures to abate noise.

Charles R. Foster, director of the FAA office of environmental quality, said the study will play "some role" in rule formulation but won't be the only evidence to bear upon the rule.

The proposed rule-making is vitally important in Chicago's Northwest suburbs, where neighbors of O'Hare Airport have objected to airport noise since the mid-1960s. The objections have spawned a local chapter of the National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment, a group lobbying for noise abatement laws.

Other groups have joined the fight, and their efforts have included the recent collection of more than 21,000 signatures in a letter-writing campaign to Washington.

Several individuals who work close to pending antinoise legislation and regulations said they had never heard of the study, and were surprised when told about it by The Daily Herald.

AN FAA SPOKESMAN said the agency made no attempt to hide the study, but no special attempt to publicize it, either. The study is dated March 1977.

The study compares and analyzes the noise created by six different takeoff procedures.

Among them are two "quiet thrust" procedures, one used at Washington National Airport in Washington and another used by Northwest Orient Airlines. The two are variations of the same basic idea, which involves flap retraction and thrust reduction shortly after takeoff. Because less thrust is used, less noise is made.

Some antinoise advocates refer to these procedures as "tiptoeing out of the airport."

The study also analyzes the procedure used by most airlines, called the

Korean spy plan disclosed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret South Korean intelligence plan unveiled Tuesday at a House hearing called for broad efforts to influence U.S. policy last year by infiltrating the White House, Congress, the Pentagon and the State Dept.

No immediate evidence was produced to show that the purported Korean CIA plan, with a projected cost of $750,000, was implemented on a broad scale to generate the internal spy network it envisioned to gain favorable policies for Korea.

The 24-page document outlining clandestine operations at the White House and elsewhere in government also proposed steps to win influence in the news media, academic circles, religious groups and other organizations. It referred to a separate plan for congressional campaign contributions but gave no details.

THE PLAN WAS released by an International Relations subcommittee investigating CIA activities in the United States. Chairman Donald Fraser, D-Minn., said it amounted to "outright subversion."

The lead-off witness, Sohn Ho Young, the chief KCIA agent in New York until he defected two months ago, testified the document was drafted in 1975 for use the next year and was approved at agency headquarters in Seoul, but said he didn't know if the plan ever was executed.

"My common sense tells me it was not really carried out," he said, partly as a result of newspaper reports about Korean CIA influence-peddling on Capital Hill that began to surface as the plan was being put together in Washington.

NEITHER SOHN nor four later witnesses named as "targets" in the plan provided significant evidence to show they were subverted. Subcommittee investigators said privately they still had no proof any government official was given money under the plan.

No other names in the original document were identified. Fraser said they were deleted to protect the privacy of those involved.

The thrust of the plan appeared to be aimed at "manipulation" of congressmen and key officials in the U.S. diplomatic-military establishment, with offers of free trips to Korea, campaign contributions, gifts and monthly payoffs to get them to cooperate.

Amounts of money were listed in many specific cases and it said contacts with dozens of lawmakers had

U.S. will go to talks in Cairo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States formally announced Tuesday it will attend the Middle East peace talks in Cairo but U.S. officials said the Soviet Union sent word it will shun the negotiations.

A State Dept. spokesman praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for injecting a "new, dynamic element in the negotiations" by calling the Cairo talks.

In Moscow, however, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said the Soviet Union cannot support Sadat's initiatives. A nation which "departs from the Common Arab front," Gromyko said, does not deserve approval.

STATE DEPT. officials said the Soviets informed Sec. of State Cyrus Vance that they wouldn't send a representative to Cairo.

In New York, U.N. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim noted that many of those invited to Cairo don't plan to go. He proposed they all gather on "neutral ground" at the United Nations in a followup meeting a few weeks from now.

Officials said the State Department's choice for a U.S. representative to the Cairo talks is Hermann Eilts, the U.S. ambassador to Egypt since 1974.

State Dept. spokesman Hodding Carter III earlier had said that the U.S. representative would be "someone whose background and competence is heavily in the area and who has a good knowledge of the history."

SO FAR, ONLY Israel, the United States and Waldheim have announced

Firm recommends buy of golf course

A Chicago consulting firm has recommended the village purchase the 143-acre Bartlett Hills Golf Course.

Although details of the three-month study are being kept under wraps "until the trustees have a chance to digest it," the suggested purchase price is "less" than the $1.8 million recommended in an October 1976 report completed by the village's auditors, Village Administrator Earl Beckner said.

The partnership that owns the golf course on Oneida Avenue first tried to sell it in 1974, but the village board rejected a developer's plans to use the land for a high-density housing development.

THE VILLAGE took out a six-month option on the golf course last July, relying on an auditor's report that the village could spend $1.8 million for the golf course and operate it at a profit.

Now, the Developmental Research Corp. has issued a study that is "generally favorable and enthusiastic concerning financial feasibility," according to a press release from village hall.

The golf course purchase could be financed through general obligation bonds backed by property taxes or revenue bonds backed only by revenue from the golf course itself or by a combination of the two. Beckner said a special referendum, needed to approve general obligation bonds, probably will come in January.

Village Pres. Richard Belz said if the village board decides in favor of the purchase and if funds become available, the operation of the facility might be turned over to the park district, which already maintains the nine-hole Apple Orchard Golf Course and Country Club at 696 Stearns Rd. And the operation would be expected to pay for itself as well as for other improvements to the property, he said.

"I'VE ALWAYS SEEN it as a broad-based operation," he said. "It would have to be a facility to serve the whole community, or it wouldn't work."

In addition to the existing 18-hole golf course and restaurant, the property also contains "25 acres of virgin

Rent deposit often money kissed goodby

Nancy Gotler

Byline report

Before moving out of his Arlington Heights apartment last summer, Landon G. Brooks spent two days cleaning it to ensure that his $350 security deposit would be returned.

Four months later he still has not seen a penny of the money, even though the assistant manager of the complex says Brooks' apartment was left "spotless."

Brooks, who now lives at 464 Beech Dr., Wheeling, has joined the ranks of what area attorneys and property managers agree is a growing number of tenants who do not receive their full security deposit after moving.

THIRTEEN PER cent of all small claims court cases in Cook County in the past three years were filed by tenants trying to reclaim their deposits, an indication, one attorney says, that the system is riddled with fraud despite laws designed to protect renters.

"There is a lot of fraud perpetrated against tenants by landlords who, in an awful lot of instances, are acting deliberately," John Biestek, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., said.

"Nowhere near the majority of landlords are deliberately fraudulent, but when one landlord manages 300 apartment units he can bilk a lot of people out of their deposits over the years," he said.

Biestek said tenants who call him for help most often complain that huge amounts were deducted from the security deposit for minor or nonexistent damages or that no explanation is offered at all.

IN BROOKS' CASE, the attorney for the Stonebridge Apartments, 600 W. Rand Rd., where he lived, advised the managers to stop returning deposits to anyone whose lease was not fulfilled until an investigation of a former Stonebridge employe is completed.

The attorney, Richard J. Daley, could not elaborate.

But Brooks had a clause in his lease allowing him to move early if he gave the management at least 60 days notice. And he was never told, despite repeated phone calls, why his money had not been returned.

"I feel that I'm owed an explanation," he said. "It appears that they don't intend to give me my money back because they've had plenty of time to do it if they did."

Assistant Mgr. Eric Rubenstein said when the legal problem is resolved, Brooks' money "most assuredly" will be refunded. He said the lack of communication was an "oversight."

THE SECURITY deposit, usually equal to one month's rent, is paid by the tenant when a lease is signed as the owner's insurance against damage.

Landlords of complexes with at least 10 apartments legally are bound either to refund the full deposit or furnish receipts itemizing what repairs were made with the money within 30 days after a renter moves.

But there are no penalties when the law is ignored, Biestek said, and most attorneys will not represent a tenant trying to recover a deposit because they cannot assure the client he will break even.

"I get calls constantly from people

Homeowners get break on reappraisals: Hardin

Many homeowners in Hanover Township may be getting a small break on their 1977 real estate reassessments, Township Assessor Robert A. Hardin said Tuesday.

"From what we see now, it does not appear that the county came up to 16 per cent of fair market value on many homes," said Hardin, adding that he will have a better idea on the township reassessment when more notices are received later this week.

Dan Pierce, deputy Cook County assessor, said reassessment notices in Hanover Township were mailed as of Nov. 23. The county will not calculate the over-all assessment increase until after all assessment objections have been settled, Pierce said.

"SOME HOUSES will be up, others might show a slight decline," said Pierce.

The deadline for filing objections to the reassessment is Dec. 14, Hardin said.

"We are helping homeowners who have a valid complaint file their objections. But we need documentation (of the home's fair market value)," he said.

Hanover Park Township offices are open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday at 7431 Astor Ave., Hanover Park.

If many assessments are below 16 per cent of fair market value, the potential for objections will be cut back this year, Hardin said.

THE COOK COUNTY board this year voted to lower the assessment level to 16 per cent from 17 per cent after 1976 reassessments in north and Northwest townships contributed to skyrocketing tax bills in many cases.

"Even if the reassessment is down, it does not guarantee that a homeowner will pay less tax this year," Pierce said. "It depends on how much the local governments decide to spend."

Hardin said that homes built since 1973, about one-fifth of all the homes in Hanover Township, were assessed at the old rate of 22 per cent of market value.

"For many of these homes, the drop to 16 per cent may almost wipe out the inflation in market values," he said.

DESPITE SOPHISTICATED computer programs used in property assessment, the county assessor rarely hits every home at the precise percentage of its fair market value set by law.

The assessor traditionally assesses slightly below the legal maximum in order to avoid a flood of objections that would result from widespread overassessment.

"It appears for now that they have not achieved what they were trying to achieve, a 16 per cent assessment level," Hardin said.

A more complete and scientific study of Hanover Township assessments will be completed in about a month, he said.

woods which could be used by scouting groups and as a general recreation area," Belz said. "I see the Jaycees having a permanent place for their Spook House, a park for the Lion's Club, possibly a greenhouse for the Woman's Club, and that sort of thing," he said.

Parks Director Thomas C. White said the Apple Orchard Country Club operates at a profit of about $1,500 per year. The golf course itself makes about $15,000 per year, offsetting the losses from the Apple Orchard restaurant and pool, he said.

The feasibility study will be discussed at the Dec. 6 village board meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m. at Village Hall, 228 S. Main St.

'We're ready for growth,' Dist. 46 chief tells parents

Finances are tight. Program cutbacks are widespread. And rapid growth is straining Elgin Area Unit Dist. 46's resources.

But despite a sometimes gloomy picture, there are a lot of reasons for optimism in Dist. 46, Supt. Paul R. Lawrence told a room full of parents Tuesday night at Sunnydale School, 716 Sunnydale Blvd., Streamwood.

"I'm not really singing the blues," Lawrence said. "Eduucation belongs to the people. In the long term they have the educational program they want and are willing to support."

AND TO HELP acquaint the people at the Parent-Teacher Organization meeting wtih the educational program in Dist. 46, Lawrence covered topics ranging from recent cutbacks to growth to the new high school scheduled to open next fall in Streamwood.

To keep a balanced education fund budget in the face of rising costs, Dist. 46 has made $2.9 million in program cutbacks, with $1.3 million cut this year, and $1.6 million cut in 1975.

But in balancing the budget the district also paid a price, Lawrence said. Cutbacks affect the child who may have art class less often, is no longer in after-school sports or attend a school that isn't as clean as it used to be.

Dist. 46 continues to grow with twice as many housing permits issued in the first nine months of 1977 as in the same peridd in 1976, Lawrence said.

"If you want an eye-opener, take a drive some Sunday through the Bartlett and Hanover Park area and look at the homes going up," Lawrence said.

BUT HE ASSURED parents their schools will be able to absorb additional housing growth in the northern Streamwood area.

Answering one parent's question, Lawrence explained why a new high school, under construction on Schaumburg Road east of Ill. Rte. 59, was built for 1,500 students when enrollment is expected to exceed that by the second year.

"Where you run into trouble is the number of lockers and the library, gym and cafeteria. Those at the new high school can accommodate 2,500," Lawrence said. So the school will be able to handle the modest growth expected in Streamwood.

In setting high school boundaries, officials left room so Elgin High School can handle the Hanover Park and Bartlett growth, he said.

One reason for optimism in Dist. 46, Lawrence said, is that the district is delivering an above-average education for lower than the state average cost per student.

JETLINERS using O'Hare Airport could rattle fewer nerves, a new federal study shows. If a different take-off procedure were used, fewer people would have to put up with unbearable jet noise. The procedure that is now used creates the most noise of six procedures studied.

New takeoff cuts jet noise: study

by THOMAS LEE

Airlines can sharply reduce the noise created by jets departing O'Hare Airport, a new federal study shows.

The study indicates that if airlines adopted a takeoff procedure now in use at a Washington, D.C., airport, the areas exposed to highly objectionable noise would be cut by one-third.

The study shows the takeoff procedure now used by most major airlines is the loudest procedure among those tested. An industry group, the Air Transport Assn. of America, sanctions this procedure as simple, safe and not excessively noisy.

Antinoise lobbyists disagree and are hailing the new study as scientific evidence in their fight against jet noise. They say they will use the study to argue for a federal crackdown on airport noise.

THE STUDY was commissioned by the Federal Aviation Administration and performed by the Mitre Corp., a Virginia think-tank owned by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The FAA is researching proposed regulations that may require airlines to adopt certain procedures to abate noise.

Charles R. Foster, director of the FAA office of environmental quality, said the study will play 'some role" in rule formulation but won't be the only evidence to bear upon the rule.

The proposed rule-making is vitally important in Chicago's Northwest suburbs, where neighbors of O'Hare Airport have objected to airport noise since the mid-1960s. The objections have spawned a local chapter of the National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment, a group lobbying for noise abatement laws

Other groups have joined the fight, and their efforts have included the recent collection of more than 21,000 signatures in a letter-writing campaign to Washington.

Several individuals who work close to pending antinoise legislation and regulations said they had never heard of the study, and were surprised when told about it by The Daily Herald.

AN FAA SPOKESMAN said the agency made no attempt to hide the study, but no special attempt to publicize it, either. The study is dated March 1977.

The study compares and analyzes the noise created by six different takeoff procedures.

Among them are two "quiet thrust" procedures, one used at Washington National Airport in Washington and another used by Northwest Orient Airlines. The two are variations of the same basic idea, which involves flap retraction and thrust reduction shortly after takeoff. Because less thrust is used, less noise is made.

Some antinoise advocates refer to these procedures as "tiptoeing out of the airport."

The study also analyzes the procedure used by most airlines, called the

Korean spy plan disclosed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret South Korean intelligence plan unveiled Tuesday at a House hearing called for broad efforts to influence U.S. policy last year by infiltrating the White House, Congress, the Pentagon and the State Dept.

No immediate evidence was produced to show that the purported Korean CIA plan, with a projected cost of $750,000, was implemented on a broad scale to generate the internal spy network it envisioned to gain favorable policies for Korea.

The 24-page document outlining clandestine operations at the White House and elsewhere in government also proposed steps to win influence in the news media, academic circles, religious groups and other organizations. It referred to a separate plan for congressional campaign contributions but gave no details.

THE PLAN WAS released by an International Relations subcommittee investigating CIA activities in the United States. Chairman Donald Fraiser, D-Minn., said it amounted to "outright subversion."

The lead-off witness, Sohn Ho Young, the chief KCIA agent in New York until he defected two months ago, testified the document was drafted in 1975 for use the next year and was approved at agency headquarters in Seoul, but said he didn't know if the plan ever was executed

"My common sense tells me it was not really carried out," he said, partly as a result of newspaper reports about Korean CIA influence-peddling on Capital Hill that began to surface as the plan was being put together in Washington.

NEITHER SOHN nor four later witnesses named as "targets" in the plan provided significant evidence to show they were subverted. Subcommittee investigators said privately they still had no proof any government official was given money under the plan.

No other names in the original document were identified. Fraser said they were deleted to protect the privacy of those involved.

The thrust of the plan appeared to be aimed at "manipulation" of congressmen and key officials in the U.S. diplomatic-military establishment, with offers of free trips to Korea, campaign contributions, gifts and monthly payoffs to get them to cooperate.

Amounts of money were listed in many specific cases and it said contacts with dozens of lawmakers had

U.S. will go to talks in Cairo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States formally announced Tuesday it will attend the Middle East peace talks in Cairo but U.S. officials said the Soviet Union sent word it will shun the negotiations.

A State Dept. spokesman praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for injecting a "new, dynamic element in the negotiations" by calling the Cairo talks.

In Moscow, however, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said the Soviet Union cannot support Sadat's initiatives. A nation which "departs from the Common Arab front," Gromyko said, does not deserve approval.

STATE DEPT. officials said the Soviets informed Sec. of State Cyrus Vance that they wouldn't send a representative to Cairo.

In New York, U.N. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim noted that many of those invited to Cairo don't plan to go. He proposed they all gather on "neutral ground" at the United Nations in a followup meeting a few weeks from now

Officials said the State Department's choice for a U.S. representative to the Cairo talks is Hermann Eilts, the U.S. ambassador to Egypt since 1974.

State Dept. spokesman Hodding Carter III earlier had said that the U.S. representative would be "someone whose background and competence is heavily in the area and who has a good knowledge of the history."

Their new house ready—and vandalized

by THOMAS J. MOORE
and TOM VALEO

The windows and mirrors were broken, holes had been kicked in the walls and the bathroom fixtures were damaged.

But that did not stop Bob and Yvonne Greenburg from moving into their new home in the Strathmore Grove subdivision in Buffalo Grove Tuesday, three months after they were first promised the house.

The Greenburg's home is one of six damaged in a vandalism spree that began in Strathmore Grove Thanksgiving night when vandals set fire to the model home used as the office by Levitt and Sons Construction Co., causing at least $20,000 damage.

"WE'RE STAYING here tonight," Greenburg said while standing in the kitchen of the new home. "If for nothing else, for safety's sake."

Workmen tracked mud and snow in the front door on their way upstairs to repair the estimated $2,000 in damage while movers brought in furniture through the garage.

Mrs. Greenburg said the vandalism made her feel "different" about her new home, and a little afraid.

"At least I was spared seeing it," she said as she cleaned up around the kitchen. "With all the hassle of moving, I didn't need that little extra."

The Greenburgs sold their home in Wheeling long ago and had been paying rent to stay while the completion date on their new home was moved back again and again. They had promised to be out of their old home on Tuesday, so they had to move, regardless of the vandalism.

VANDALS ALSO damaged the house next to the Greenburgs'.

"It was just a few things, nothing horrendous," said Joel Aronson, who moved into the house Monday. "We're in and happy about being in."

Two windows were broken and the dishwasher was kicked and dented, Aronson said. Outside, the telephone line had been cut before it was buried. It cannot be fixed until spring Aronson said others in the neighborhood have had the same problem with their telephone cables.

The two houses were the only completed ones in the subdivision to be

Before moving out of his Arlington Heights apartment last summer, Landon G. Brooks spent two days cleaning it to ensure that his $350 security deposit would be returned.

Four months later he still has not seen a penny of the money, even though the assistant manager of the complex says Brooks' apartment was left "spotless."

Brooks, who now lives at 464 Beech Dr., Wheeling, has joined the ranks of what area attorneys and property managers agree is a growing number of tenants who do not receive their full security deposit after moving.

THIRTEEN PER cent of all small claims court cases in Cook County in the past three years were filed by tenants trying to reclaim their deposits, an indication, one attorney says, that the system is riddled with fraud despite laws designed to protect renters.

"There is a lot of fraud perpetrated against tenants by landlords who, in an awful lot of instances, are acting deliberately," John Biestek, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., said.

"Nowhere near the majority of landlords are deliberately fraudulent, but when one landlord manages 300 apartment units he can bilk a lot of people out of their deposits over the years," he said.

Biestek said tenants who call him for help most often complain that huge amounts were deducted from the security deposit for minor or nonexistent damages or that no explanation is offered at all.

IN BROOKS' CASE, the attorney for the Stonebridge Apartments, 600 W. Rand Rd., where he lived, advised the managers to stop returning deposits to anyone whose lease was not fulfilled until an investigation of a former Stonebridge employe is completed.

The attorney, Richard J. Daley, could not elaborate.

But Brooks had a clause in his lease allowing him to move early if he gave the management at least 60 days notice. And he was never told, despite repeated phone calls, why his money had not been returned.

"I feel that I'm owed an explanation," he said. "It appears that they don't intend to give me my money back because they've had plenty of time to do it if they did."

Assistant Mgr. Eric Rubenstein said when the legal problem is resolved, Brooks' money "most assuredly" will be refunded. He said the lack of communication was an "oversight."

THE SECURITY deposit, usually equal to one month's rent, is paid by the tenant when a lease is signed as the owner's insurance against damage.

Landlords of complexes with at least 10 apartments legally are bound either to refund the full deposit or furnish receipts itemizing what repairs were made with the money within 30 days after a renter moves.

But there are no penalties when the law is ignored, Biestek said, and most attorneys will not represent a tenant trying to recover a deposit because they cannot assure the client he will break even.

"I get calls constantly from people

Emergency water plan proposed

An emergency water use plan that could result in the rationing of water in Buffalo Grove has been presented to the village board.

Charles McCoy, village public works director, urged the board Monday to adopt the plan to qualify the village for its allocation of Lake Michigan water. No action was taken Monday but approval is expected next week.

In a written report, McCoy said the village already uses more water in a year than it will get from Lake Michigan. The present well system, which is being expanded, will continue to be used after the lake water comes to the village and policies have to be set now to deal with possible shortages in the future, he said.

TO PROVIDE FOR emergencies, McCoy recommended that the board adopt a list of water uses to be curtailed should water shortages occur.

The final step, under McCoy's recommendation, would be to limit water use to 50 gallons per person daily. Currently Buffalo Grove residents use abut 80 gallons each daily.

The priorities for conserving water in an emergency outlined by McCoy would begin by eliminating all outside use of water. Currently the village does not allow residents to water lawns or wash cars in the afternoon or evening. In an emergency, under McCoy's recommendations, all outside water use could be banned.

Depending on the severity of the emergency, further steps to cut water consumption are recommended.

AFTER BANNING outside use of water, commercial car washes would be closed as the next step. There is now only one car wash in the village.

The third and fourth priorities are to close commercial laundries and impose industrial use restrictions. There are no laundries or industrial water users in the village now.

The next two steps require that the village stop flushing sewers and water mains.

Beginning with the seventh step, McCoy said, the inconvenience to residents begins. The seventh step would be to reduce water pressure while the eighth would be to require installation of water-saving plumbing devices in existing homes and businesses. The village passed last week an ordinance that requires water-saving plumbing devices in all new construction.

Closing all public swimming pools would come next with the closing of restaurants to follow. McCoy said restaurants use great amounts of water in dish washing.

The final step would be to ration water to households, providing penalties for those who use more than allowed in a rationing program.

VANDALS KICKED in the walls, ransacked the office, damaged furniture and splashed duplicating machine ink in the model house at Strathmore Grove last week before setting two fires. Buffalo Grove police have intensified the investigation of the vandalism spree.

vandalized during the weekend, a spokesman for Levitt Construction said, and they would have been occupied if bad weather last winter and a shortage of building materials had not delayed completion.

In all, 10 homes in various stages of completion were damaged, the spokesman said, and no delays were expected because of the vandalism. However, the repair bill for the damage could run as high as $50,000, he said.

POLICE HAVE intensified their investigation of the vandalism since the fire in the model home Thanksgiving night. Two fires were started in the house, at the corner of Ill. Rte. 83 and Busch Road, but one fire apparently went out before it did any damage, Long Grove fire officials said.

The vandals also ransacked the office files, overturned furniture and splashed indelible ink used for the duplicating machine on the walls, police said.

Gary Deters of the Buffalo Grove Crime Prevention Unit said vandalism at construction sites in the village has occurred in the past. Last summer, after burglars removed the rug from an unoccupied house, members of the unit showed the contractors how to secure their buildings.

Farella faces arraignment Thursday on stolen loot rap

Gerald Farella, a Lake County Board member from North Chicago, is scheduled to be arraigned Thursday in Lake County Circuit Court on six counts of possession of stolen property.

Farella was arrested Aug. 10 by Waukegan police who were following up a tip received during an investigation resulting in another arrest, officers say.

Waukegan Police Chief George Pasenelli said Waukegan police officers went to Farella's auto towing firm in North Chicago and found a typewriter and a chain saw stolen in Waukegan.

According to testimony by Waukegan police officers in a preliminary hearing, a man accused of stealing the items, Oscar Cooper of Waukegan, said he sold them to a man named "Jerry" at the auto towing firm.

Farella was elected to the county board as a Democrat last year and is vice chairman of the county's law and judicial committee.

'Bad Seed' at Wheeling High

Maxwell Anderson's "Bad Seed" is the winter production to be presented by Wheeling High School's theater department at 8 p.m. today, Thursday and Sunday in the school's Little Theater, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., Wheeling.

The "Bad Seed" centers around a murderer operating behind the innocence of youth.

The play features an abstract set consisting of a series of platforms at center stage. Director Jack Morgan said the drama is the most abstract production in Wheeling's history.

Tickets are $1.25 in advance and $1.50 at the door. For ticket information, call 537-6300.

Public hearing set on subdivision plan

The Buffalo Grove Plan Commission will sponsor a public hearing on a proposed duplex subdivision between Weiland Road and Ill. Rte. 83 along a proposed extension of Pauline Avenue at 8 p.m. today in village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

The duplex development is planned by the Lexington Development Corp. of Arlington Heights. The firm plans 110 units on 55 lots.

The 22-acre property is near the proposed village center and is slated for high-density housing in the village master plan.

Mail delivery slowed by employe woes

by PAUL GORES

If Schaumburg residents receive their mail a day or two late during this Christmas season, they can blame it on an understaffed postal service, says the president of the local letter carriers union.

But post office officials say blame it on carriers who call in sick.

When several smaller routes were consolidated into larger routes about four months ago, some of the Schaumburg office's 39 full-time mail carriers picked up additional stops that they say are too time-consuming.

AS A RESULT, says Ron Calderone, president of Branch 825 of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, "bulk mail can be tied up for a couple of days.

"Anytime you walk into Schaumburg for something, you'll find mail on the floor," Calderone said. "There's no two ways about it, they are understaffed. They could use another seven people."

Frank Sustr, manager of customer services for the new post office at 1441 W. Schaumburg Rd., denied that mail is being delayed and gave an impromptu tour of the post office Tuesday to a Daily Herald reporter to illustrate his point.

"He (Calderone) can make a statement like that but here we are," said Sustr as he pointed out the empty mail shelves and floors.

HE ADMITTED THAT mail other than first class may be delayed when a substitute is doing a route on a carrier's day off or when the carrier calls in sick.

"Our greatest problem right now is sick calls," Sustr said. "If we had the people in here like we're supposed to we wouldn't have much of a problem. When these other people don't show it slows things down. No sub will be as good as the man whose route he's covering."

Calderone said he expects more problems because of a recent order to the Schaumburg post office administration to reduce the amount of overtime its carriers are working.

But Sustr vowed that overtime would not be cut enough to delay or hamper the delivery of mail.

"It's like any business," Sustr said.

Before moving out of his Arlington Heights apartment last summer, Landon G. Brooks spent two days cleaning it to ensure that his $350 security deposit would be returned.

Four months later he still has not seen a penny of the money, even though the assistant manager of the complex says Brooks' apartment was left "spotless."

Brooks, who now lives at 464 Beech Dr., Wheeling, has joined the ranks of what area attorneys and property managers agree is a growing number of tenants who do not receive their full security deposit after moving.

THIRTEEN PER cent of all small claims court cases in Cook County in the past three years were filed by tenants trying to reclaim their deposits, an indication, one attorney says, that the system is riddled with fraud despite laws designed to protect renters.

"There is a lot of fraud perpetrated against tenants by landlords who, in an awful lot of instances, are acting deliberately," John Biestek, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., said.

"Nowhere near the majority of landlords are deliberately fraudulent, but when one landlord manages 300 apartment units he can bilk a lot of people out of their deposits over the years," he said.

Biestek said tenants who call him for help most often complain that huge amounts were deducted from the security deposit for minor or nonexistent damages or that no explanation is offered at all.

IN BROOKS' CASE, the attorney for the Stonebridge Apartments, 600 W. Rand Rd., where he lived, advised the managers to stop returning deposits to anyone whose lease was not fulfilled until an investigation of a former Stonebridge employe is completed.

The attorney, Richard J. Daley, could not elaborate.

But Brooks had a clause in his lease allowing him to move early if he gave the management at least 60 days notice. And he was never told, despite repeated phone calls, why his money had not been returned.

"I feel that I'm owed an explanation," he said. "It appears that they don't intend to give me my money back because they've had plenty of time to do it if they did."

Assistant Mgr. Eric Rubenstein said when the legal problem is resolved, Brooks' money "most assuredly" will be refunded. He said the lack of communication was an "oversight."

THE SECURITY deposit, usually equal to one month's rent, is paid by the tenant when a lease is signed as the owner's insurance against damage.

Landlords of complexes with at least 10 apartments legally are bound either to refund the full deposit or furnish receipts itemizing what repairs were made with the money within 30 days after a renter moves.

But there are no penalties when the law is ignored, Biestek said, and most attorneys will not represent a tenant trying to recover a deposit because they cannot assure the client he will break even.

Parks complete planning for Feb. 7 referendum

The Hoffman Estates Park District has nearly completed plans for its Feb. 7 referendum and expects to ask for almost $1.5 million in bonds for park improvements and increases of 15 to 20 per cent in its operating and recreation tax rates.

If approved, the referendum would mean an increase of 31 per cent in the over-all tax rate, from 32 to 42 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

This would mean the owner of a home assessed at $10,000 who now pays $32 a year would pay $42 a year in park district taxes.

PARK COMR. Charles Loveisky, chairman of the referendum committee, said the panel will decide on the final list of park improvements to be financed by the bond issue at its meeting tonight.

Seven cents of the 10 cent increase would go towards the $1.5 million bonds to pay for landscaping and equipment in parks, Loveisky said.

The bond issue also will provide $55,000 for the park district to buy the swimming pool, poolhouse, three tennis courts and basketball court at the Tropicana Swim and Tennis Club, 109 Audubon St., Hoffman Estates.

The club's officers had asked for $30,000 for the pool and courts.

ALTHOUGH SOME members wanted to maintain the Tropicana as a private club, and others felt the $55,000 offered was too low, a 2-1 majority agreed to sell, said club treasurer Russell Petersen. About 70 of the club's 120 family members voted in the election.

If park district voters do not approve the referendum the Tropicana will remain a private club, and Petersen said a committee is working on next year's budget "just in case."

In addition to the bond issue, park officials are proposing a 1½-cent increase in the administration and maintenance tax rate and another 1½-cent increase in the recreation tax rate. Based on the district's current assessed valuation, the new taxes would generate about $19,000 annually for each fund.

"I would have liked to kept it lower," Loveisky said, "but we're down to the bare bones."

HIS COMMITTEE has been working on the package for two months, and Loveisky is optimistic that the park board will approve its recommendations at its meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Vogelei office.

"Then it's a matter of getting out and selling the package," he said. "The major part of the work is still to be done."

Loveisky said recent tax protests and failures of school, park district and library referendums in the area have "got me on my guard.

"In order to be successful, we're going to have to get a lot of people involved," he said. "I haven't found the magic formula yet, but we're working on it."

Senior housing goals may change

A reexamination of its goals for senior citizen housing is being considered by the Hoffman Estates Housing Commission.

Housing for the elderly had been a priority item with the housing panel earlier this year, but now the panel is considering a change in its goals.

In housing goals set last March, the commission recommended that 120 new units be built in the next three years to meet the housing needs of elderly persons in the village.

Based on 1970 census information and need estimates for the North Shore Interfaith Housing Counsel, the commission said that 31 per cent of persons living or working in the village who were eligible for housing assistance funds were at least 65 years old

But a telephone survey taken in the village last summer showed only 4.7 per cent of the households eligible for housing assistance, based on income and housing costs, were households of persons 57 years old or older.

IN THE TELEPHONE survey, 622 families were polled. Of these, 64 households, or 10 per cent, met federal guidelines for housing assistance funds. Three households, or 4.7 per cent of those eligible for aid, were elderly persons.

"These figures, if accurate, belie what we've done," said William Weaver Tuesday night. "The majority of those needing assistance is something other than elderly households."

Peggy Elgin, acting chairwoman of the commission, said members should consider changing the village's housing goals in their January report to the village board, in order to have "more reliance placed on our own survey.

"We're hoping that the survey is a cross-section of our village at this time."

The commission had thought that 120 apartment units could be built at one site for elderly residents, Mrs. Elgin said. She suggested that the commission might reduce the number of units needed for the elderly and use existing housing or apartments throughout the village to house the elderly.

"We felt that a new building for the elderly would be better than scattered-site housing," she said.

Of the 622 households surveyed, 48 per cent said they would apply for federal housing aid if it were available and they were eligible.

Also, of those who said they were unhappy with housing in the village, the biggest complaint was that housing was too expensive.

Mail delivery slowed by employe problems

"You want to save money by cutting overtime."

SUSTR SAID THAT "some (carriers) don't like overtime" and have complained to the union when they are forced to work

"Sometimes you run into the situation where you run out of bodies. Then you have to make them work," he said

Sustr said the post office has the option of hiring additional help for the Christmas season and that they "probably would do that if the situation warrants it"

Calderone said that the management of the local post office has created a "morale problem" among letter carriers

"We have 100 per cent membership in the union and it's not mandatory," he said of the area that includes Schaumburg, Roselle and Hoffman Estates. "When you have an area growing the way this one is, you don't reduce your force, you increase it."

CALDERONE SAID he doubted whether the Schaumburg postal service would get through the Christmas season without some serious delays.

"There'll be a problem for the carriers to get it (mail) out," he said. "There's no two ways about that."

He said the snow makes it impossible for sarriers to cut across lawns, something the administration asked them to do last spring as an attempt to save delivery time.

"It's a hell of a mess," Calderone said. "This is why we have the problem there. They've got more work and less time to do it. We get tired of having it happen all at once."

JETLINERS using O'Hare Airport could rattle fewer nerves, a new federal study shows. If a different take-off procedure were used, fewer people would have to put up with unbearable jet noise. The procedure that is now used creates the most noise of six procedures studied.

New takeoff cuts jet noise: study

by THOMAS LEE

Airlines can sharply reduce the noise created by jets departing O'Hare Airport, a new federal study shows.

The study indicates that if airlines adopted a takeoff procedure now in use at a Washington, D.C., airport, the areas exposed to highly objectionable noise would be cut by one-third.

The study shows the takeoff procedure now used by most major airlines is the loudest procedure among those tested. An industry group, the Air Transport Assn. of America, sanctions this procedure as simple, safe and not excessively noisy.

Antinoise lobbyists disagree and are hailing the new study as scientific evidence in their fight against jet nose. They say they will use the study to argue for a federal crackdown on airport noise.

THE STUDY was commissioned by the Federal Aviation Administration and performed by the Mitre Corp., a Virginia think-tank owned by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The FAA is researching proposed regulations that may require airlines to adopt certain procedures to abate noise.

Charles R. Foster, director of the FAA office of environmental quality, said the study will play "some role" in rule formulation but won't be the only evidence to bear upon the rule.

The proposed rule-making is vitally important in Chicago's Northwest suburbs, where neighbors of O'Hare Airport have objected to airport noise since the mid-1960s. The objections have spawned a local chapter of the National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment, a group lobbying for noise abatement laws.

Other groups have joined the fight, and their efforts have included the recent collection of more than 21,000 signatures in a letter-writing campaign to Washington.

Several individuals who work close to pending antinoise legislation and regulations said they had never heard of the study, and were surprised when told about it by The Daily Herald.

AN FAA SPOKESMAN said the agency made no attempt to hide the study, but no special attempt to publicize it, either. The study is dated March 1977.

The study compares and analyzes the noise created by six different takeoff procedures.

Among them are two "quiet thrust" procedures, one used at Washington National Airport in Washington and another used by Northwest Orient Airlines. The two are variations of the same basic idea, which involves flap retraction and thrust reduction shortly after takeoff. Because less thrust is used, less noise is made.

Some antinoise advocates refer to these procedures as "tiptoeing out of the airport."

The study also analyzes the procedure used by most airlines, called the

Korean spy plan disclosed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret South Korean intelligence plan unveiled Tuesday at a House hearing called for broad efforts to influence U.S. policy last year by infiltrating the White House, Congress, the Pentagon and the State Dept.

No immediate evidence was produced to show that the purported Korean CIA plan, with a projected cost of $750,000, was implemented on a broad scale to generate the internal spy network it envisioned to gain favorable policies for Korea.

The 24-page document outlining clandestine operations at the White House and elsewhere in government also proposed steps to win influence in the news media, academic circles, religious groups and other organizations. It referred to a separate plan for congressional campaign contributions but gave no details.

THE PLAN WAS released by an International Relations subcommittee investigating CIA activities in the United States. Chairman Donald Fraiser, D-Minn., said it amounted to "outright subversion."

The lead-off witness, Sohn Ho Young, the chief KCIA agent in New York until he defected two months ago, testified the document was drafted in 1975 for use the next year and was approved at agency headquarters in Seoul, but said he didn't know if the plan ever was executed.

"My common sense tells me it was not really carried out," he said, partly as a result of newspaper reports about Korean CIA influence-peddling on Capital Hill that began to surface as the plan was being put together in Washington.

NEITHER SOHN nor four later witnesses named as "targets" in the plan provided significant evidence to show they were subverted. Subcommittee investigators said privately they still had no proof any government official was given money under the plan.

No other names in the original document were identified. Fraser said they were deleted to protect the privacy of those involved.

The thrust of the plan appeared to be aimed at "manipulation" of congressmen and key officials in the U.S. diplomatic-military establishment, with offers of free trips to Korea, campaign contributions, gifts and monthly payoffs to get them to cooperate.

Amounts of money were listed in many specific cases and it said contacts with dozens of lawmakers had

U.S. will go to talks in Cairo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States formally announced Tuesday it will attend the Middle East peace talks in Cairo but U.S. officials said the Soviet Union sent word it will shun the negotiations.

A State Dept. spokesman praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for injecting a "new, dynamic element in the negotiations" by calling the Cairo talks.

In Moscow, however, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said the Soviet Union cannot support Sadat's initiatives. A nation which "departs from the Common Arab front," Gromyko said, does not deserve approval.

STATE DEPT. officials said the Soviets informed Sec. of State Cyrus Vance that they wouldn't send a representative to Cairo.

In New York, U.N. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim noted that many of those invited to Cairo don't plan to go. He proposed they all gather on "neutral ground" at the United Nations in a followup meeting a few weeks from now.

Officials said the State Department's choice for a U.S. representative to the Cairo talks is Hermann Eilts, the U.S. ambassador to Egypt since 1974.

State Dept. spokesman Hodding Carter III earlier had said that the U.S. representative would be "someone whose background and competence is heavily in the area and who has a good knowledge of the history."

Dist. 207 may require basic skills test

High School Dist. 207 may join a nationwide movement to require students to prove their mastery of basic skills before graduating from high school.

The possibility of insisting students pass a test to demonstrate their proficiency in basic tasks was discussed Tuesday night by a committee of teachers studying graduation requirements in Dist. 207.

The 13-member panel, expected to turn in final recommendations by January, gave an interim report to the school board's education committee.

KENNETH REESE, chairman of the graduation requirements committee, said the group probably will suggest that the district administer a competency exam on a trial basis in math and English as a condition for graduation.

About 26 states now require high school students to pass a proficiency exam before giving them a diploma. Legislation also has been introduced on the federal and state levels to begin similar programs.

Illinois does not require minimal competency tests, but they have been adopted by several districts, including High School Districts 211 and 125. Several bills to require the tests are pending in the legislature.

Reese said one of the benefits of a competency test is "it certifies to the community that graduates have baseline skills." It also motivates students, he said.

PROBLEMS WITH using the test, he said, include creating a situation in which teachers gear their instruction around the test and the need for costly remedial help for students who perform poorly on the test.

Besides competency tests, the committee also is considering other curriculum revisions.

They include:

- Changing consumer education from a 10-week to a semester course and offering one-half unit of credit. Students now receive no credit for the required consumer education course.
- Requiring students to carry a minimum of four full-credit courses each semester through the eighth se-

Police wait for Affairs departure

by PAT DOYLE

An alleged house of prostitution is operating with impunity in Elk Grove Township while businessmen and Cook County Sheriff's police wait for it to close.

The police haven't interfered with Affairs, advertised as a men's club at 2407 E. Oakton St., since it agreed five weeks ago to leave Dec. 10. And they have so plans to act before that date

Undercover county sheriff's police don't want to raid the place and reveal their identities because they may be needed in the future to infiltrate similar operations run by the same people, said Sgt. Clark Buckendahl of the county's vice control division.

BUCKENDAHL has good reason to believe they may be needed again. The people who run Affairs once operated the Fantasy Travel Club in Leyden Township, he said, adding they will offer prostitution as long as possible in one location before moving somewhere else.

"They open in another location and then we start all over again," Buckendahl said. "One of the reasons I'm not going back in there is that I don't want another officer identified by those people."

Sheriff's police arrested Brenda Smith, 26 of Chicago, and Jack Michaels, 34, of Schiller Park, during a raid of Affairs Sept. 23. Smith was charged with prostitution and Michaels with keeping a house of prostitution. They are to appear in circuit court Dec. 19.

But the arrests didn't stop Affairs, which reopened the next day.

A suit by the owners of the Oakton Street building to evict the club was more successful. George Demir, of Chicago, the reported proprietor of Affairs, agreed to pay owners Jack Skaathan and Robert Nogan $1,600 and get out of the building by Dec. 10 in return for dropping the suit.

"TO BE PERFECTLY honest, they are going to be out whether we make any arrests or not," Buckendahl said. "We know they are going to be out of there. Our problem is settled."

But Buckendahl said he doesn't expect Affairs to move by the Dec. 10 deadline. Fantasy Travel Club stalled past its eviction date in order to get as much business as possible, he said.

"If they have not left we will go back into court and get an order to throw them out of the building," he said. That would happen within a few days of the Dec. 10 deadline, Buckendahl said.

Skaathan said he and his attorney have discussed the possibility that the club won't leave by Dec. 10. However, he is confident it will be gone soon.

"THAT'S SOMETHING I'll have to face when the times comes,' Skaathan said.

Stalling past the Dec. 10 deadline wouldn't surprise Lawrence Fretzin, Skaathan's attorney, who said more than a month ago that delay was the name of the game for the club.

"The longer they delay, the more money they make," he said.

Wisdom in Dist. 26, 57 link hazy

For River Trails Dist. 26, the question of whether to merge with neighboring Mount Prospect Dist. 57 seems to demand the services of a crystal ball.

Preliminary results of a study of the financial implications of consolidation in River Trails Dist. 26 and Mount Prospect Dist. 57 show severe declining enrollment, financial crunches and program cuts are inevitable for both districts by 1980-81. These issues again were discussed Tuesday night by Dist. 26's planning committee.

Financial projections show a combined district would produce additional revenues and savings of about $236,000 through the elimination of duplicate programs and staff and an equalization of tax rates, Supt. John Fridlund said. By state law, school districts that merge take on the tax rate of the higher district.

HOWEVER, THE merger would mean several administrative staff members who now serve five schools would have to stretch their talents to cover 10 schools. The alternative would be to hire additional staff members to expand each district's programs, he said.

Dist. 26 and Dist. 57 have been looking into consolidation as a possible solution to projected financial problems. The districts have similar educational programs, and each has five schools in Mount Prospect.

Enrollment projections show the two districts together will have only about 3,000 students by 1982-83; Dist. 26 now has about 2,060 and Dist. 57 has about 2,300.

By 1980-81, Dist. 57 expects to have used up its current $2 million surplus while Dist. 26 will show a $225,000 deficit, Fridlund said.

"SINCE WE ARE not in a crunch yet, it raises a question: When do we make changes?" said board of education member Sylvia Lurie, who chairs the planning committee. "Do we wait for the point of no return, or plan ahead of time?"

The planning committee directed Fridlund to look at the financial implications of a combined district if the program of each one were exended to the other district. These include Dist. 57's Spanish program and Dist. 26's gifted program.

Committee members also suggested that Fridlund study additional ways of sharing personnel and resources. They share the cost of the learning center director and both use the hot lunch program based in Dist. 26.

New house ready—and vandalized

by THOMAS J. MOORE
and TOM VALEO

The windows and mirrors were broken, holes had been kicked in the walls and the bathroom fixtures were damaged.

But that did not stop Bob and Yvonne Greenburg from moving into their new home in the Strathmore Grove subdivision in Buffalo Grove Tuesday, three months after they were first promised the house.

The Greenburg's home is one of six damaged in a vandalism spree that began in Strathmore Grove Thanksgiving night when vandals set fire to the model home used as the office by Levitt and Sons Construction Co., causing at least $20,000 damage.

"WE'RE STAYING here tonight," Greenburg said while standing in the kitchen of the new home. "If for nothing else, for safety's sake."

Workmen tracked mud and snow in the front door on their way upstairs to repair the estimated $2,000 in damage while movers brought in furniture through the garage.

Mrs. Greenburg said the vandalism made her feel "different" about her new home, and a little afraid.

"At least I was spared seeing it," she said as she cleaned up around the kitchen. "With all the hassle of moving, I didn't need that little extra."

The Greenburgs sold their home in Wheeling long ago and had been paying rent to stay while the completion date on their new home was moved back again and again. They had promised to be out of their old home on Tuesday, so they had to move, regardless of the vandalism.

VANDALS ALSO damaged the house next to the Greenburgs'.

"It was just a few things, nothing horrendous," said Joel Aronson, who moved into the house Monday. "We're in and happy about being in."

Two windows were broken and the dishwasher was kicked and dented, Aronson said. Outside, the telephone line had been cut before it was buried. It cannot be fixed until spring. Aronson said others in the neighborhood have had the same problem with their telephone cables.

The two houses were the only completed ones in the subdivision to be vandalized during the weekend, a spokesman for Levitt Construction said, and they would have been occupied if bad weather last winter and a shortage of building materials had not delayed completion.

In all, 10 homes in various stages of completion were damaged, the spokesman said, and no delays were expected because of the vandalism. However, the repair bill for the damage could run as high as $50,000, he said.

POLICE HAVE intensified their investigation of the vandalism since the fire in the model home Thanksgiving night. Two fires were started in the house, at the corner of Ill. Rte. 83 and Busch Road, but one fire apparently went out before it did any damage, Long Grove fire officials said.

The vandals also ransacked the office files, overturned furniture and splashed indelible ink used for the duplicating machine on the walls, police said.

Gary Deters of the Buffalo Grove Crime Prevention Unit said vandalism at construction sites in the village has occurred in the past. Last summer, after burglars removed the rug from an unoccupied house, members of the unit showed the contractors how to secure their buildings.

Vow to have open hospital forum

Wheeling officials say that all interested groups will be allowed to speak on a proposed Wheeling-Buffalo Grove hospital despite one resident's concerns that a Dec. 14 public information meeting on the hospital will be one-sided.

Sheila Schultz, a spokeswoman for the Citizens Lobby for Responsible Government, Monday told trustees she is concerned that the public will have little opportunity to speak at the meeting. She said the attorney for Franklin Boulevard Hospital, Chicago, developer of the proposed hospital, has said residents would be allowed to speak only during a short question-and-answer period.

Franklin Boulevard is planning a 238-bed hospital for a 20-acre site on Schoenbeck Road, just north of Hintz Road in unincorporated Wheeling Township. Hospital officials have said they will seek annexation although no application has been made to Wheeling officials.

"INFORMATION ABOUT the hospital never has been made available to the citizens. That's what people are concerned about," she said.

Trustee John Cole said if Franklin Boulevard makes a presentation without allowing residents to speak, "then they're wasting the people's time."

"If we let the hospital use the village hall for a public forum, then it should be a public forum," he said.

Trustees said they are prepared to stay and meet with residents even if the hospital officials adjourn the meeting early.

"I will be here as a citizen. If the people have questions, I think it behooves us all to stay here," Trustee Dolores Dahm said.

The trustees emphasized the village has no connection with the meeting other than providing a meeting place. They said all arrangements for the session were made through Village Pres. William Hein.

Tax protesters delay meeting

A second meeting of Homeowners United, a tax protest group in Des Plaines, scheduled for tonight at the fieldhouse in Rand Park, 2000 block of Dempster Street, has been postponed.

The group was formed in October to protest what some Maine Township property owners feared would be a high reassessment period. The reassessment in Maine Township is complete and turned out generally much lower than some persons feared.

Joseph Botte, 560 Webford Ave., Des Plaines, said a meeting would be scheduled for January. He said today's meeting is being postponed because the group is making progress in work with the office of Gov. James R. Thompson on possible tax-rollback legislation.

JETLINERS using O'Hare Airport could rattle fewer nerves, a new federal study shows. If a different take-off procedure were used, fewer people would have to put up with unbearable jet noise. The procedure that is now used creates the most noise of six procedures studied.

New takeoff cuts jet noise: study

by THOMAS LEE

Airlines can sharply reduce the noise created by jets departing O'Hare Airport, a new federal study shows.

The study indicates that if airlines adopted a takeoff procedure now in use at a Washington, D.C., airport, the areas exposed to highly objectionable noise would be cut by one-third.

The study shows the takeoff procedure now used by most major airlines is the loudest procedure among those tested. An industry group, the Air Transport Assn. of America, sanctions this procedure as simple, safe and not excessively noisy.

Antinoise lobbyists disagree and are hailing the new study as scientific evidence in their fight against jet noise. They say they will use the study to argue for a federal crackdown on airport noise.

THE STUDY was commissioned by the Federal Aviation Administration and performed by the Mitre Corp., a Virginia think-tank owned by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The FAA is researching proposed regulations that may require airlines to adopt certain procedures to abate noise.

Charles R Foster, director of the FAA office of environmental quality, said the study will play "some role" in rule formulation but won't be the only evidence to bear upon the rule.

The proposed rule-making is vitally important in Chicago's Northwest suburbs, where neighbors of O'Hare Airport have objected to airport noise since the mid-1960s. The objections have spawned a local chapter of the National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment, a group lobbying for noise abatement laws.

Other groups have joined the fight, and their efforts have included the recent collection of more than 21,000 signatures in a letter-writing campaign to Washington.

Several individuals who work close to pending antinoise legislation and regulations said they had never heard of the study, and were surprised when told about it by The Daily Herald.

AN FAA SPOKESMAN said the agency made no attempt to hide the study, but no special attempt to publicize it, either. The study is dated March 1977.

The study compares and analyzes the noise created by six different takeoff procedures.

Among them are two "quiet thrust" procedures, one used at Washington National Airport in Washington and another used by Northwest Orient Airlines. The two are variations of the same basic idea, which involves flap retraction and thrust reduction shortly after takeoff. Because less thrust is used, less noise is made.

Some antinoise advocates refer to these procedures as "tiptoeing out of the airport."

The study also analyzes the procedure used by most airlines, called the

Korean spy plan disclosed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret South Korean intelligence plan unveiled Tuesday at a House hearing called for broad efforts to influence U.S. policy last year by infiltrating the White House, Congress, the Pentagon and the State Dept.

No immediate evidence was produced to show that the purported Korean CIA plan, with a projected cost of $750,000, was implemented on a broad scale to generate the internal spy network it envisioned to gain favorable policies for Korea.

The 24-page document outlining clandestine operations at the White House and elsewhere in government also proposed steps to win influence in the news media, academic circles, religious groups and other organizations. It referred to a separate plan for congressional campaign contributions but gave no details.

THE PLAN WAS released by an International Relations subcommittee investigating CIA activities in the United States. Chairman Donald Fraiser, D-Minn., said it amounted to "outright subversion."

The lead-off witness, Sohn Ho Young, the chief KCIA agent in New York until he defected two months ago, testified the document was drafted in 1975 for use the next year and was approved at agency headquarters in Seoul, but said he didn't know if the plan ever was executed.

"My common sense tells me it was not really carried out," he said, partly as a result of newspaper reports about Korean CIA influence-peddling on Capital Hill that began to surface as the plan was being put together in Washington

NEITHER SOHN nor four later witnesses named as "targets" in the plan provided significant evidence to show they were subverted. Subcommittee investigators said privately they still had no proof any government official was given money under the plan.

No other names in the original document were identified. Fraser said they were deleted to protect the privacy of those involved.

The thrust of the plan appeared to be aimed at "manipulation" of congressmen and key officials in the U.S. diplomatic-military establishment, with offers of free trips to Korea, campaign contributions, gifts and monthly payoffs to get them to cooperate.

Amounts of money were listed in many specific cases and it said contacts with dozens of lawmakers had

U.S. will go to talks in Cairo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States formally announced Tuesday it will attend the Middle East peace talks in Cairo but U.S. officials said the Soviet Union sent word it will shun the negotiations.

A State Dept. spokesman praised Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for injecting a "new, dynamic element in the negotiations" by calling the Cairo talks.

In Moscow, however, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said the Soviet Union cannot support Sadat's initiatives. A nation which "departs from the Common Arab front," Gromyko said, does not deserve approval.

STATE DEPT. officials said the Soviets informed Sec. of State Cyrus Vance that they wouldn't send a representative to Cairo.

In New York, U.N. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim noted that many of those invited to Cairo don't plan to go. He proposed they all gather on "neutral ground" at the United Nations in a followup meeting a few weeks from now.

Officials said the State Department's choice for a U.S. representative to the Cairo talks is Hermann Eilts, the U.S. ambassador to Egypt since 1974.

State Dept. spokesman Hodding Carter III earlier had said that the U.S. representative would be "someone whose background and competence is heavily in the area and who has a good knowledge of the history."

Condominium density endangers annex

Concern by Wheeling officials that the village already has too many condominium developments has endangered chances for the annexation of a 45-acre site at the northeast corner of Hintz and Schoenbeck roads.

Meister-Neiberg Co. of Wheeling has petitioned the village for annexation of the site, which is planned for development as single-family homes and condominiums. The plan commission this month denied zoning for the multi-family area.

Trustee Hugh Sommerfeld, chairman of the community development which met Tuesday night said the village must come to grips with what we want to become.

"What has happened in the past few years with the building of multi family developments is not totally in the best interest of the community," he said. "If there is a decision that there should be no more multi family, so be it. That's the way the community should go."

JEROME MEISTER, secretary of Meister-Neiberg Co., said his company had reduced the number of condominium units in the proposed development from 144 to 96. He said the number of single-family homes was increased from the original 102 to 117.

Meister said the condominiums are needed as a buffer between the single-family homes and the Wheeling High School bleachers and athletic field which abut the property.

"We don't feel single-family homes belong up against an athletic field, he said.

Meister also said that developing the site with all single-family homes would not be economically feasible

"Our idea is to provide good housing at a price people can afford," he said.

MEISTER SAID the condominiums will be built in four and eight unit clusters which resemble single-family homes. He said the condominiums will sell for between $47,000 and $52,000 while homes will range in price from $72,000 to $90 000.

Ted McMullen, village planner, said the condominiums are not needed as a buffer.

"I don't agree about the school being a deterrent. I haven't been con-

Rent deposit often money kissed goodby

Byline report

Before moving out of his Arlington Heights apartment last summer, Landon G. Brooks spent two days cleaning it to ensure that his $350 security deposit would be returned.

Four months later he still has not seen a penny of the money, even though the assistant manager of the complex says Brooks' apartment was left "spotless."

Brooks, who now lives at 464 Beech Dr., Wheeling, has joined the ranks of what area attorneys and property managers agree is a growing number of tenants who do not receive their full security deposit after moving.

THIRTEEN PER cent of all small claims court cases in Cook County in the past three years were filed by tenants trying to reclaim their deposits, an indication, one attorney says, that the system is riddled with fraud despite laws designed to protect renters.

"There is a lot of fraud perpetrated against tenants by landlords who, in an awful lot of instances, are acting deliberately," John Biestek, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., said.

"Nowhere near the majority of landlords are deliberately fraudulent, but when one landlord manages 300 apartment units he can bilk a lot of people out of their deposits over the years," he said.

Biestek said tenants who call him for help most often complain that huge amounts were deducted from the security deposit for minor or nonexistent damages or that no explanation is offered at all.

IN BROOKS' CASE, the attorney for the Stonebridge Apartments, 600 W. Rand Rd., where he lived, advised the managers to stop returning deposits to anyone whose lease was not fulfilled until an investigation of a former Stonebridge employe is completed.

The attorney, Richard J. Daley, could not elaborate.

But Brooks had a clause in his lease allowing him to move early if he gave the management at least 60 days notice. And he was never told, despite repeated phone calls, why his money had not been returned.

"I feel that I'm owed an explanation," he said. "It appears that they don't intend to give me my money back because they've had plenty of time to do it if they did."

Assistant Mgr. Eric Rubenstein said when the legal problem is resolved, Brooks' money "most assuredly" will be refunded. He said the lack of communication was an "oversight."

THE SECURITY deposit, usually equal to one month's rent, is paid by the tenant when a lease is signed as the owner's insurance against damage

Landlords of complexes with at least 10 apartments legally are bound either to refund the full deposit or furnish receipts itemizing what repairs were made with the money within 30 days after a renter moves.

But there are no penalties when the law is ignored, Biestek said, and most attorneys will not represent a tenant trying to recover a deposit because they cannot assure the client he will break even.

"I get calls constantly from people

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN attorneys and property owners warn renters to insist that landlords furnish a list of deductions that will be made from the security deposit for specific damages.

Vow to have open hospital forum

Wheeling officials say that all interested groups will be allowed to speak on a proposed Wheeling-Buffalo Grove hospital despite one resident's concerns that a Dec. 14 public information meeting on the hospital will be one-sided.

Sheila Schultz, a spokeswoman for the Citizens Lobby for Responsible Government, Monday told trustees she is concerned that the public will have little opportunity to speak at the meeting. She said the attorney for Franklin Boulevard Hospital, Chicago, developer of the proposed hospital, has said residents would be allowed to speak only during a short question-and-answer period.

Franklin Boulevard is planning a 238-bed hospital for a 20-acre site on Schoenbeck Road, just north of Hintz Road in unincorporated Wheeling Township. Hospital officials have said they will seek annexation although no application has been made to Wheeling officials.

"INFORMATION ABOUT the hospital never has been made available to the citizens. That's what people are concerned about," she said.

Trustee John Cole said if Franklin Boulevard makes a presentation without allowing residents to speak, "then they're wasting the people's time."

"If we let the hospital use the village hall for a public forum, then it should be a public forum," he said.

Trustees said they are prepared to stay and meet with residents even if the hospital officials adjourn the meeting early.

"I will be here as a citizen. If the people have questions, I think it behooves us all to stay here," Trustee Dolores Dahm said.

The trustees emphasized the village has no connection with the meeting other than providing a meeting place. They said all arrangements for the session were made through Village Pres. William Hein.

The proposed hospittl was the subject of a public meeting in September sponsored by the Cook-DuPage Counties Health Systems Agency, one of 210 local health planning groups financed nationwide by the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare. Speakers at that meeting said the proposed hospital is not needed and could cause an increase in hospital costs.

Franklin Boulevard officials did not attend the meeting because they said the agency has no authority over them because plans for the hospital were approved by the state in 1974 before the health systems agency was formed. The hospital can be built without the agency approval, they say.

New house ready—and vandalized

VANDALS KICKED in the walls, ransacked the office, damaged furniture and splashed duplicating machine ink in the model house at Strathmore Grove last week before setting two fires. Buffalo Grove police have intensified the investigation of the vandalism spree.

by THOMAS J. MOORE
and TOM VALEO

The windows and mirrors were broken, holes had been kicked in the walls and the bathroom fixtures were damaged.

But that did not stop Bob and Yvonne Greenburg from moving into their new home in the Strathmore Grove subdivision in Buffalo Grove Tuesday, three months after they were first promised the house.

The Greenburg's home is one of six damaged in a vandalism spree that began in Strathmore Grove Thanksgiving night when vandals set fire to the model home used as the office by Levitt and Sons Construction Co., causing at least $20,000 damage.

"WE'RE STAYING here tonight," Greenburg said while standing in the kitchen of the new home. "If for nothing else, for safety's sake."

Workmen tracked mud and snow in the front door on their way upstairs to repair the estimated $2,000 in damage while movers brought in furniture through the garage.

Mrs. Greenburg said the vandalism made her feel "different" about her new home, and a little afraid

"At least I was spared seeing it," she said as she cleaned up around the kitchen. "With all the hassle of moving, I didn t need that little extra."

The Greenburgs sold their home in Wheeling long ago and had been paying rent to stay while the completion date on their new home was moved back again and again. They had promised to be out of their old home on Tuesday, so they had to move, regardless of the vandalism.

VANDALS ALSO damaged the house next to the Greenburgs'.

"It was just a few things, nothing horrendous," said Joel Aronson, who moved into the house Monday. "We're in and happy about being in."

Two windows were broken and the dishwasher was kicked and dented, Aronson said. Outside, the telephone line had been cut before it was buried It cannot be fixed until spring. Aronson said others in the neighborhood have had the same problem with their telephone cables.

'Bad Seed' at Wheeling High

Maxwell Anderson's "Bad Seed" is the winter production to be presented by Wheeling High School's theater department at 8 p.m. today, Thursday and Sunday in the school's Little Theater, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., Wheeling.

The "Bad Seed" centers around a murderer operating behind the innocence of youth.

The play features an abstract set consisting of a series of platforms at center stage. Director Jack Morgan said the drama is the most abstract production in Wheeling's history.

Tickets are $1.25 in advance and $1.50 at the door. For ticket information, call 537-6500.
